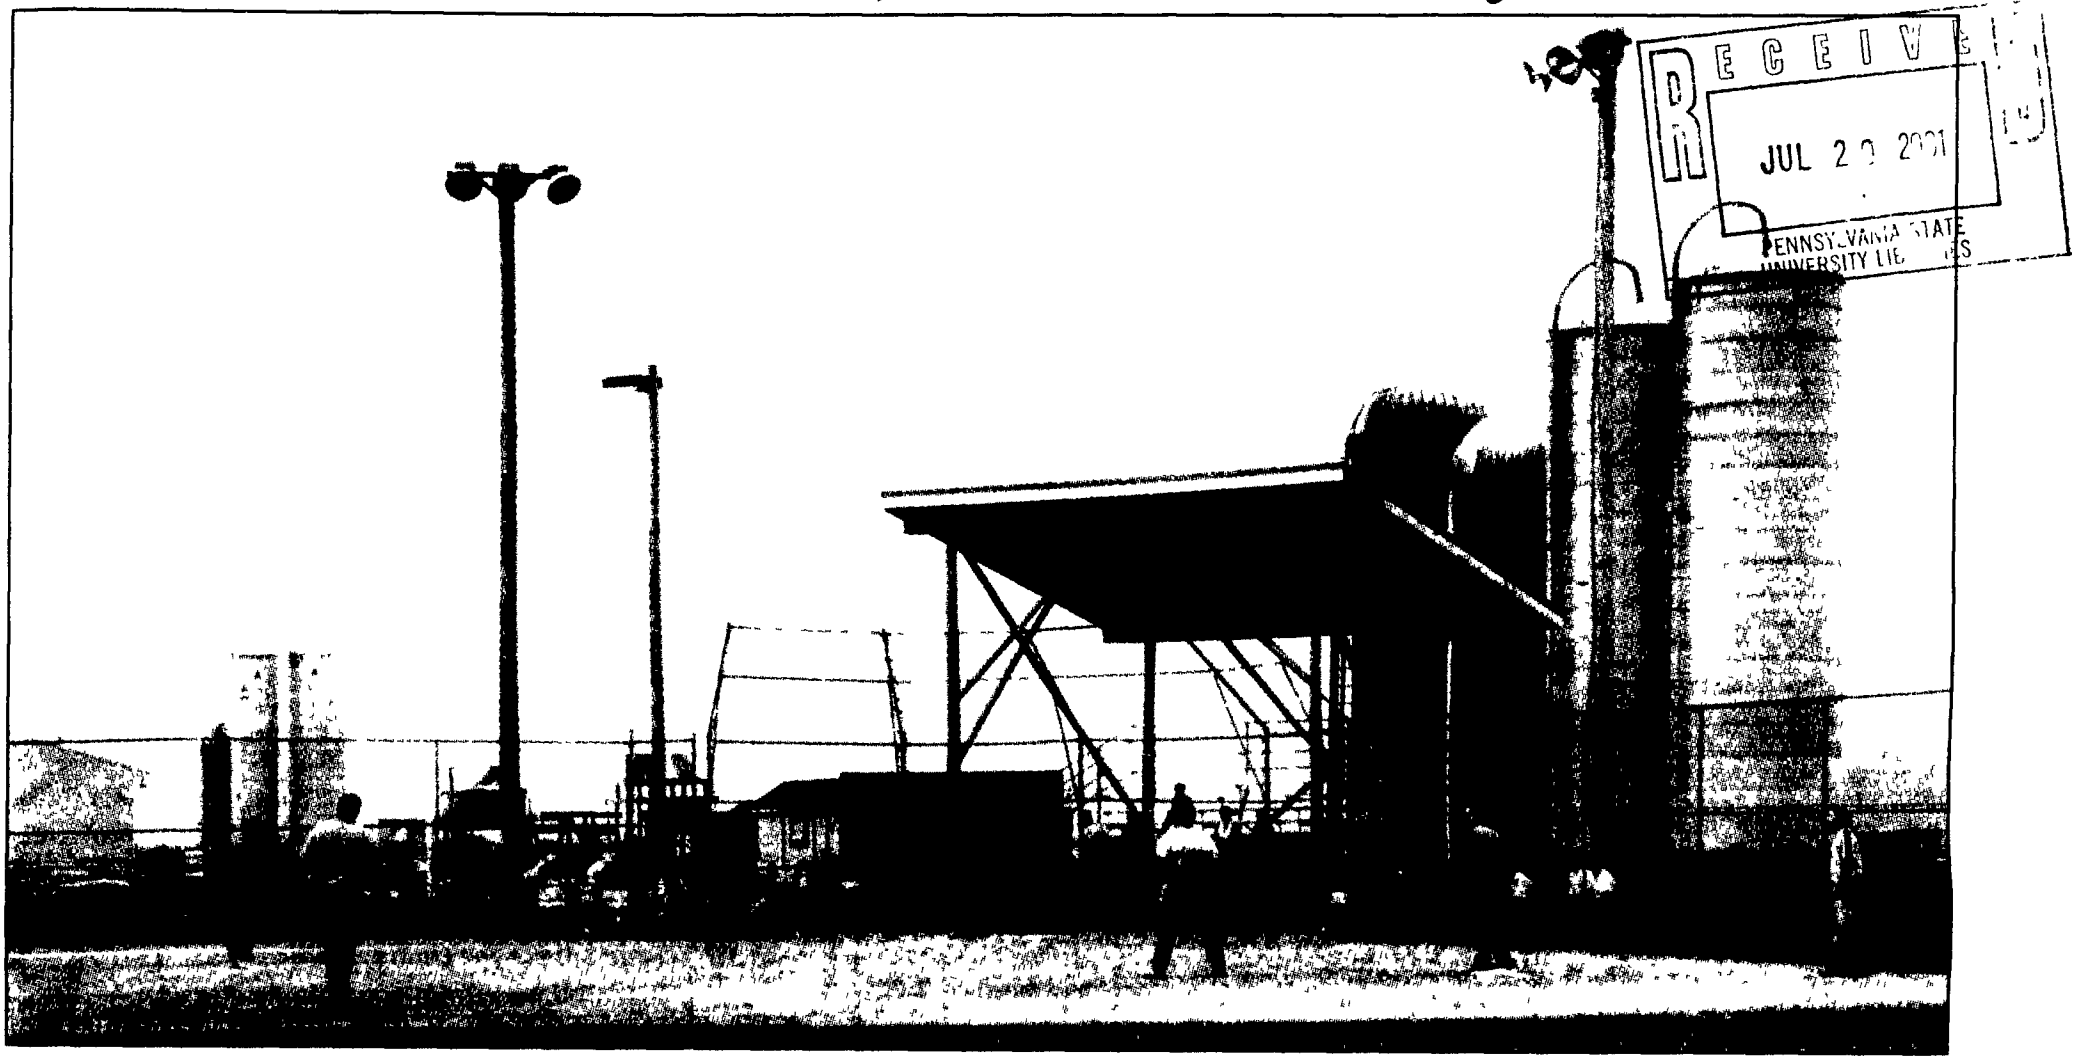
If The Weather's Fine, Then Let's Play Some Ball



RECEIVED
JUL 2 3 2001
PENNSYLVANIA STATE UNIVERSITY LIBRARIES

DENVER (Lancaster Co.) — It's June, so it's baseball time among the silos.

Every once in a while, it's important to take time off and enjoy life. That's what Gene Martin, Blue Lake Builders and Swamp Valley Beef, Denver, believed when he built this regulation-sized baseball diamond about six years ago near Denver.

"I did it for the boys, because they really want to play ball," said Martin.

Gene farms with wife Linda and children, including Steve, who operates a dairy near Schaefferstown; Dan, the steer "veterinarian," and Matthew, who is involved in real estate sales. Other Martin children include Joshua, 16, who helps with the farm, as do Benjamin, 13; Bethany, 10; and Charity, 8.

The diamond was built to play hardball and fast- and slow-pitch softball. Left field measures to 262 feet, center to 282 feet, and right field to 265 feet.

Young marrieds batted against the youth from Faith Mennonite Fellowship, Stevens.

The young marrieds won this championship. How? Experience, Martin said. Throughout the summer, the baseball field, with a backdrop of Martin's farm, serves church leagues, including the Mid-Atlantic Mennonites, Muddy Creek Fellowship, and other leagues.

SCHNECKSVILLE (Lehigh Co.) — The fair season kicked off here this week with a dairy show that featured calves, heifers, and milking cows, including Ayrshires, Brown Swiss, Holsteins, and Jerseys.

At the end of the night, it was a 3-year-old Jersey, Salty, that emerged as supreme champion dairy cow.

"She was the most well-balanced cow in the show,"

ATLANTA, GA.
June 20, 2001
Report Supplied By USDA

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was slow and typical of normal mid-week activity. Offerings were fully sufficient for current inquiry. Live supplies were moderate; weights were light to heavy, mostly desirable to heavy. Processing schedules were moderate to moderately heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 56 to 70 cents. Trade sentiment was steady. In the parts complex, all items remained adequate for the mostly light and selective buying interest.

Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO
June 20, 2001
Report Supplied By USDA

Weather is the major weakening factor in today's trading. Favorable growing conditions across the Midwest and Corn Belt have bids back on the downslide. Wheat steady to 6 cents lower. Corn 2 to 3 cents lower. Sorghum 5 cents lower. Soybeans 3 to 4 cents lower.

Good weather conditions for crops already in the ground and scattered rains are reported all around. Wheat harvest pressure has been weighing on bids. However, with soybean planting not completed and rain delays in wheat cutting, bids were able to hold on to some of the recent gains.

Export interest was light for corn but nothing else was announced.

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

JUNE 25–JULY 1, 2001

CANADA DAY, JULY 1

NO SUNDAYS FOR SAINTS

Usually celebrated on June 24, the Nativity of St. John the Baptist is observed on June 25 this year, in keeping with the church custom of moving forward a saint's day that falls on a Sunday—the Lord's day is for honoring Him alone. Patron of shepherds and beekeepers, St. John is associated with Midsummer because he was born six months before Christ. Bonfires and revelry are customary; sometimes the celebrations extend right into those of Saints Peter and Paul (June 29), when rushes and new-mown hay are brought into church. St. John's wort was named for St. John the Baptist and was considered an emblem of protection. St. Peter, of course, was the gatekeeper of heaven, and another plant, St. Peter's wort, was said to resemble his keys.

Rain on the saints days of Peter and Paul will rotten the roots of the rye.

TIP OF THE WEEK

QUICK AND EASY CUPCAKES

1/2 cup (1 stick) butter
1-1/4 cups sugar
2 eggs
1-1/2 teaspoons vanilla extract
2-1/4 cups flour
2-1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
2/3 cup whole milk

Preheat oven to 350°F. Line muffin tin with papers. Cream butter and sugar, then beat in eggs. Add vanilla. Sift dry ingredients and add, alternating with milk. Fill paper liners ⅔ full. Bake for 20 minutes or until lightly browned Frost as desired, or dust with confectioners' sugar.

Makes 12 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

When bees stay near the hive, rain is close by.

ATTENTION, GARDENERS!

The summer 2001 Gardener's Companion is now on sale You can buy it at supermarkets, bookstores, or garden centers Or send $3.99 to The Old Farmer's Almanac, Dept. GCSU, P O. Box 520, Dublin, NH 03444.

Exports Build

Last week USDA issued its "Outlook for U.S. Agricultural Trade" with some positive news.

Projected fiscal 2001 U.S. ag exports are increased to $53.5 billion, $500 million above the February forecast and $2.6 billion over fiscal 2000 (emphasis ours).

Economists might also be the first to rejoice that, in addition, the import forecast is reduced to $39 billion, $1 billion less than in February and virtually unchanged from 2000.

These changes boost the expected agricultural export surplus to $14.5 billion, the largest in three years.

High-value products account for almost all of the growth, including exported tree nuts, soybeans, and an improved outlook for bovine hides and poultry meat. U.S. exports of hides and skins are forecast at $1.9 billion for 2001, $400 million higher than the previous forecast and a sharp increase over 2000.

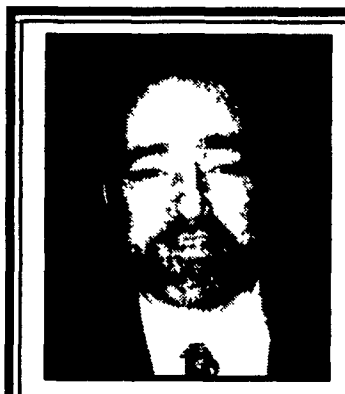
Face it: China is becoming a modern, global player. The people are eating better, dressing better, making more money, and want to share in Western wealth. There's no going back to subsistence living over there: now they want our leather, our Prime cuts, our protein-laden feed.

And the market continues to improve.

Domestically, the big worries again, according to USDA's Ag Outlook for June-July 2001, also published last week, continue to be large supplies of major U.S. field crops. Cheap and available feed in abundance doesn't sit well with cash crop growers, but is great news for feeders. Those large supplies will continue to exert "downward pressure on farm prices," USDA noted, "for the fifth consecutive year."

But USDA forecasts production of red meat and poultry in 2002 to be about 83 billion pounds, up 1 percent from that expected this year, and marginally higher than already record production in 2000.

There are always more mouths to feed, no matter what part of the planet ag commodities are being produced. We are fortunate to be able to meet those needs.



Now Is The Time

To Harvest Forage Crops At Proper Moisture To Minimize Silage Problems

In order to produce good quality hay crop silage, harvest at the proper moisture.

If the moisture content is above 65 percent, undesirable fermentation occurs. Wet hay crop silage is susceptible to clostridial fermentation. This undesirable fermentation can result in high levels of butyric acid and the conversion of protein to ammonia, resulting in odors.

If the forage is too wet after chopping, ground hay or corn can be added to reduce the moisture content as it is blown into the silo. Harvesting forage that is too wet often results in silage effluents, commonly called "juice."

This leachate seeping from the silo can be a major environmental problem. If the leachate reaches a stream, the low pH and high oxygen demand can cause major problems for fish and other aquatic life.

If a serious leachate problem occurs, Gerald Jones, extension dairy scientist from Virginia Tech, offers these tips to deal with the problem.

The "juice" can be collected and handled with wastewater from the milking center, runoff from the exercise lot, or in a liquid manure system.

The effluent can then be land-applied. Be aware, however, that the effluent contains nitrogen and organic acids that could burn leaf tissue. It is also important to understand that mixing silage effluent with liquid manure increases the production of deadly hydrogen sulfide gas. Therefore, use extra caution when agitating and pumping silage leachate. Never enter any storage tanks or collection sumps that are storing silage effluent.

The best way to prevent silage leachate is to harvest the hay crop forage at the proper moisture content, ideally 55-65 percent moisture for a top-unloading silo and 45-55 percent for a bottom-unloading silo, assuming the silo is airtight.

If the moisture content of the silage drops below 50 percent in a structure that is not airtight, a different set of problems is encountered. Dry silage is difficult to pack, making it hard to exclude air. The silage may heat, destroying part of the protein, or may mold. Excessive heating and the presence of oxygen in a poorly packed silo could lead to a fire.

A short cutting length will help in packing as well as unloading. The length of cut for silage should be ¼-inch to ⅜-inch. A longer cut provides for more effective fiber in the ration, but as the forage gets drier, the shorter the cut needs to be for good packing. Rapid filling of at least two feet per hour will also help with packing.

Good quality silage is a very important feed source on livestock operations. Protect the quality of your feed supply by monitoring moisture content at harvest time.

To Prevent Sun-Related Illnesses

With the summer heat season upon us, it is important to think about protecting your health during the hot weather. Working outdoors during very hot periods can lead to heat stroke, heat exhaustion, heat cramps, and heat rash. These problems can be easily prevented with some planning and common sense.

Wear a wide-brimmed hat to keep your head and face cool and protected from the sun. Baseball-style caps are not suitable because they provide little protection. Keep a source of water handy and take drinks every 15 minutes. Take a short break in the shade or a cool place during the hottest part of the day.

Gradually modify your workload to adjust to the heat over a period of 10 or more days. To prevent sunburn and more serious skin disease, wear sunscreen with an SPF of 15 or higher.

To Consider Refinancing Debt

Recent drops in interest rates have lowered rates to some of the lowest charges in the last few years. This would be a good time to check with your financial adviser about refinancing options.

Multiple factors need to be considered besides the interest rate. These include any refinancing charges such as "points," application fees, and closing costs. All these charges need to be considered against the savings to be realized by the lower rates. In some cases, these extra costs may negate any savings. For other situations, the savings could be significant.

Editor:

We so often don't realize the importance of our public servants until tragedy strikes home.

On June 3, we had an electrical fire in one of our barns, and we would like to thank all the fire companies and volunteers who fought this fire. Because of their prompt action and experience, they were able to keep the fire from spreading to the house and outlying buildings.

So often these people go unrecognized and unappreciated and need to be recognized for their heroic service to our community.

Thank you.

A SECOND OPINION

Background Scripture:
1 Kings 22:1-40.
Devotional Reading:
Proverbs 12:13-22.

King Ahab not only didn't like the Prophet Elijah. When Elijah was no longer around to "trouble" him, Ahab found another prophet who disturbed him greatly.

The prophet's name was Micaiah and his only mention in the Bible is to be found in 1 Kings 22 and 2 Chronicles 18:6-27. He appears only briefly to give his "second opinion" prophecy and then disappears.

Remember that, because of the intransigence of Rehoboam, at his father's death the Kingdom of David and Solomon broke apart with the northern tribes rebelling and forming the kingdom of Israel under Jeroboam and the southern tribes forming the kingdom of Judah under Rehoboam. Of the two, Israel was the larger and stronger.

Ahab later became king of Israel. For some time, Ahab becomes an ally of the Syrians. Then, when Jehoshaphat, king of Judah, comes to visit him — Ahab's daughter has married Jehoshaphat's son — Ahab seeks to secretly persuade Jehoshaphat to join in trying to wrest back from the Syrians the town of Ramoth-gilead.

Jehoshaphat agrees to help his new in-law, Ahab, but with a stipulation: "Inquire first for the word of the Lord" (22:5). So, Ahab gathers together some 400 prophets recognized in Israel and asks them whether he should or should not go to battle to win back Ramoth-gilead.

The prophets, it seems, are unanimous: "Go up; for the Lord will give it into the hand of the king" (22:6). Sounds encouraging, doesn't it? Ahab gets precisely the prophetic message he wants: Go for it!

However, despite a score of 400 to 0, Jehoshaphat is not satisfied with their prophecy.

"Is there not another prophet of the Lord to whom we may inquire?" Knowing well that the king's prophets, fearing for their lives, will tell their monarch just what he wants to hear, Jehoshaphat wants a second opinion. He wants to know if there isn't a prophet upon whom they can depend to tell exactly what God has spoken.

Well, yes, there is such a prophet, says King Ahab. "There is yet one man by whom we may inquire of the Lord, Micaiah, the son of Imlah; but I hate him for he never prophesies good concerning me, but evil" (v.8). Ahab still has not figured out that the problem is not with the prophet's words, but the king's life. It is not the prophet who spoils Ahab's life, but Ahab himself.

When Micaiah arrives before Ahab, he asks, "Micaiah, shall we go to Ramoth-gilead to battle, or shall we forbear?" (v.15). Micaiah's reply shocked Ahab as it must shock many readers: "Go up and triumph; the Lord will give it into the hand of the king." Is Micaiah suddenly afraid to speak the truth or is he simply mimicking the false prophets of Israel?

But Ahab doesn't believe this favorable word from Michaiah. How many times, he asks, must he put this question to the prophet before he gets a truthful answer? It seems that he already suspects what God's answer is and insists that Micaiah tell him the truth.

Rejecting The Message

In short, Micaiah tells him that he should not go up against Ramoth-gilead. But now that Micaiah has told him the truth Ahab already suspected, the king is furious with the message and messenger. "Thus says the king, 'Put this fellow in prison, and feed him with scant fare of bread and water, until I come in peace'" (v.27). Micaiah replies: "If you return in peace, the Lord has not spoken to me." What Micaiah prophesied came to pass and Ahab died a humiliating death.

Jehoshaphat asked for a second opinion, a prophecy they could trust, and both he and his kingdom were saved. Ahab agreed to a second opinion, but he didn't like what he heard and so he rejected the message and abused the messenger.

And all that didn't happen nearly so long ago as you might assume.

Crownvetch Industry Is As Perennial As Plant Itself

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co Correspondent

PINE GROVE MILLS (Centre Co) — Dr Fred Grau Sr discovered a pretty lavender-flowered cover plant along a shale pit near Virginville, Berks County, in 1935

Little did he know that it would become one of the most sought-after ground covers for the highway department in the '60s and a sole source of business income for his son, one of only three or four major crownvetch producers in the country

By discovering crownvetch and developing the production and marketing of the crop, Fred became the founder of the crownvetch industry

"He didn't know what it was," said Fred Grau Jr. "He was an extension agronomist in turf at Penn State in 1935 He brought some back to Penn State and identified it He immediately saw the erosion control use for it.

"In the late '40s and early '50s, Penn State picked up on the idea of using it. My father, Penn State, the Department of Agriculture, and the Department of Highways together conducted three years of research on crownvetch In the late '40s. Then they released it as Penngift Crown-

Seeleys' Milky Way Farm Reaps Benefits Of Grazing

CAROLYN N. MOYER
Bradford Co. Correspondent

TROY (Bradford Co) — For the Seeley family of Milky Way Farm in Troy, the call of springtime is getting stronger and stronger every day

It not only signals the start of a new growing season, but a shift in focus for their entire operation.

"We will rotate cows by mid-April, even though there is no grass," said Kim Seeley, who has seen his farming focus change dramatically over the years "The reason we do that is to get the animals out of the barn I think it's important to start grazing early just for our mentality The cows are excited, too They get spring fever just like we do"

Seeley's grandparents purchased the farm in 1928 In 1962, Kim's parents, Lewis and Marie, expanded the operation by building a restaurant and jugging operation. Their goal at that time was to earn enough money to put their four children through college, which they did Kim and his wife Ann, along with their two sons — Shon, 18 and Dane, 8 — are an integral part of the operation.

For many years the Seeleys ran a conventional dairy along with their jugging operation In fact, they hold the claim to having the oldest free-stall barn in Bradford County After a barn fire, the Seeleys decided to move all the animals to a central location, with the milking animals in total confinement.

"We built a brand-new barn in 1976 because of a barn fire For eight years we were in total confine-

Whole milk chocolate milk is one of the Milky Way's successes. Kim Seeley says that the whole milk and better ingredients set their product apart from the rest. The Seeleys have been operating a jugging plant since 1968.

Virus Found To Carry Antibiotic Against E. Coli

COLLEGE STATION, Texas — Part of a small virus that attacks only bacteria acts like an antibiotic to destroy E. coli, researchers with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station have found.

A report on the antibiotic action of the small virus, "Q Beta," is reported in this week's Science magazine.

The research was funded by the National Institute of Health's general medicine institute.

The finding provides a new approach for designing drugs to combat many serious bacterial diseases, including E. coli, pneumonia, staph infection, ear infections, Lyme's disease and cholera in humans, as well as bacterial diseases in pets, livestock and crops, according to Tom Bernhardt, biochemistry doctoral student, and Dr. Ing-Nang Wang, a lead investigator on the project.

New types of antibiotics are increasingly important because many disease-causing bacteria have become resistant to antibiotics, reducing the number of medicines available for treatment. Researchers fear that continued resistance could result in epidemics of diseases once thought controlled by antibiotics.

The research at the Experiment Station found that a protein within the small virus, known as a "phage" in scientific circles, does the same thing to bacterial cell walls as antibiotics. It blocks the ability of the cell to make its tough outer wall so bacteria blow up or destroy themselves rather than divide into more cells. Dead bacterial cells means an end to the illness.

"This 'protein antibiotic' is the answer to an old mystery: how Q-beta and other small phage kill bacteria," said Dr. Ry Young, a biochemist in whose lab at Texas A&M University the work was done, in collaboration with Dr. Douglas K. Struck, a medical biochemistry and genetics professor. 'Basically they let the cell commit suicide by dividing without making a new cell wall." The research team expects pharmaceutical companies to further explore phages for new types of antibiotics.

"Ideally, the small bit of protein responsible could be mimicked by a pharmaceutical company," said Struck, "and a drug could be made to be general against many bacteria, or specific against a certain pathogen, and even better, it could easily be changed to overcome resistance."

Phages — which are not the same type of viruses that infect humans, animals and plants — are basically dormant bundles of DNA or RNA in protein coats until they come into contact with bacteria, Bernhardt said.

They then go into action, replicating within the bacterial cell and, after only a few minutes, exploding it.

Researchers have known the DNA sequence of these small viruses for about 25 years. Because of their simplicity, phages were used to work out basic molecular biology, but were abandoned as researchers shifted to study higher organisms, animals and humans.

"As bacteria's natural enemies, their potential as sources for ways to kill bacteria should have been thoroughly explored long ago," said Wang, "but it is only now, with the emerging worldwide crisis in antibiotic resistance, that phages are finally gaining attention in their own right. It looks like small phages are a gold mine for protein antibiotics."

Young agrees.

"The important thing is that this is the second small phage which we have found to make a protein antibiotic, and other people in the lab are working on a third," said Young. "Surprisingly, each of these phages makes a different type of cell wall poison, and each one is a potential new model for an antibiotic."

The team hopes to find new small phages and use them to identify more "protein antibiotics" that could be developed into practical medicines by the pharmaceutical industry.

National Feeder Cattle Weekly Summary

St. Joseph, Mo.
June 15, 2001
Report Supplied By USDA

FEEDER CATTLE: Receipts this week 105,400; last week 176,200; last year 132,900. Feeder steers and heifers sold steady to 2.00 higher this week, except calf country in the Southeast, steady to 1.00 lower. This, according to USDA Livestock and Grain Market News Service.

Crops, hay and pasture prospects looking super for this time of the year. Storms and rains providing a plentiful supply of moisture over most of the country. Feedstuff prices remain cheap and prospects looking bright for continued big production. Corn bids lower again this week, 15 cents below a year ago and well below 2.00. However, slaughter cattle prices are under severe pressure. Feedlot numbers are above a year ago and average slaughter weights getting heavier the past couple of weeks.

Boxed beef cutouts lost nearly 5.00 in the past three weeks and heavy carcasses closing at 127.84 today. Direct feedlot trade another 1.00 lower this week at 74.00 and 120.00 in the beef. A year ago finished cattle sold for 70.00 and cutouts were quoted at 126.00. Year to date beef production is 5.5 percent below a year ago.

Our economy and consumer beef demand continues to be a big question mark. Next Friday's Cattle On Feed report should offer some insight as to how much big kills the past two months and several months of sharply reduced placements will affect feedlot head counts. Supply this week 52 percent over 600 lbs.

Prices for eastern U.S. areas follow:

East Fluid Milk And Cream Review

Madison, Wis.
June 20, 2001
Report Supplied By USDA

FLUID CREAM AND CONDENSED SKIM PRICES IN TANK-LOT QUANTITIES: Spot prices of class II cream, dollars per lb. butterfat: F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast - 2.4895-2.6871. Delivered Equivalent: Atlanta - 2.4895-2.6673 mostly 2.5290-2.5685.

PRICES OF CONDENSED SKIM, dollars per lb. wet solids, F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast, Class II, includes monthly formula prices: 1.0500-1.1500; Northeast, Class III, spot prices: .8000-.9600.

Regional milk market administrators announced the following May 2001 uniform prices: Northeast $16.32; Mideast $15.12, Southeast $16.54; Florida $18.22; and Western New York (a state order) $16.02 at the base cities/counties in the orders. (For the Northeast, Mideast, and Western New York orders, statistical uniform prices are reported.)

During May, milk production in the 20 major states totaled 12.6 billion pounds, down 1.1% from May 2000. The following are the May to May changes for selected states: Texas 11.7%, Vermont 5.7%, Pennsylvania 3.5%, New York 2.5%, Virginia 1.8%, Kentucky 1.3%, and Florida 1.3%.

Hot weather covered much of the East during the past week. Milk output is past the peak in the Northeast and some handlers are consolidating their farm pick up routes. In the Middle Atlantic area, the milk flow is lower, but at a relatively slow pace. In Florida and other Southeastern states where is has been very hot and humid, milk production is dropping at a faster pace. Florida handlers are still exporting surplus milk as bottled milk sales have "kept pace" with falling milk output. Handlers are making contacts with suppliers in the Upper Midwest and Northeast regarding milk purchases later this summer. Most do have contracts for milk, but most are looking for additional sources should they be needed, and most contacts do feel that the regular suppliers will not be able to fully satisfy this summer's needs. Bottled milk sales, throughout the region, range from slow to fair. Surplus milk volumes are lighter, particularly in the Southeast where manufacturing plants are operating at levels well below those seen a few weeks ago.

In the Northeast, surplus milk volumes are moderate and easily cleared. The condensed skim market is improved this week. Demand has rebounded and some producers have temporarily stopped drying. The fluid cream market is firm. Supplies are tight this week and demand is good. Any extra loads that were offered were quickly cleared. Spot prices are generally higher as the CME weekly butter average did move two and a half cents higher last week. Ice cream and cream cheese maker are taking more cream, which is typical for this time of year. The hot weather up and down the East Coast did spur consumption of soft serve ice cream. Bottled and canned/aerosol cream sales are brisk. Churning activity was a little lighter this week.

Growers And Winemakers

ginia, New York, and New Jersey.

Vineyard Varieties

Dennis Rak, Double A Nursery, Fredonia, N.Y., told producers about new varieties available now or that will be coming onto the market soon.

Rak also gave his own words of wisdom. "Make wine for the customers, not yourself — wine the customers will enjoy. Besides, you can't drink it all yourself," he said.

Develop your own market and clientele, and find a niche for yourself, said Rak. Also grow a range of varieties that cater to a range of consumer's tastes. Make sure the vineyard grows an assortment of varieties to give a range of wine styles and cover production risks, said Rak.

He also presented information about varieties of grapes. The quality of the wine, size of clusters, hardiness, and productivity are all factors to take into consideration when choosing rootstock.

Canopy Management

John Santos, vineyard manager for Hazlitt Vinyards, Hector, N.Y., discussed canopy management by discussing five golden rules of canopy management.

Have four to five shoots per foot of canopy so it is not too dense, began Santos. Additionally, 20-40 percent of the canopy should be gaps to allow spray, sunlight, and air flow penetration into the canopy.

Most, or 80-100 percent, of the leaves should be on the exterior of the canopy to allow access to sunlight. Only 10 percent of available sunlight will pass through a leaf to the leaves behind it, leaving the leaves in the back more susceptible to disease as they become necrotic. Also 50-100 percent of the fruit should be on the exterior of the canopy.

"Our job is to eliminate the band-aid methods of canopy topping, pulling leaves, and pruning fruit," he said. To achieve balanced crop production, growers must weigh the shoots when they are pruned and aim for a shoot that weighs 20-40 grams.

The trellis system Santos uses, the Scott Henry system, is a system which requires several passes through the vineyard to keep the vines separated and break the tendrils.

Later, once the fruit is set but young, moving a wire from the middle to lower area on the pole will pull half of the vines down and create the air flow and sunlight needed for efficient production.

Grapevine Nutrition

New Jersey is gaining two new producers a week, said Gary Pavlis, Rutgers cooperative extension, Atlantic County, N.J.

Pavlis spoke about grapevine nutrition and tissue analysis.

Vineyard growing means making sure the plants receive 16 essential nutrients, six "macro nutrients," which it needs a large amount of, and six "micro" nutrients.

"Nutrition starts off preplanting," he said. "You can't call me on Wednesday and want to put your plants in on Friday." Soil test must be completed to correct inefficiencies and soil imbalances and test for the presence of nematodes.

The first year, recommended Pavlis, growers should avoid fertilizing their plants. "Get a feeling for what you have," he said, rather than encouraging robust growth of the plants and ended up with less fruit. A nitrogen excess, for example, means that "the plants are too busy growing shoots to bear fruit," he said.

Vineyard Spray Program

Ike Kerschner, from Mica Ridge Vineyard in Coatesville, presented his ideas and experience about the vineyard's spraying program.

The selection of the sprayer is foundational, said Kerschner.

"Try to imagine where you are going to be five years down the road when you are looking at equipment," he said, citing his own example of having to sell his existing equipment to upgrade in a relatively short period of time.

He has softened his "kill everything that's out there and you won't have a problem" approach to containing economically-damaging pests while still minimizing ecologic risks. For example Kerschner is investigating using compost as fertilizer.

Sprayer Technology

Andrew Landers, from the Department of Ag and Biological Engineering at Cornell University, educated the audience about commercial vineyard sprayers. Cornell's research team is investigating how to improve deposition and reduce drift in vineyard sprayers.

Safety, increasing public awareness, and legislation, said Landers, are putting pressure on vineyard growers to not only protect air and water quality but also be responsible in their spraying techniques.

One option for growers is airblast sprayers, which are affordable and versatile, but have a visible plume while spraying. Landers recommended "directed deposition," to point the spray into the canopy from above to lessen the amount of drifting spray.

Also tunnel sprayers, which cut drift by 90 percent as compared to airblast sprayers, are a good option for growers.

Rootstock

Peter Cousins, USDA/ Agriculture Research Service, Geneva, N.Y., discussed the history and importance or rootstock to the industry.

"Rootstock is not about roots, but about high quality grapes,"said Cousins.

Since a blight in the 1800s in Europe by Phylloxera, an insect which feeds on the roots and kills the vine, rootstock has become a must for vineyards.

Since many North American grapevine varieties had resistance to Phylloxera, other varieties of grapevines were grafted onto phylloxera-resistant rootstock. Varieties that could be grafted easily from a dormant cutting and adapt to the calcerous soils of Europe were chosen to become rootstock.

For rootstock trials, "keep track of what is where," said Cousins. Many trials have gone unfinished because the owner failed to keep accurate records.

Compost, Nutrition

Phil Roth, Apple Valley Farms II, Fairfield, gave a history of fertilizer and nutrition from a grower's point of view.

Careful site selection is the first step to a successful vine-

dairy judge Charlie Seidel said. "She combines style, dairy character, a strongly attached udder, and a correct set of feet and legs."

Shown by Katie Harwick of Kempton, Salty has been recognized before as an outstanding animal. In 1999, she was supreme champion heifer at the Kempton show and went on to compete at the state show.

Harwick said that Salty comes from a family of show-quality animals.

"Her mother was my first show calf," she said.

Harwick, 17, has been a 4-H member for nine years and started to show Jerseys around the same time the Schnecksville Community Fair first began its dairy show. This is the second time she has had the distinction of showing a supreme champion animal.

Dairying has been a big part of Harwick's life for as long as she can remember. Her parents, Keith and Beth Harwick, began milking Jerseys in 1982, before she was born, converting Keith's father's potato farm into a dairy operation. Now they intensively graze and milk about 45 Jerseys.

Harwick also plans to make dairying part of her future. A new graduate of Northwestern Lehigh High School, she said now that summer is here, she will take a major part in milking chores — until fall comes. Then she will be attending Penn State as an animal science major, possibly with a focus on dairy nutrition.

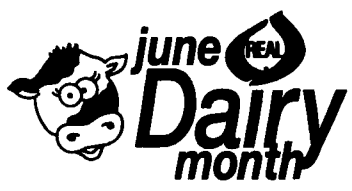
Harwick's two younger siblings Suzanne, 15, and David, 12, are also involved with the family's Jerseys, showing animals that won ribbons here this week.

Seidel, a dairy judge for 10 years, said that naming a Jersey cow supreme champion is not unusual, especially if she comes from a herd of excellent quality like that of the Harwick's.

Additional results from the livestock show will be published in a later issue.

The Schnecksville Community Fair features a wide variety of events, including animal shows, a vegetable quick bread contest, a children's tractor pedal pull, various entertainers, and a fireworks display.

The fairgrounds are located several miles north of Allentown on Rt. 309.



State FFA

Paul Hostetter from the Hans Herr, FFA, son of James and Mary Louise Hostetter, Holtwood, was elected president. Paul's supervised agricultural experience (SAE) include previously owning and raising 50 pigs, and on-farm work experience at both his family's farm and a neighboring dairy farm.

This year's state vice president is Karrie Kehr. Karrie is from the Grassland chapter and the daughter of Tom and Ginny Kehr, New Holland. Karrie has off-farm work experience at a local driving range.

The south-central region vice president is Sherisa Brammer, daughter of Mike and Penny Brammer, Mechanicsburg. Sherisa's SAEs include off-farm work, swine finishing, pumpkins, sheep finishing, home garden, and practical skills. She is a member of the Cumberland Valley FFA.

Clearfield FFA chapter is home to the north-central region vice president, Rebecca Sankey. Rebecca is the daughter of Franklin and Dawn Sankey, Clearfield. Rebecca has conducted alfalfa, field corn, rabbits, dairy production, and on-farm work experience projects.

Jeremy Ranck, Hans Herr FFA, is the year's eastern region vice president. His parent, Jim and Joan Ranck, reside in Christiana. Jeremy works on a hog and chicken farm as his SAE.

Fifteen minutes from Lake Erie, Isaac Harrington is part of the Albion FFA chapter and the son of Robert and Jeri Harrington. As the western region vice president Isaac is raising two Hereford cows and a Hereford heifer.

Amanda Brown is the first state officer from the Danville FFA Chapter. Her parents are Levi and Barbara Brown. She is this year's secretary, with off-farm work experience at a veterinary hospital and Dunkin Donuts.

With an on-farm and off-farm work experience and two dairy heifers as her SAE, Holly Rankin is this year's treasurer from the Red Lion Area. Holly is the daughter of Jon and Kendra Rankin of Red Lion.

For the first time in 16 years, the Philadelphia FFA Chapter has a state officer. As the reporter, Lisa Fetscher has on-farm work experience as an apprentice and experience showing livestock. Her parents are Michael and Janice Fetscher.

From Brothersvalley, Lance Bittner is this year's sentinel. Lance's SAEs include dairy cows, calves and heifers, along with small grain production. Residing in Berlin, Lance's parents are Barry and Diane Bittner.

Chaplain this year is Cody Holden from Tri-Valley FFA. Cody has raised sheep for four years and dairy beef for one, along with two year's work experience on a dairy farm. His parents are David Holden and Carolyn Enders, Hegins.

In the next year, the 11 officers will be traveling the state to promote FFA, the world's premier youth leadership organization. The team is looking forward to meeting and leading Pennsylvania's 8,000 FFA members during a year of service.

yard, said Roth, who emphasized that the plants should be able to extract minor elements from the soil. If the soil is slightly acidic, plants will be more able to absorb the necessary elements.

Growers should also "play with the nitrogen level to determine the line between a good crop and vigor of the plants," he said.

Additionally, "don't react to the soil report. Look for trends," recommended Roth.

Wednesday's meeting was coordinated by Mark Chien, cooperative extension agent who covers 16 counties, and Laura McNutt, Berks County horticulture agent.

Muck Crops Day Opens Door To Visitors

WILLARD, Ohio — Muck soil could be considered "yuck" soil by many as its black, organic make-up is much different from most soil. But this year's annual Muck Crops Day will examine the soil's advantages for growing certain vegetables as well as ways to prevent and care for diseases that arise.

The annual Muck Crops Day at the Muck Crops Branch of the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center is scheduled for June 28, from 10 a.m. until noon, and this year's event features a wide array of topics for visitors to learn about the branch's current research.

The two-hour event will include information on a number of activities and topics, designed to help muck crop producers increase their efficiency and profitability. The event is free and open to the public.

The Muck Crops branch is OARDC's oldest branch, and the soil is nearly 80 percent organic matter, which is ideal for raising certain types of vegetables, said Branch Manager Rick Callendar. Still, there are problems associated with growing vegetables on muck soil, such as disease, insect and weed control, and the branch's research concentrates on solving those problems.

The program will address these problems and give people a chance to see the latest research results. In addition to the topics discussed by branch researchers, the Huron County Soil and Water Conservation District will provide additional information.

"The plan right now is for visitors to be able to make individual stops at each of the research trials and talk with the researcher if they choose to do so," Callendar said.

The program will feature 19 topics, including traps for monitoring cutworm and sweetcorn moths, as well as Colorado potato beetle and potato leafhopper control in potatoes. Other topics include weed and disease control, including timing and rate of Prowl herbicide application in green onions, and residue studies of onions, mustard, celery, turnips and lettuce.

The program is targeted toward an audience interested in farming, but Callendar encourages the general public to attend as well.

"The event does tend to lean more toward the farming community and Extension and education people as well as those in ag business, but we do enjoy helping the general public gain an understanding of what we are doing here," Callendar said.

Researchers at the Muck Crops Branch work to improve fresh-market vegetable production, and muck-crop growers from around the state and the Midwest continually seek information from the branch to help them with their production decisions.

"It is always nice to draw attention to the branch and the research being done here," Callendar said.

For information or directions to the Muck Crops Branch, contact Callendar at (419) 935-1201 or callendar.1@osu.edu. The program is sponsored by the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center and Ohio State University Extension.

System Alerts Users Of New Environmental Permits

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) Secretary David E. Hess recently announced that DEP is the first environmental agency in the U.S. to e-mail residents when new permit applications are received for review.

The DEP eNOTICE, Pennsylvanians now can receive e-mail notification of all environmental permits: air- and water-pollution control facilities, landfills, incinerators, transfer stations, drinking water treatment plants, water sources, surface and deep coal-mining operations, quarries and X-rays, and other sources of radiation.

"Pennsylvania has been a national leader in harnessing the power of the Internet, and we already give the public access to permit compliance and inspection information," Hess said. "Now, we are taking a huge step forward with our new DEP eNOTICE service to give people personal notice of new permit applications coming into DEP for review.

"DEP eNOTICE puts the power of permit tracking in the hands of anyone with an e-mail address. Now, watershed groups, public officials, reporters, lawyers, bankers, consultants and citizens can all track permit applications being reviewed by DEP. We'll send them an individual notice if they register for the service, by municipality or county, or for an individual facility if they want."

To start a DEP eNOTICE account, visit DEP's Website at www.dep.state.pa.us and choose "DEP eNOTICE." Then, register your e-mail and protect your account using a password.

You then can sign up to track permits two ways. By picking your township, city, borough, or county, you will be notified when any applications come from these areas. You also can pick individual applications or permits by name that already are in DEP's database and get e-mail alerts as they move through review. You also can choose both options.

For more information, visit DEP's Website at http://www.dep.state.pa.us (direct link "DEP eNOTICE").

ARS Searches Exotic Corn Types To Improve U.S. Corn Yield, Uses

WASHINGTON, D.C. — USDA Agricultural Research Service (ARS) and other public and private scientists are studying exotic corn germplasm from all over the world, searching for genes to improve productivity and add value to the corn crop in the U.S.

Their search should help breeders add diversity to U.S. corn hybrids as insurance against unexpected pest outbreaks or other threats. The U.S. corn crop has an annual value of $18 billion.

In one cooperative research project, ARS geneticist Linda M. Pollak at the Corn Insects and Crop Genetics Research Unit, Ames, Iowa, is working with Wilson Genetics LLC, Harlan, Iowa, to characterize and compare starch and milling properties of 20 unique white corn lines.

Corn lines with the exotic genes have exhibited a wide variety of starch and milling traits that may be useful to the corn industry and add profits for corn producers. However, measuring these traits is difficult and expensive.

As part of the research, scientists will study unique corn lines and develop screening methods that will allow efficient breeding for digestibility and other traits. This cooperative work should increase the speed and efficiency of getting new specialty corn hybrids into the marketplace.

USDA Helps Apple Growers With Low Crop Prices

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The USDA announced June 13 that it has started to issue almost $95 million in payments to about 7,500 apple growers.

The Apple Market Loss Assistance Program helps eligible apple growers offset low 1998- and 1999-crop market prices for nearly 5.4 billion pounds of apples.

Under the AMLAP, eligible growers can receive a payment of 1.768 cents per pound for the higher of either 1998 or 1999 apple production, and they will be paid on a maximum of 1.6 million pounds for each separate apple operation.

Sign up for this program was from March 5 to May 4. For more details on this and other USDA programs, contact a USDA Service Center or local Farm Service Agency office. Office locations are in the government section of the telephone directory.

DOES SUSTAINABLE FORESTRY PAY?
Rance Harmon
Extension Associate

One goal of sustainable forestry is to ensure that future generations have the same availability of forest resources as we have today. Sustainable forestry practices provide timber while protecting wildlife habitat, water quality, and a host of other benefits. However, Penn State Extension forester Michael Jacobson insists that: "The key element in making sustainable forestry feasible is its affordability to the landowner."

To help private landowners decide if it is economically feasible to practice sustainable forestry, Dr. Jacobson wrote Sustainable Forest Harvesting: An Economic Perspective. The six-page publication is the first in the new "Forest Finance" series available from the Penn State Cooperative Extension.

In Sustainable Forest Harvesting, Jacobson compares the financial value of a forest stand subjected to two different harvesting techniques: diameter-limit-cutting and crown thinning.

The first technique, diameter-limit-cutting, involves harvesting all of the marketable trees over a given diameter. The technique takes the biggest and best trees from the forest and leaves the rest behind.

Diameter-limit-cutting provides an immediate economic return to the landowner, but tends to degrade the forest and its resources.

Best Management Practices for Pennsylvania Forests — a set of guidelines developed by a consensus among natural resource professionals, forest landowners, scientists, and representatives from forest industries and environmental organizations — specifically cautions against diameter-limit-cutting. Nonetheless, diameter-limit-cutting is a common practice in the commonwealth.

In contrast to diameter-limit-cutting, crown thinning focuses on improving growing conditions for the trees that remain in the forest after the harvest. Crown thinning helps increase the quality, growth-rate, disease resistance, and vigor of the remaining trees. Thus, crown thinning is seen as a valid, sustainable practice.

So, what about the bottom-line for the landowner? Sustainable Forest Harvesting provides evidence that crown thinning can provide higher saw-timber yields, more high-value saw-logs, and greater financial returns over time than an unsustainable, diameter-limit-cutting technique.

Jacobson urges landowners to think about the many benefits that forest provide when choosing how to manage their lands.

Unsustainable harvest techniques, such as diameter-limit-cutting, can reduce the forest's overall vitality and compromise its ability to provide income in the future.

In contrast, sustainable practices can yield healthy forests that provide enhanced wildlife habitat, recreation, and biological diversity, while reserving future management options and economic potential. Jacobson advises forestland owners to "consult a natural resource professional before making any important decisions, such as a timber harvest."

NYFB Gives 'Two Thumbs Up' To Vending Machine Milk Sales

ALBANY, N.Y. — An important bill reviewed and given "two thumbs up" by New York Farm Bureau (NYFB) has passed the New York State Legislature. The bill — which now awaits the governor's signature — would help companies and entrepreneurs sell milk in schools via vending machines.

The Assembly bill was sponsored by Assembly Agriculture Committee chair (representative) Bill Magee, of Nelson, N.Y., and the Senate bill by Senator Nancy Larraine Hoffmann, of Fabius, N.Y.

Under the current cumbersome law, anyone wishing to sell milk through vending machines must obtain two separate licenses: one relating to sanitary code from the New York State Department of Health and the other a milk dealer's license from the Department of Agriculture and Markets. The revised law would eliminate the need to become a licensed milk dealer, as long as the milk placed in the vending machine originated with a licensed milk dealer. Public health remains as protected as before.

New York's dairy farmers have long been interested in boosting milk sales in schools. Competition for school-lunch money has increased in recent years due to installation of food and soda vending machines; however, the two-license requirement has discouraged entrepreneurs from installing milk vending machines in our schools. With the introduction of plastic, single-serve milk containers — much like soda bottles — and many new flavors, such as improved chocolate and orange creamsicle, these vending machines for schools are an idea whose time has come.

New York Farm Bureau strongly backed removing this barrier to entry into the milk vending business. "With the introduction of these new milk products, as well as elimination of regulatory burdens, we feel there ought to be more of an opportunity for milk vending machines to compete with soda machines in schools," said Patrick Hooker, director of public policy for New York Farm Bureau.

Gap Dairy Producer Meets With President Bush

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Gordon Hoover, a dairy producer from Gap, met with President George W. Bush and senior members of his trade policy team on Monday to discuss new legislation that would give the President "trade promotion authority."

Hoover, a Land O'Lakes corporate board member, was part of a select group of agricultural leaders urged by the President to generate grass-roots support for the Trade Promotion Authority (TPA) bill.

"It was very encouraging to hear the President, U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Ann Veneman, and U.S. Trade Ambassador Robert Zoellick position agriculture as the cornerstone of our economy and the foundation of our world trade negotiations," said Hoover. "The Trade Promotion Authority bill would give the Administration the ability to eliminate trade barriers and expedite trade negotiations to open up new markets for agricultural products."

Twenty-five percent of farm receipts are generated by exports. The TPA bill, introduced to the U.S. House of Representatives June 13, would give U.S. commodities greater access to export markets, generating more income for America's farmers and ranchers. With farmers suffering from low prices and limited market opportunities, the TPA bill could provide much-needed momentum to agricultural negotiations in the World Trade Organization.

Land O'Lakes is part of an ag trade coalition that supports the TPA bill. This group also includes the American Farm Bureau Federation, the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives, and National Milk Producers Federation representing a large portion of America's farm families.

"The Trade Promotion Authority bill is approaching agricultural trade with the right attitude," Hoover said. "You could really see how the Administration understands the value of agriculture."

ASA Praises Proposed Renewable Fuels Legislation

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The American Soybean Association (ASA) praised Senators Chuck Hagel (R-NE) and Tim Johnson (D-SD) for their introduction last week of the "Renewable Fuels for Energy Security Act of 2001" bill.

The legislation sets a federal goal for increased national use of renewable fuels, such as biodiesel and ethanol. Under the measure, renewable fuels would account for three percent of highway transportation fuels by 2011 and five percent by 2016. The measure will allow flexible approaches to comply with program goals, in ways that best fit within the operations of fuel providers.

"This legislation is needed to help renewable fuels become part of the solution as America seeks ways to reduce years of U.S. dependence on petroleum products. This bill is an important step to foster domestic energy production," said ASA First Vice President Bart Ruth, a producer from Rising City, Neb. "U.S. consumers will benefit from the shift toward cleaner-burning and better performing fuels while U.S. farmers can use a much-needed boost to soybean prices."

Senator Hagel said, "By establishing a renewable fuel standard, we can improve our air quality, strengthen our national security, reduce our trade deficit, decrease dependency on foreign oil, and create an expanded market for America's farmers."

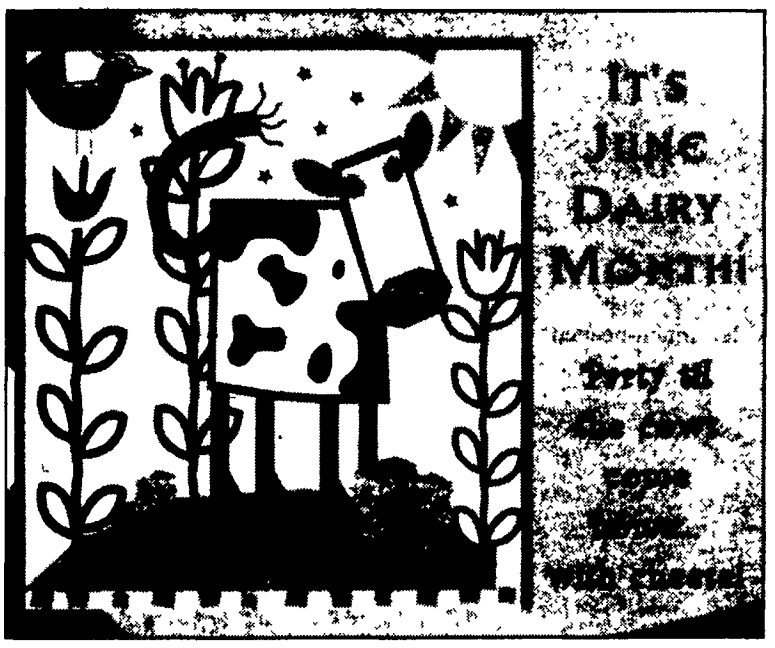
Senator Johnson said, "I believe renewable fuels such as ethanol and biodiesel should be the centerpiece of our future energy strategy, because these fuels are home grown solutions that benefit our farmers, provide cleaner air, and reduce our dependence on foreign oil. This legislation establishes an aggressive, but realistic, growth pattern for ethanol and biodiesel production and use in the U.S."

Commonly produced from soybean and other vegetable oils, biodiesel contains no petroleum. It can be blended easily with diesel. Biodiesel is popular in Europe where motorists use 250 million gallons annually. According to the National Biodiesel Board (NBB), U.S. biodiesel producers are expected to manufacture 20 million gallons in fiscal year 2001, a four-fold increase from last year.

"Biodiesel's growing popularity reflects the increasing interest in it as a cleaner-burning fuel for school buses, national parks, government fleets and for other fuel users across the nation that are addressing air quality issues," said NBB Executive Director Joe Jobe. "A national commitment toward the utilization of renewable fuels will provide a meaningful boost to the biodiesel industry and our national energy policy."

The fuel offers many environmental and operational benefits. It has the highest energy content of any alternative fuel, which is especially important in heavy-duty diesel applications. Biodiesel is the only alternative fuel to have passed the rigorous Health Effects testing requirements of the Clean Air Act; is non-toxic, biodegradable and free of sulfur. Independent studies also show that the use of biodiesel in conventional diesel engines results in a substantial reduction of pollutants, including carbon dioxide. Moreover, it increases the lubricity of diesel, which is especially valuable when the sulfur content of diesel is reduced. Additional information on the attributes of biodiesel is available at www.biodiesel.org.

Every 100 million gallons of biodiesel requires 760 million pounds of a feedstock, such as vegetable oils, recycled grease or animal fats. If soybean oil were the only feedstock used, 100 million gallons of biodiesel would reduce by one-third the current surplus of 2.1 billion pounds of soy oil. Reducing soy oil supplies by this amount would increase the U.S. soy oil price by an estimated 1.5 cents per pound. With 11 pounds of soy oil in a bushel of soybeans, this would raise U.S. soybean prices by as much as 16.5 cents per bushel.



Food Safety Scientists Cite No Basis For Starlink Scare

NEW YORK, N.Y. — "Eat, drink and be wary of those who try to scare you about the safety of your food." That was the message issued recently by food safety scientists at the American Council on Science and Health who noted that the scare about bioengineered foods was distorted and exaggerated — and completely without scientific merit.

The Center for Disease Control's (CDC) found this week that there was no evidence that biotech Starlink corn caused allergic reactions in those who consumed it.

When tests first showed traces of the corn in Taco Bell tacos, anti-biotechnology activists jumped on the fact that the corn was approved for animal, but not human use. But, as the new CDC finding supports, they went too far in insisting that people who ate the corn would become sick from it.

While there was a theory behind why the corn might provoke allergic reactions in some people, the question was whether that hypothesis alone should have been enough to instigate the drastic reaction it prompted. The science shows that it did not.

Yet after the news broke, many people who felt the least bit ill after eating a taco or other corn product assumed it was an allergic reaction to Cyr9C, the protein found in Starlink corn. "Indeed, the activists did such a good job telling us that we'd get sick from the corn, that people actually felt ill," said ACSH president Dr. Elizabeth Whelan.

"People are indeed susceptible to the suggestions from activists that foods will make them sick — even if there is actually nothing in the food to make them sick. If the people did get sick, it was from the activists, not the food," said Dr. Whelan.

She noted ACSH's Priorities for Health article, "Rumble in the Bronx: Mass Hysteria and the 'Chemicalization' of Demonology" which discusses the not so rare phenomenon of mass hysteria, which also took place in Belgium with the Coca-Cola dioxin scare.

According to ACSH Director of Nutrition Dr. Ruth Kava, the activists claim that biotech foods are not tested is simply without basis in fact. "The FDA does indeed thoroughly investigate new bioengineered foods — that's how they knew there might be a possibility of an allergic reaction to the Cry9C protein," she said.

Dr. Kava points out that food allergies are fairly common, but are attributable to food constituents themselves, such as peanut protein, and not to processes, like those used to genetically modify food.

Dr. Kava advises us to learn from history. "The groups that told us we would get sick from Starlink also said, based on one laboratory experiment, that the Monarch butterfly should be nearing extinction because of Bt proteins in corn. But its just not happening."

"This should be a lesson to us," said Dr. Whelan. "Before we create international hysteria about the safety of our food supply, we should be presented with at least a modicum of science to justify the concern."

The American Council on Science and Health is a public health, consumer-education consortium of over 350 scientists and physicians, experts who serve on ACSH's scientific advisory panel. ACSH publishes reports on issues pertaining to the environment, nutrition, pharmaceuticals, and tobacco and helps the public deal with real health risks productively.

CIRCULATION FANS CAN HELP REDUCE HEAT STRESS

Dan F. McFarland
Extension Agent — Agricultural Engineer

After providing shade and an adequate air exchange, air movement can be beneficial by reducing heat stress in dairy cattle.

Air moving across a cow's body can improve the rate of heat loss from her body and also aid in evaporation of moisture from her skin. Circulation fans in the animal space accomplish this by mixing air and minimizing "hot spots."

To help reduce heat stress during hot weather, proper selection, placement, and operation of circulation fans is important. Studies indicate that an air speed of 220 440 feet per minute (2.5-5 mph) is necessary to be beneficial for dairy cattle. Most circulation fans are able to produce air velocities greater than this for a distance of approximately 10 times their diameter (24 inches in diameter for 20 feet; 36 inches in diameter for 30 feet, etc.). However, the guard design, blade design, motor size, and blade speed all affect performance. Dust and dirt build up on the blade and guards can also greatly affect performance.

Some fan manufacturers claim "their" fans are able to move air in the 2-5 mph range for up to 20 times the diameter. However, my evaluation of these fans (with cows in the area) indicates that the spacing should be no more than 15 times the diameter.

Cows influence the effective air movement. Air leaving the fans strikes standing cows and creates a "wind shadow" or an area of little air movement for cows that are downstream. Spacing the fans 10 times their diameter or less (in the direction of airflow) usually provides uniform, effective air movement.

In naturally ventilated shelters, the direction of airflow should follow the predominant prevailing winds during warm weather. However, if quality fans are placed as recommended, performance is still acceptable when breezes come from the opposite direction.

Circulation fans are usually installed with the bottom 7 to 8 feet above the cow alley (out of cow and equipment reach) and tilted 20 to 30 degrees downward.

Circulation fans should be placed in the areas where the cows spend the most time — the resting, feeding, and the milking area. In tiestall barns, a single row over each stall row is adequate, while freestall and loose housing systems generally require multiple rows of fans.

Typical recommendations for freestall shelters place fans over each stall row and at the feeding area. Sometimes a single row of fans is used over head-to-head rows of freestalls. However, in these head-to-head arrangements, the fans should be spaced no further than 8 times their diameter to provide adequate airflow.

In tiestall shelters, fans are usually placed above the front third of the stall. When sidewall fans and perimeter inlets are used to provide an air exchange, some fan suppliers suggest that fans above one stall row move air in one direction while the other row moves in the opposite direction to circulate the air more evenly. However, circulation fans used in conjunction with tunnel ventilation systems should encourage airflow in one direction — toward the exhaust fans.

Circulation fans are useful when the temperatures go above 70 degrees Fahrenheit (or so) in the animal area. Thermostats or sensors with NEMA 4 enclosures should be installed in the animal area and kept clean to accurately sense the conditions. During periods of hot weather, circulation fans improve the cow's ability to get rid of heat at night. Research at the University of Missouri found that core temperature of a cow could be reduced up to 1 degrees Fahrenheit (F) by using circulation fans to aid cooling at night compared to using fans during the day only.

The most effective heat stress abatement systems use circulation fans along with spray or evaporative cooling during hot weather. The next article will discuss cooling systems for dairy cattle using water.

Somerset County Day At The Farm Cancelled

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

SOMERSET (Somerset Co.) — The annual Somerset County Day at the Farm has been cancelled by the Somerset County Farm Bureau, according to Harold Shaulis, Farm Bureau president and chairperson of the event.

Normally the event is scheduled the last Sunday in June, which, this year, would have been June 24.

In arriving at the difficult decision, Shaulis said the agency had to consider livestock at the host farm in view of the potential that some 1,500 visitors could be expected to attend the summer event.

"We did not feel comfortable to ask anybody to put their farm at risk," said Shaulis. "There are too many 'if's,'" he said.

'There are a lot of disappointed people, but they understand. We want to come back bigger and better next year."

Lynette Ely, secretary of the Somerset County Maple Producers Association, which at the last three events has served maple sundaes to the public, was down-to-earth about the news and took a practical view. "It's one of the things that go with farming. You roll with the punches," she said.

"Its sort of symbolic. Some years are good and others aren't," said Ely.

Interestingly, Shaulis said that very few people ask about foot and mouth disease. There tends to be a blase attitude. In general, when people interact with each other and the livestock — as in the very popular petting zoo — to some, the risk potential doesn't seem to be an issue.

"The big thing is (foot and mouth disease) is not a 'people thing,' and they take a lackadaisical attitude about it," said Shaulis.

Shaulis said the success of Somerset County Day at the Farm is owing to a combined effort of many people who handle the afternoon program. Some 100 volunteers roll up their collective sleeves 3-4 months in advance and work to showcase agriculture through commodity samples, demonstrations, hayrides, and so forth. Monetarily, the investment for Day at the Farm, Shaulis said, is $5,000.

"The Farm Bureau organizes it, but we really rely on other people's expertise for segments of the program," said Shaulis.

That would include representatives from the dairy, beef, lamb, maple, potato, beekeeping, and grain industries; 4-H clubs; hoof trimmers; sheep shearers; veterinarians; equipment dealers and other agri-businesses; chemical dealers; and other exhibitors.

Among those helpers, for instance, Dorothy Naugle handles dairy promotion from inside the Little Red Barn owned by the Allied Milk Producers Cooperative, Inc. She is the cooperative's dairy marketing specialist and usually assisted by the dairy princess, dairy maids, or volunteers from the local dairy promotion committee.

Naugle reported they are going to miss the 2001 Day at the Farm, but the feeling of Allied Milk Producers is "better safe than sorry."

Visitors are known to line up at the Little Red Barn for cool and creamy refreshments. The same is true when the mobile dairy bar is used at events throughout Pennsylvania and neighboring states.

The event provides a great venue to reach uninformed urbanites who otherwise couldn't tell you where their food comes from.

"The main objective is to pull in people from urban areas and educate them," said Naugle.

Naugle said up to five area dairies contribute the ice cold milk used at the event.

"Somerset County is called the 'Land of Milk and Maple,' and it is very opportune that the two products can be presented together (at Day at the Farm)," said Ely.

She said that in some ways, though, it is nice to have a break from all the planning.

Prevent a Foot and Mouth Catastrophe

Watch for Signs of Foot and Mouth Disease

Clinical signs of Foot and Mouth Disease (FMD):

Early Signs may include:
- Fever
- Off feed
- Reluctant to move
- Excessive squealing when forced to move

Followed by blisters:
- Just above the hoof and on the heels
- Between the cloven hoofs
- On the snout

If you suspect Foot and Mouth Disease FMD in your herd:

1. Do NOT under any circumstances move any animals off the farm
2. Immediately report suspected case to either the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA) or the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA). Contacts:
   PDA - Dr. Phil Debok at 717-783-8300
   USDA - Dr. Lynne Siegfried at 717-782-3442
3. A veterinarian especially trained to diagnose foreign animal diseases will come to your farm to make the diagnosis.
4. Government programs are in place to reimburse farmers for the value of their animals sacrificed in the control program.

National Scrapie Eradication Program Launched

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. — The National Institute for Animal Agriculture (NIAA) recently announced that it has been awarded a grant from the USDA to carry out a national producer education program for the soon-to-be launched effort to eradicate scrapie from the nation's sheep flocks and goat herds.

"NIAA's role in the program will be to communicate to producers the details of the program both directly and through trade associations and the media," said Glenn N. Slack, NIAA president and chief executive officer. A comprehensive industry awareness and media relations campaign labeled "Eradicate Scrapie!" is underway and will coincide with the publication of new government regulations governing the interstate movement of sheep and goats.

NIAA, successor to the Livestock Conservation Institute (LCI), has played an integral role in past eradication efforts among cattle and swine, including tuberculosis, brucellosis, hog cholera, and pseudorabies. The organization's Sheep Health Committee has been an advocate for scrapie eradication and has encouraged the development of a reliable diagnostic test.

"While we will be sending information directly to producers, we will also be working with the media to further disseminate that will be important for sheep and goat producers to know and understand," said Slack. Eradication initiatives require the support and cooperation at all levels: veterinarians, breed associations, livestock dealers, markets, meat packers, processors, show officials, transporters, and producers and it will be our job to explain what will be required by each segment," he points out.

The goal is to eradicate the disease in 10 years and to have the U.S. recognized internationally as "scrapie-free" in 17 years.

Scrapie is a degenerative and eventually fatal disease affecting the central nervous system in sheep and goats. Its control is complicated because the disease has an extremely long incubation period without clinical signs or symptoms of disease.

Scrapie is a member of the class of diseases called transmissible spongiform encephalopathies (TSEs). Other TSEs include bovine spongiform encephalopathy (BSE, a.k.a. "Mad Cow" disease) and Chronic Wasting Disease among deer and elk.

The NIAA began operations in January 2000. NIAA serves as a forum for building consensus and advancing solutions for animal agriculture professionals and provides continuing education and communication linkages to animal agriculture professionals.

Energy Shortages May Affect Farmers And Consumers' Food Prices

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Californians are not the only people concerned about the current and advancing energy shortage. So are America's farmers. And, in the end, the American consumer will be paying the price if agriculture does not have the energy necessary to produce its crops.

"A disruption of energy supply to U.S. agriculture of even short duration could lead to a substantial reduction or even a complete loss of an entire growing season," David Graves, president and CEO of the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives (NCFC), recently told the House Committee on Agriculture's Subcommittee on Conservation, Credit, Rural Development and Research. Agriculture and the rest of rural America are typically at the end of the energy distribution chain, with fewer supply options and greater vulnerability to disruptions.

"In the event of energy price spikes, farmers as price-takers for their commodity are unable to pass energy or fertilizer price increases on to the consumer, and therefore get an even lower return on their products," says Graves. The USDA recently estimated that price increases during the past few months for energy inputs and fertilizer, if projected into the year, could result in a 1-2 percent increase in total costs of production. "This might not seem significant," Graves says, "however, it becomes a serious matter when one realizes that this cost increase would translate into a one-third decrease in net farm cash income."

To the extent that farmer-owned cooperative businesses are adversely impacted by energy supply disruptions and price spikes, farmer-owners also are harmed through reduced patronage earnings and erosion of their equity investment in their cooperative, resulting in even more of a drop in farmers' net income levels.

NCFC strongly supports President Bush's energy proposals to increase production and reward conservation efforts. To assist agriculture, NCFC recommends the following key provisions be included in the national energy plan:

- Consideration of the special needs and vulnerabilities of agriculture and rural America.
- Responsible and timely measures to open additional geographic areas to environmentally sound domestic natural gas and petroleum exploration and production. An adequate domestic/North American supply of natural gas is particularly critical for farmer-owned and other domestic nitrogen fertilizer manufacturing capacity to remain viable and continue to serve the needs of American farmers.
- A comprehensive approach to debating domestic production options, facilitating dialog and deciding on the full range of energy supply and conservation options and resources, rather than making decisions individually or in isolation.
- Consideration of balanced energy and environmental policy objectives. Too often environmental policy decisions have been made without due consideration for consequences to domestic energy supply and infrastructure.
- Measures to ensure a viable energy supply infrastructure to serve the energy needs of agriculture and rural America.
- Stronger incentives for production and use of renewable energy (ethanol and biodiesel) from agricultural products and animal wastes.
- Financial assistance to farmers when their income is unduly impacted by energy-related price shocks.
- Incentives for energy conservation in agriculture.

Angus juniors gathered in Timonium, Md., May 26 for the 2001 Atlantic National Junior Angus Regional Preview Show. Randy Daniel, Colbert, Ga., evaluated the 250 entries, which included 128 owned females, 56 bred-and-owned females, 14 bred-and-owned bulls, 12 cow-calf pairs, and 40 steers.

Megan Weisel, Louisville, Ohio, showed the reserve grand champion owned female. Dameron PVF Proven Queen010, a January 2000 female first won early spring heifer calf champion.

Chelsea Wieben, Leesburg, Va., won grand champion bred-and-owned female honors with Triple C Sasha Girl. The April 2000 female first won spring heifer calf champion.

Kruegers Scaara 408J claimed reserve grand champion bred-and-owned female. Amy Krueger, Coatesville, owns the November 1999 female that first won senior heifer calf champion.

Mandy Richardson, Louisa, Va., showed the reserve grand champion bred-and-owned bull, Clear View Rocker.

Korona was named reserve grand champion registered Angus steer for Clayton Wieben, Waterford, Va.

A complete list of winners follows:

NFU Approves Decision To Deny California Clean Air Waiver

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Farmers Union (NFU) has praised the Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) decision to reject California's request for a waiver of the federal oxygen content requirement for reformulated gasoline. The family farmer and rancher organization applauded the action as a benefit for farmers, rural communities and all Americans who enjoy clean air, clean water, and reliable sources of energy.

"The action by the administration to maintain clean air standards is good policy," said NFU President Leland Swenson. "It is good for farmers and rural communities. It is good for consumers who need clean, safe and reliable fuel sources. We need policies that recognize that the solutions to many of today's energy and environmental challenges can be found on the farm."

Farmers Union has endorsed legislation establishing a renewable fuels standard (RFS), introduced by Sens. Tom Daschle, D-S.D., and Richard Lugar, R-Ind., that triples the demand for renewable fuels over the next decade to more than four billion gallons per year and promotes clean air.

NFU, in its farm bill proposal offered to Congress, also calls for establishing a renewable energy reserve that would store a reliable, one-year supply of commodities dedicated to meet growing demands for ethanol, biodiesel and other crop-based fuels.

California requested a waiver from clean air standards after the state, like many others, decided to phase out the oxygenate methyl tertiary butyl ether (MTBE) due to its propensity to create groundwater contamination.

"The demand for ethanol, biodiesel and other renewables is on the increase," Swenson added. "Farmers are eager to produce for this market. Americans continue to recognize the importance and value of renewable, farm-produced sources of fuel and energy. We commend the administration for its leadership on this important policy matter."

Veneman Says U.S. Farmers To Benefit From Recent China Agreement

WASHINGTON, D.C. — U.S. Agriculture Secretary Ann M. Veneman said that China's recent bilateral commitments pave the way for significantly increased U.S. access to the world's most populous market.

"We are very pleased that the United States and China have now resolved one of the last remaining bilateral issues in China's bid to join the World Trade Organization (WTO), Veneman said. For America's farmers, ranchers, and food processors, China's entry into the rules-based WTO trading system will mean an increase of about $2 billion a year in agricultural exports.

In trade negotiations in Shanghai last week, U.S. and Chinese trade officials reached agreement on the major remaining bilateral issues in China's WTO accession, including the issue of domestic agricultural subsidies. China agreed to limit its use of trade-distorting domestic agricultural subsidies to 8.5 percent of the total value of its agricultural production, below the 10-percent level allowed for developing countries under the WTO. China also agreed to an 8.5 percent cap on supports for specific products and waived the separate WTO exemption permitting developing countries to provide unlimited investment and input subsidies for agricultural and rural development.

Veneman said several steps still remain in finalizing the multilateral WTO accession process, but with these latest commitments from China, the U.S. can look forward to prospects for welcoming China and its 1.3 billion people into the world trading system. For U.S. producers, processors, and exporters, this will mean a significant expansion in future trade opportunities.

Under various WTO accession agreements, China has agreed to slash trade barriers and open its markets. For example, in the 1999 U.S.-China accession agreement, China agreed to cut tariffs by more than half on priority U.S. agricultural products such as beef, poultry, cheese, oranges, apples, wine, almonds, and others. With WTO entry, China also agreed to end import bans, expand trading rights for U.S. firms, and eliminate agricultural export subsidies.

Even with current trade barriers, China is one of the leading markets for U.S. farm and food products. Sales of U.S. agricultural products to China totaled $1.7 billion last year.

ASA Applauds New Legislation To Give Fuel Suppliers Partial Exemption To Diesel Fuel Excise Tax

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The American Soybean Association (ASA) have commended Senators Tim Hutchinson (R-AR) and Mark Dayton (D-MN) for introducing the "Biodiesel Renewable Fuels Act." The legislation (S. 1058) would provide a partial exemption to the diesel fuel excise tax to fuel suppliers who choose to include low-blend biodiesel. "

Soybean farmers, the public as well as fuel providers and users benefit from this legislation," said ASA First Vice President Bart Ruth, a producer from Rising City, Neb. "It boosts the farm market for soybean oil, which is used to make biodiesel. Furthermore, it helps the public and fuel users reap the rewards of a cleaner-burning domestically produced fuel."

"The production and use of biofuels offers our nation a safe, renewable source of energy for travel and transport, not to mention the long-term economic benefits for farmers and consumers," Senator Hutchinson said. "That is why I am introducing the Biodiesel Renewable Fuels Act. This bill encourages the use of biodiesel, establishing a tax credit for manufacturers who produce a blend of conventional diesel and soybean or oilseed additives.

"By reducing the diesel fuel excise tax, suppliers will receive a 3 cent per gallon credit for using a diesel blend that contains at least 2 percent biodiesel. I believe a tax incentive for soy-based biodiesel will increase domestic production and capture the agricultural, environmental and economical benefits associated with using this renewable source of energy."

"Renewable fuels need to be a key part of our national energy policy," Senator Dayton said. "With surging energy prices in Minnesota and across the country hitting consumers, businesses, farmers, and communities, we need to explore new options - such as encouraging production of biodiesel - which will help decrease U.S. dependence on foreign oil and help the farm economy," Dayton said. "In addition, biodiesel is an environmentally sound resource that will reduce emissions from motor fuels. Further, as we increase demand for soybeans, we are investing in the economic well being of farmers and rural communities across the country."

The biodiesel tax incentive would provide a partial exemption to the federal excise tax in the amount of 3 cents for diesel fuel that contains 2 percent biodiesel. This approach is similar to the partial tax exemption for ethanol, which provides a 5.4 percent exemption for gasoline that contains 10 percent ethanol. (Biodiesel and ethanol are complementary renewable fuels since they are made from different agricultural co-products and are sold in separate fuel markets.)

The proposal would boost farm prices and save taxpayer dollars. Every 100 million gallons of biodiesel requires 760 million pounds of a feedstock, such as vegetable oils, recycled grease or animal fats. If soybean oil were the only feedstock used, 100 million gallons of biodiesel would reduce by one-third the current surplus of 2.1 billion pounds of soy oil. Reducing soy oil supplies by this amount would increase the U.S. soy oil price by an estimated 1.5 cents per pound. With 11 pounds of soy oil in a bushel of soybeans, this would raise U.S. soybean prices by as much as 16.5 cents per bushel.

The new legislation would save taxpayer dollars because it would reimburse the Federal Highway Trust Fund through U.S. Department of Agriculture's Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC). The cost to the CCC would be offset, at least initially, by the savings from increased biodiesel sales that would reduce government expenditures under the soybean marketing loan program.

For example, if 100 million gallons of biodiesel were used under this program, it would be blended at 2 percent per gallon into five billion gallons of diesel fuel. At a cost of 3 cents per gallon, the cost of the program would be $150 million.

Reduced soybean oil surpluses will result in higher soybean prices, and raising soybean prices in the marketplace would reduce CCC outlays under the soybean marketing loan program.

Using a conservative 13 cents per bushel impact on price, the cost savings on this year's estimated 3.0 billion bushel soybean crop would be $390 million. As a result, the proposal will save more than two dollars for each dollar it costs.

Biodiesel is commonly produced from soybean oil, which is currently in surplus and depresses the price of soybeans and other oilseed crops. Biodiesel contains no petroleum, but it can be blended easily with diesel or used in its pure form.

The fuel offers many environmental and operational benefits. It has the highest energy content of any alternative fuel, which is especially important in heavy-duty diesel applications. Biodiesel is the only alternative fuel to have passed the rigorous Health Effects testing requirements of the Clean Air Act, and it is nontoxic, biodegradable and free of sulfur.

Independent studies also show that the use of biodiesel in conventional diesel engines results in a substantial reduction of emissions, including carbon dioxide and other air toxics. Moreover, it increases the lubricity of diesel, which is especially valuable when the sulfur content of diesel is reduced. Additional information on the attributes of biodiesel is available at www.biodiesel.org

ASA Urges Increased Use Of Biodiesel

SAINT LOUIS, Mo. — The American Soybean Association (ASA) is pleased that the Bush Administration's National Energy Policy Report released recently recognized biodiesel for its positive contributions to the nation's energy supply, the environment and the economy. However, the Association is disappointed that it did not contain specific recommendations that would facilitate increased biodiesel utilization.

To facilitate biodiesel reaching its potential, ASA is calling for the Administration and Congress to support ASA's two-pronged approach. ASA's plan would require up to three percent of all motor fuels sold in the United States in 10 years to be either biodiesel or ethanol, and provide a tax exemption that would make biodiesel more price competitive.

"The Administration made an important statement about the value of biodiesel and other renewable fuels," said ASA President Tony Anderson, a soybean producer from Mount Sterling, Ohio. "It is now key for the Administration and Congress to work together to take the specific actions that will help the biodiesel market grow to benefit the nation, the environment and farm prices."

Earlier this week, Senator Chuck Hagel (R-NE) and Tim Johnson (D-SD) spearheaded a letter from 18 Senators to Vice President Richard Cheney in support of biodiesel and ethanol in the National Energy Policy Report. The Senators stated that biodiesel and ethanol could meet three percent of the U.S. motor fuel market within 10 years — providing energy, environmental and economic benefits for the nation. A three percent market share for biodiesel and ethanol would displace about nine billion gallons of motor fuels annually or between 500,000 and 600,000 barrels of crude oil each day.

Biodiesel is commonly produced from soybean oil, which is currently in surplus and depresses the price of soybeans and other oilseeds. It contains no petroleum, but it can be blended easily with diesel. Biodiesel is popular in Europe where motorists use 250 million gallons annually. According to the National Biodiesel Board, U.S. biodiesel producers are expected to manufacture 20 million gallons in fiscal year 2001, a fourfold increase from last year.

Strong public support is essential to develop the biodiesel market since traditional U.S. usage and policies are focused on petroleum products. Therefore, ASA and the National Corn Growers Association are supporting a flexible and user-friendly national fuels program that would gradually increase the percentage of biodiesel and ethanol used in the national fuel market.

ASA's recommendation for a biodiesel tax incentive would provide a partial exemption to the diesel fuel excise tax similar to the partial tax exemption for ethanol. The amount of the exemption would be three cents for diesel fuel that contains two percent biodiesel. This approach is similar to the partial tax exemption for ethanol, which provides a 5.4 percent exemption for gasoline that contains ten percent ethanol. (Biodiesel and ethanol are complementary renewable fuels since they are sold in separate fuel markets.)

The proposal would boost farm prices and save taxpayer dollars. Every 100 million gallons of biodiesel requires 760 million pounds of a feedstock, such as vegetable oils, recycled grease or animal fats. If soybean oil were the only feedstock used, 100 million gallons of biodiesel would reduce by one-third the current surplus of 2.1 billion pounds of soy oil. Reducing soy oil supplies by this amount would increase the U.S. soy oil price by an estimated 1.5 cents per pound. With 11 pounds of soy oil in a bushel of soybeans, this would raise U.S. soybean prices by as much as 16.5 cents per bushel.

The initiative would save taxpayer dollars because ASA is proposing to reimburse the Federal Highway Trust Fund through USDA's Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC). The cost to the CCC would be offset, at least initially, by the savings from increased biodiesel sales that would reduce government expenditures under the soybean marketing loan program.

For example, if 100 million gallons of biodiesel were used under this program, it would be blended at two percent per gallon into five billion gallons of diesel fuel. At a cost of three cents per gallon, the cost of the program would be $150 million.

As a result, the proposal will save more than two dollars for each dollar it costs.

Furthermore, biodiesel users and the public would benefit from the fuel's many operational and environmental benefits. In particular, biodiesel can increase the lubricity of diesel, which will be of great benefit when the sulfur content of diesel is reduced. Independent studies also show that the use of biodiesel in conventional diesel engines results in a substantial reduction of harmful emissions, including carbon dioxide. Ag Council To Host Summer Research Tour

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Building on the success of last year's Summer Research Tour, the Penn State Ag Council will host this year's event, "Food Safety and Emerging Diseases — Research Protecting Agriculture and Consumers," on Thursday, July 19, from 9 a.m.-3:30 p.m. here at the Ag Arena.

A panel discussion, "Grill the Scientist," will also be included as a part of the program. A luncheon is included.

Legislators and their staff are invited to attend the tour. County extension directors are encouraged to bring county commissioners to the tour as well.

The tour presents an opportunity to learn more about food safety, emerging diseases, and the college's research activities.

Researchers Test Yeast's Anti-Scab Mettle

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A beneficial yeast is making its debut in the first wide-scale U.S. tests comparing effectiveness of biological and chemical controls for Fusarium head blight, also known as scab disease. Tests are under way in small experimental plots scattered across the East.

Scab is getting attention because losses attributed to it in the past decade have been estimated in excess of $3 billion to U.S. farmers.

An obscure yeast called Cryptococcus nodaensis was chosen for the new tests through laboratory and field experiments. It and six runners-up were selected from about 1,000 yeasts and bacteria screened by plant pathologists with the Agricultural Research Service and Ohio State University (OSU). OSU and the USDA have applied for a patent on the "magnificent seven" microbes.

At the ARS National Center for Agricultural Utilization Research (NCAUR) at Peoria, Ill., David A. Schisler and his colleagues researched conditions needed to reproduce the best yeast at top speed. This spring, they supplied sufficient microbes for the Uniform Wheat Fungicide Trials. This cooperative project, funded by USDA through the U.S. Wheat and Barley Scab Initiative, will provide direct comparisons of scab control measures, in various environments, from year to year. The experiment stations involved include those of Arkansas, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, South Dakota and Virginia.

The researchers weighed their choices of microbes according to several considerations, one of which was the microbes' resistance to registered and experimental fungicides. Other considerations included the microbes' ability to grow on low-cost sources of carbon and nitrogen, their ability to survive and remain healthy in storage, and their effectiveness after storage in arresting the growth of Fusarium graminearum, the fungus that causes scab.

For the field tests, the researchers grew C. nodaensis on a growth medium reminiscent of the corn steep liquor-based medium used in the 1940s at NCAUR in penicillin-production experiments that helped launch the antibiotics industry.

ARS, the USDA's chief scientific research agency, is seeking cooperators to speed development of the biological control technology.

First State Antique Tractor Club Show Sept. 22

GREENWOOD, Del. — A group of very enthusiastic people have formed the First State Antique Tractor Club, which will have an antique tractor show Sept. 22, from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. here at Yoder Farms.

The farm is located at the Deep Grass and Hunting Quarter intersection off Rt. 36 on Memory Lane.

There will be antique tractors, cars, trucks, toys, hit-and-miss engines, and numerous other antique equipment. The first 255 entrants will receive a collectible dash plaque from the show.

Several craftsmen will also conduct demonstrations. In addition, there will be a flea market and games with antique tractors, plus a kiddie tractor pull.

An auction is scheduled for 1 p.m. with member Truman Schrock as auctioneer. Entertainment will be provided at noon and again at 3 p.m. by Royal Sounds from Lancaster County.

Delicious food will be provided by Tressler Mennonite Church and the Improved Order of Red Men of Delaware. It will consist of scrapple sandwiches, hot dogs, hamburgers, barbecued chicken, and homemade ice cream, just to name a few menu items.

You do not have to own a tractor or even live in Delaware to join the club. The club welcomes anyone who is interested in antique machinery. The club will be accepting charter memberships at $25 until Sept. 22.

Revised Drought Regulations May Be Approved By Mid-Summer

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — After nearly a year and a half, proposed drought management regulations could be approved as early as mid-July. After the 1999 drought emergency, Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) worked closely with the Pennsylvania Emergency Management Agency (PEMA) to modernize Chapters 118, 119 and 120 of the drought management regulations. The proposed changes must be approved by the appropriate House and Senate committees, the Independent Regulatory Review Commission and the Attorney General.

Barring any unforeseen issues, publication of the final regulations in the Pennsylvania Bulletin could occur and the revised regulations could become effective in July or early August.

Key changes to the regulations include:

- The regulations will be effective at all times, as compared to only during drought emergencies; however, mandatory water use restrictions will continue to be effective only during emergencies;
- A commonwealth drought coordinator (CDC) will be a permanent position, as compared to only during drought emergencies. This allows for more full-time drought management and better preparation for drought emergencies;

Revisions to the nonessential water use restrictions include:

- Providing greater flexibility for the use of modern, water-efficient irrigation systems for landscaping;
- Managing golf course irrigation on the basis of a metered percentage of historical usage and virtually eliminating daytime syringing;
- Managing sand-athletic field irrigation based upon metered usage;
- Managing athletic field irrigation separately from lawn or other grass watering;
- Allowing limited use of a hose to wash vehicles;
- Allowing use of water falls and fountains to aerate fish ponds and water gardens; and
- Allowing the washing of vehicles and paved surfaces related to the processing, transportation and vending of food and pharmaceuticals, as necessary to protect public health.

SRBC Kicks Off Stream Signage Grant Program

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Susquehanna River Basin Commission (SRBC) recently announced the start-up of its new Susquehanna River Basin Stream Signage Grant Program to fund the installation of signs (PENNDOT-approved) identifying streams, rivers, and creeks in the Pennsylvania portion of the Susquehanna River Basin. The signs will be placed immediately before bridges of state-owned roads that cross over the waterways.

Organizations eligible to apply for the signs include watershed organizations, local municipalities, schools and civic groups, such as 4-H clubs, scouts, key clubs, and others. Selected organizations will not receive direct funding. Instead, SRBC will reimburse a vendor for the cost of producing the signs and local municipalities for the cost of installing them. The signs will be the standard PENNDOT-approved metal sign with reflectorized blue background and white lettering.

According to Paul Swartz, SRBC Executive Director, the stream signage program is a good educational tool to connect people to their watersheds. The signage program is being funded by a grant from the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection's Growing Greener program.

"By raising public awareness, we encourage people to protect their water resources," said Swartz. "Once again, Pennsylvania's Growing Greener program is helping to put people into action to protect their local resources."

SRBC mailed nearly 400 grant application packets this week to potentially interested groups in the Pennsylvania portion of the Susquehanna basin. Grant applications also can be downloaded from SRBC's Website at www.srbc.net. Interested organizations must submit complete grant applications to SRBC by September 30, postmarked no later than September 30. SRBC will select eligible projects largely on a first-come, first-serve basis within the different subbasins. Successful applicants will be notified beginning mid-November 2001.

The SRBC is the governing agency established under a 100-year compact signed on Dec. 24, 1970 by the federal government and the states of New York, Pennsylvania and Maryland to protect and wisely manage the water resources of the Susquehanna River Basin. The Susquehanna River starts in Cooperstown, N.Y., and flows 444 miles to Havre de Grace, Md., where the river meets the Chesapeake Bay.

Arden Landis shows off a field of Sudan grass destined for a direct harvest by his herd of dairy cows. Landis said he will turn in the cows when the grass is about a foot tall and they will graze it down "with no hesitation."

About 50 people toured Landis' pastures Thursday to view paddocks featuring a smorgasboard of grass and legume mixtures that Landis is testing for maximum productivity in his intensive grazing operation near Kirkwood. One of the paddocks combines orchardgrass, red and white clovers, and a grass hybrid of meadow fescue and perennial ryegrass.

The tour was one of a series of pasture walks being sponsored by Penn State Cooperative Extension and Lancaster County Graziers throughout the summer.

Northeast Order Uniform Price For May 2001

BOSTON, Mass. — Erik F. Rasmussen, market administrator for the Northeast Marketing Area, has announced that the statistical uniform price paid by milk dealers (handlers) regulated under the Northeast Order for May 2001 is $16.32 per hundredweight ($1.40 per gallon) for milk delivered to plants located in Suffolk County, Mass. (Boston). The May statistical uniform price is $16.22 for delivery to plants in New York, N.Y., and $16.12 for delivery to plants in Philadelphia.

The statistical uniform price is the benchmark minimum producer blend price paid to dairy farmers, prior to allowable deductions, for milk containing 3.5 percent butterfat, 2.99 percent protein, and 5.69 percent other solids. The price received by an individual dairy farmer will vary as the component composition of a farm's milk differs from the established benchmarks and by the location of the plant(s) to which the farm's milk is delivered.

Rasmussen also stated that the producer price differential (PPD) for May is $2.49 per hundredweight for milk delivered to plants located in Suffolk County, Mass. The PPD represents each producer's share of the value generated by the marketwide pool on a hundredweight basis. The PPD, which is added to the payment producers receive for their milk's components, is adjusted for the location of the receiving plant. The statistical uniform price and PPD decrease by scheduled amounts the more distant the plant receiving producer milk is from Suffolk County, Mass.

The Class prices for milk pooled in May are as follows: Class I, $17.46 (Suffolk County, Mass.); Class II, $15.72; Class III, $13.83; and Class IV, $15.04. Comparable prices for May 2000 were: Class I, $14.73; Class II, $12.63; Class III, $9.37; and Class IV, price $11.91. The component values for May are protein, $1.9108 per pound; butterfat, $2.1191 per pound; other solids, $0.1229 per pound; and nonfat solids, $0.8780 per pound.

Milk receipts from producers totaled 2.196 billion pounds. Class I utilization, milk processed as beverage milk, was 41.1 percent of producer milk receipts. The average Class I utilization was 41.0 percent in May 2000.

The manufacture of Class II products such as cream, ice cream, yogurt, and cottage cheese utilized 14.9 percent of producer milk. Milk used to manufacture Class III products such as cheese (American and Italian) and evaporated and condensed products utilized 33.5 percent of total milk receipts. Class IV usage (butter, nonfat and whole milk powder) equaled 10.5 percent of the total.

Donald R. Chase Succeeds Richard M. Cromack As Chairman Of The Board Of Trustees Of Eastern States Exposition

WEST SPRINGFIELD, Mass. — The board of trustees of Eastern States exposition voted to accept the retirement of its Chairman Richard M. Cromack, at the annual trustees' meeting conducted May 17 in West Springfield, Mass. Cromack is succeeded by Donald R. Chase, president and CEO of Westbank Corporation, who previously served as vice chairman.

Cromack was elected a trustee of the Exposition in 1981 and became chairman in 1992 with the retirement of William A. Franks, Jr. In Cromack's initial year as chairman, the Exposition hosted its first ever 17 day, three weekend Big E, one of the most significant changes in the fair's history. 1994 also saw the completion of Phase 1 of an ambitious capital improvement plan that involved the renovation of the south side of the fairgrounds and included the construction of the food court.

Phase 2 of the master plan took place following the 1996 fair and involved adding 67,325 square feet to the Mallary Agricultural Complex. The ribbon cutting took place during the 1997 fair and the 133,175 square foot state-of-the-art building showcased all competitive livestock under one roof as well as the avenue of agriculture and new milking parlor.

In 1996, the Exposition celebrated its 75th anniversary with a major "Diamond Jubilee" exhibit. A video and book chronicling the remarkable history of the organization and the Big E were also produced in conjunction with the anniversary.

During Cromack's tenure, a strategic long range plan was instituted and the Eastern State Exposition Foundation was established.

"Dick Cromack was an intuitive leader with vision, drive and integrity. His business acumen and agricultural background proved invaluable to Eastern States Exposition," said Wayne McCary, president and chief executive officer of ESE.

Cromack is the retired president and chief executive officer of Greenfield Cooperative Bank and part-time sheep farmer. A resident of Colrain, Mass., he has been involved with ESE since 1975 when his children first exhibited in the Exposition's livestock shows.

At the annual trustees' meeting, Donald R. Chase was unanimously elected chairman of the board of directors of Eastern States Exposition. A resident of West Springfield, Mass., he is president and chief executive officer of Westbank Corporation. Chase has served as an Exposition trustee since 1993 and was appointed vice chairman in 1999.

"Don Chase brings to the leadership outstanding business skills as well as the unique perspective of a West Springfield native," President McCary said of the new leader.

Chase has been associated with Westbank Corporation for more than 27 years in varying capacities and was appointed to the boards of both of its subsidiaries, Park West Bank and Trust Company, where he became president in 1988, and Cargill Bank of Connecticut in 1999.

In addition to Chairman Chase, the following were voted in as officers by the Exposition's 170 trustees:

Carla W. Newton, an attorney with Robinson, Donovan, Madden & Barry, PC, first vice chairman; Jon Steele, vice president of operations, Northeast Region, U.S. Post Office, second vice chairman; Robert H. Carnevale, president and chief executive officer, Palmer Goodell Insurance Agency, Inc., treasurer; and Richard L. Nickless, retired owner of Nickless Associates, secretary.

This year's Big E takes place Sept. 14-30 in West Springfield, Mass.

Penn State Agronomy Dept. Changes Name

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — To better reflect the scope of its work, the agronomy department in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences will be known as the department of crop and soil sciences effective July 1.

The department's title was changed after extensive consultation with faculty, alumni and agricultural industry professionals, according to A.J. Turgeon, professor of turfgrass management and interim department head.

"We made the change for the sake of clarity," Turgeon says. "Agronomy has always been about crop production and soil resources, but it's an older term that a lot of people aren't familiar with. Many other departments have changed their names for the same reason.

"Our research and extension activities in production agriculture, environmental stewardship and land use policy won't change. Our faculty have actively researched and trained graduate students in these areas for years. But, acknowledging soil science in the departmental name should enhance our ability to attract the best students.

"Soil is the fundamental medium that supports all of mankind's activities," says Turgeon. "We grow our food in soil, build our buildings on it, play on it and dispose of our wastes in it. We will continue to conduct research and teach in areas important to the agriculture sector and all the citizens of the commonwealth."

National Grange Creates Three New Executive Positions

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Grange has created three new executive positions as the first steps in executing its strategic plan to create a new and more relevant Grange.

The Chief Operating Officer will be the operational head of the National Grange, with all staff functions reporting to him or her. The COO will report to the National Master and the Executive Committee and be responsible for ensuring that the National office is response to State, Pomona, and Subordinate Grange needs, implementing the strategic plan, fund raising and advancement of the National office's technological capabilities. According to National Grange Master Kermit Richardson, Oct. 1, is the target date for filling the COO position.

The enrichment director position will be responsible for developing a core group of programs that meets the needs of members through the local Grange. The strategic plan calls for new programming that is community orientated as well as enriching, entertaining and enlightening for current members.

The enrichment director will work with states as requested to identify program sources. This position will be based outside the National headquarters. Richardson said that the Grange would like to fill that position shortly after the new COO comes on board.

The Leadership/Membership Director will conduct leadership training at the state and local levels, be a liaison with the new experimental "action Granges," and identify and train counterparts throughout the Grange states. He or she will also be responsible for membership growth and retention. This position will also be based outside the National Headquarters. The target for filling the Leadership/Membership position is no later than January 2002.

The job descriptions and application information are posted on the Grange Website at www.nationalgrang.org or call Richard Weiss at 1-888-447-2643, ext. 105 for faxed or mailed copies.

"We are now in the implementation stage of the strategic plan, and these positions are critical to successfully executing that plan. They offer great opportunity and challenge to affect change that will make the Grange relevant and meaningful to generations to come," stated Master Richardson.

Susquehanna River Basin Commission Reports On Water Levels

Northeast Part Of State Has Lowest

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

ABERDEEN, Md. — The Susquehanna River Basin Commission (SRBC) met here for a public meeting June 14 to conduct business and report on water conditions in the river basin, which includes all or part of more than 40 Pennsylvania counties.

The commission reported decreasing groundwater levels throughout the region for the month of May.

George Lazorchick, acting chief of water management, said this Thursday that eight counties in the northeastern and central region of the state have been showing record low groundwater levels. Two of those counties — Monroe and Wayne — received significant precipitation last week from hurricane Allison, but Susquehanna, Luzerne, Schuylkill, Lycoming, and Mifflin counties have received little relief.

At this point, water levels in the basin are "roughly divided by the Blue Mountain ridge" that passes through Dauphin, Lebanon, and Berks counties, Lazorchick said.

Although the southeastern part of the state — including Lancaster county — also saw a sharp decrease in groundwater levels in May, precipitation in June has provided some relief.

"The southeast part of the basin is a little better off than the rest (of the basin)," Lazorchick said.

For those counties in the northeastern part of the state, however, lack of significant rainfall may soon bring drought conditions.

"If precipitation deficits continue, a drought designation will be made in the near future," Lazorchick said.

At this point, Lazorchick said that the SRBC is recommending a 5 to 10 percent voluntary reduction in water usage within the basin. Water users should "conserve whenever possible," he said.

Drought designations for Pennsylvania are made by the state, while the SRBC serves as a coordinator of information across the state lines of Maryland, Pennsylvania, and New York, Lazorchick said.

The three drought designations are watch, warning, and emergency.

The SRBC declared a drought emergency in July of 1999 that covered virtually the entire Susquehanna basin and went into effect in conjunction with each of the three state's emergency declarations.

According to a March 2001 publication of the SRBC, the Susquehanna basin experienced droughts in 1991, 1995, 1997, 1998, and 1999. The 1999 drought emergency was "the culmination of a continuous, multiple-year drought," according to the report.

As a result of the 1999 drought, the SRBC is striving to better galvanize its drought coordination and management efforts. Initiatives include greater coordination with surrounding states and improved communication with the public on drought issues.

The SRBC was established in 1970 under the Susquehanna River Basin Compact to "coordinate water resources efforts of the three states and the federal government."

Part of the SRBC's role is to regulate withdrawal and consumption of water in the basin. Permits from the commission are required for any users consuming more than 20,000 gallons of water per day, or withdrawing more than 100,000 gallons.

Pennsylvania Farmers Help Unveil New Farm Bill To Congress

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Robert Junk of Uniontown; Vivian Brubaker of Honey Grove; and Andrew Brubaker, also of Honey Grove; recently returned from three days of meetings with members of Congress to unveil National Farmers Union's new legislative proposal to restore prosperity to American agriculture and rural communities.

The three joined farmers from across the country for the National Farmers Union (NFU) grassroots effort in Washington, D.C., where participants pressed lawmakers for swift and decisive action to enact legislation that allows producers to receive a reasonable income from the marketplace, provides an adequate budget for the department of agriculture, and ensures adequate emergency assistance and safety net.

"The fly-in was an excellent opportunity for us to bring our concerns directly to lawmakers," said Junk, also president of Pennsylvania Farmers Union. "We called on Congress to enact legislation that takes into account the true costs of production and real value that we provide to our communities, our country, and the world. I think our message was one they were ready to hear. I look forward to seeing their efforts as they address the challenges facing America's producers."

The delegation met with members of Congress and the administration, including Reps. Tim Holden, D-Pa., Frank Mascara, D-Pa., and John Peterson, R-Pa. Farmers Union's legislative initiative provides a strong farm safety net based on a counter-cyclical plan that equalizes community loan rates by adjusting them upward; establishes a renewable fuels standard to create more demand for our nation's renewable commodities and to help the energy crisis; and provides other assistance measures and incentives that take into account the rising costs of production and depressed commodity prices faced by America's family farmers.

Also included are proposals for commodity reserves for humanitarian assistance; renewable fuels and supplemental risk management; a supply management proposal giving the agriculture secretary authority to establish a voluntary set-aside program; provisions to protect dairy farmers with adequate price supports and from illegal and trade-distorting uses of imported Milk Protein Concentrate (MPC); and the need for mandatory country-of-origin labeling for meats and produce.

"We need real solutions to the many economic, social, and environmental challenges facing America's farmers," Vivian Brubaker said. "I hope our presence helped inform and inspire Congress to pass a sound farm package for rural America."

NFU: Farmers First Victims

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Farmers Union (NFU), in the wake of a recent discussion by the House Agriculture Committee to limit farm economic assistance to $5.5 billion, said that the budget process has not provided enough funding for farmers and rural communities that continue to struggle due to low commodity prices and increasing input costs.

The family farmer and rancher organization recommended that approximately $2.5 billion in emergency ad hoc assistance be provided for this crop year.

"We are disappointed that the latest budget process has left the agriculture community with less than what is needed at this most crucial time," said NFU President Leland Swenson.

Farmers Union is calling for ad hoc assistance of at least $2.5 billion in additional funds to be allocated apart from the $5.5 billion recommended by the administration and voted by the House Agriculture Committee on Wednesday. NFU's request reflects this year's needs that are comparable to those of previous years' economic and emergency assistance. Farmers and ranchers face budget constraints compounded by a tax policy while they continue to face low commodity prices and rising costs for fuel, fertilizer, energy and other inputs.

Nearly 50,000 Acres In Pennsylvania Offered For Crop Reserve Enrollment

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania Game Commission Executive Director Vern Ross last week announced that farmers and rural landowners have offered nearly 50,000 acres toward the 100,000-acre goal for enrollment in the Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program (CREP).

"Not only will this program benefit small game hunting, but it also will go a long way toward improving water quality and reducing soil erosion into the Susquehanna and Potomac river basins. The Pennsylvania CREP represents a major step in the state's efforts to help restore our watersheds and meet Gov. Tom Ridge's upstream commitments to help protect the Chesapeake Bay," Ross said.

Eligible land must have a cropping history or be marginal pasture. Land must be planted with conservation cover such as native warm-season grasses, cool-season grasses and legumes, or trees and shrubs. Farmers and landowners are offered annual rental payments (rental rates will vary by county and soil type, but range from about $55 to $200 per acre), with the possibility of a one-time bonus payment for implementing certain conservation practices, such as riparian forest buffers, grass filter strips, or creating wetlands. Landowners also receive up to 100 percent cost-share for installing such practices.

CREP does not target Pennsylvania's best farmland, but rather focuses on those lands in most need of conservation. The program will influence less than three percent of the farmland in the 20 counties eligible for CREP, but it will positively influence water quality, recovery of declining wildlife populations and farm income.

USDA began taking offers for enrollment in CREP on June 1, 2000. Program enrollment will remain open until at least Sept. 30, 2002, or until the 100,000-acre cap is reached. So far, more than 1,600 landowners have offered 49,236 acres for enrollment in CREP in the 20-county region.

A listing of the total acres offered through May 15, for enrollment in the eligible counties is: Adams, 1,573 acres; Bedford, 2,000 acres; Berks, 1,039 acres; Chester, 397 acres; Columbia, 6,340 acres; Cumberland, 847 acres; Dauphin, 2,913 acres; Franklin, 1,802 acres; Fulton, 1,530 acres; Juniata, 1,266 acres; Lancaster, 636 acres; Lebanon, 234 acres; Montour, 2,425 acres; Northumberland, 8,869 acres; Perry, 826 acres; Schuylkill, 3,819 acres; Somerset, 4,080 acres; Snyder, 3,180 acres; Union, 1,777 acres; and York, 3,682 acres.

Klinger noted that wildlife habitat biologists have completed eligibility determinations for 1,036 landowners on about 28,000 acres. He also said that wildlife habitat biologists have completed nearly 700 conservation plans encompassing more than 19,000 acres. Nearly 7,300 of those planned acres also are part of the Game Commission's Cooperative Farm-Game Program, which has improved hunter access to private property for more than 60 years. Almost 5,000 acres are planned to be planted this spring with native warm-season grasses, and nearly 800 acres are forested riparian buffers.

Landowners interested in participating in CREP are encouraged to contact the habitat biologist assigned to their respective county:

- Brian Wolff is working with landowners in Bedford, Fulton and Somerset counties. He can be reached at (814) 445-6876, ext. 130;
- Colleen DeLong is working with landowners in Northumberland and Union counties. She can be reached at (570) 286-7114, ext. 114;
- Dean Shank is working with landowners in Adams and York counties. He can be reached at (717) 334-2317, ext. 119;
- Sharon Scarborough is working with landowners in Cumberland and Franklin counties. She can be reached at (717) 249-3924, ext. 113;
- Roger Coup is working with landowners in Dauphin, Lebanon and Perry counties. He can be reached at (717) 921-2380, ext. 180;
- Scott Singer is working with landowners in Columbia and Montour counties. He can be reached at (570) 784-1062, ext. 126;
- Kevin Wenner is working with landowners in Berks and Schuylkill counties. He can be reached at (570) 622-1312, ext. 119;
- Chad Spencer is working with landowners in Juniata and Snyder counties. He can be reached at (570) 837-0007, ext. 113; and
- Josh Homyack is working with landowners in Chester and Lancaster counties. He can be reached at (717) 396-9423.

Landowners also may contact the USDA Service Center in their county, which is listed in the telephone book blue pages.

Farmers Sought To Serve As Sustainable Farmer Educators

BURLINGTON, Vt. — Northeast Sustainable Agriculture Research and Education (SARE) announces a new program to promote sustainable agriculture in which three farmers will be selected to serve as Sustainable Farmer Educators.

These farmers will be proven experts in their fields who have experience sharing their knowledge with other farmers, extension educators and other agricultural professionals. They will have spoken at meetings, conferences, workshops, seminars, and field days, answered questions by telephone, e-mail and fax, and otherwise generously responded to requests for help and information.

In the upcoming year, Northeast SARE will reimburse these Sustainable Farmer-Educators for their time and the expenses they incur as they continue to share their knowledge.

For 2002, three Sustainable Farmer Educators will be chosen, one from each of the following subject areas: grazing management for dairy cows, horticultural crops, and agronomic crops.

Each of the Sustainable Farmer Educators will be awarded a grant for up to $8,000 to reimburse travel, phone, fax, and e-mail expenses and to compensate for their time.

The activities of each farmer will be reviewed annually, and there is the possibility of extending the award for a total of three years.

Applicants should farm within the region, which is made up of Connecticut, Delaware, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont, West Virginia, and Washington, D.C.

This is a competitive program, and applications should be in the Northeast SARE office by Sept. 28. Selections will be made by Nov. 1.

To learn more about this initiative and Northeast SARE, call (802) 656-0471.

Pennsylvania Represented At Conservation Reserve Forum

ST. MICHAELS, Md. — Representatives from 31 states gathered here last week to discuss the USDA's Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program (CREP). CREP was lauded as the most effective federal conservation program, capable of addressing up to five million acres of agricultural land in the 50 states.

The focus of the CREP Forum was implementation strategies of the different states and the status of the 2002 federal Farm Bill that will determine the future of CREP, as well as other federal farmland programs.

Highlights of the forum included a discussion by Congressman Wayne Gilchrest of Maryland on the importance of CREP in Maryland and his perspectives on the Farm Bill. Congressman Tim Holden of Pennsylvania, a member of the House Agriculture Committee, was represented at this meeting by a member of his staff. In addition, Tim Searchinger of Environmental Defense and Ron Helinski of the Wildlife Management Institute also spoke on the benefits of CREP and their organizations' perspective on the 2002 Farm Bill.

Pennsylvania's CREP was presented by Scott Klinger of the Pennsylvania Game Commission. In addition, existing CREP efforts in North Carolina, Delaware, Illinois, Maryland, Minnesota, New York, Oregon, Virginia, Ohio, Michigan, North Dakota, Missouri, and Washington were also described.

Pennsylvania's CREP is a partnership between the state and federal governments, the Chesapeake Bay Foundation, the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, Ducks Unlimited, Pheasants Forever, and others designed to improve water quality and wildlife habitat. Pennsylvania's CREP focuses on highly erodible farmland in a 20-county region in the Susquehanna and Potomac watersheds.

Portable Sawmill Day Scheduled In Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio - Operating a portable sawmill takes more than buying a mill and locating logs to saw, said Ed Smith, natural resources specialist at the East District office of Ohio State University Extension.

Whether landowners are purchasing a mill for full-time employment or to produce lumber for their own property, they need to learn how to maximize its efficiency and use it properly.

Landowners and others interested in portable sawmills should attend Portable Sawmill Day, Saturday, July 14, from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the Bruce Tree Farm in Monroe County. The day will offer basic information on owning and operating portable sawmills and considerations of buying a mill.

In the past 15 years, interest in portable sawmills has grown, Smith said. Today, there are more than 80 firms manufacturing portable sawmills.

"There are more than 200 models of portable sawmills available on the market," he said. "They range in price from less than $5,000 to $50,000 or more."

There are three basic types of mills: circular, band and chain."The amount of production and the quality of the product you will want to produce will determine the type of mill you should purchase. Generally, higher-priced mills will have more features and labor-saving devices than lower-priced mills," he said.At least two mills will be demonstrated throughout the day, and a number of resource people will be on hand to answer technical questions. A panel discussion of existing operators and a manufacturer is scheduled.

Other topics to be covered include sawing patterns; grading, stacking and drying wood; complying with governmental regulations; waste disposal; and sawmill safety.

Preregistration for the program is requested. Registration is $10 per person and includes lunch. The Bruce Tree Farm is located approximately 10 miles north of Lewisville off Township Road 68.

For registration or additional information, contact the Monroe County office of Ohio State University Extension, (740) 472-0810; a county or local Extension office, service forester, or Soil and Water Conservation District; or Smith, (740) 732-2381, smith.25@osu.edu.

America's Livestock Markets 'Last Hope' For Price Discovery

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. — America's livestock markets "are the last hope (for) price discovery and profit for cow-calf operators," Patrick- K. Goggins, the new president of Livestock Marketing Association (LMA), said here at LMA's recent annual meeting.

Describing the many forces aligned against the independent producer, he said, "We, as market operators, cannot let the livestock grower down. We must continue to create price. We must create value, and through advertising and sorting of cattle...we can and do add value to the product."

Goggins, a well-known purebred breeder, has owned and operated Public Auction Yards in Billings, Mont., since 1968. His many business enterprises also include the weekly newspapers, "Western Livestock Reporter," and 'Agri-News."

In addition to Goggins, LMA's officer corps for 2001-2002 includes President-elect Billy Perrin, Ada, Okla.; Vice President Charles Messer, Asheville, N.C.; Treasurer Randy Patterson, Anthony, Kan., and Secretary Steve Bartholomew, Fayetteville, Ark. Eight directors were also installed during the June 15 meeting.

Goggins, known as an outspoken advocate of competitive marketing, said three "cartels" of the major livestock feeders, packers and retailers, 'want to eliminate auction markets across America. You know why? Very simple: we discover and create prices, and we are a thorn in the side of the pricing system. In other words," he said in remarks prepared for delivery, "we tend to make their raw product cost too much.

"But you and I represent the farmer and the rancher and the small independent growers of grass, food, and fiber across America. It's our duty to get a fair price for their products. We know the only way you're going to get a strong price, a consistent price, is through competitive bidding."

Goggins traced the history of the pork and poultry industries, from the days of independent producers to today, when price competition has virtually been eliminated. "And now the cattle industry is in the center of the bullseye and (packers) are working very hard at eliminating price discovery in cattle." If the marketing sector lets this happen, "we will surely lose our industry as we know it."

Goggins urged his fellow market operators to fight back by going back home "and talking about price discovery and what the auction method means to your community, your farmers, your ranchers and your local businesses...are you willing to defend your business and your livelihood?"

When you go back home, he told his audience, "Make sure you're committed to selling the auction way. Make sure you're committed to doing it better than you did last time, because if you do, the auction method will thrive forever."

LMA's newly-elected directors, serving three-year terms, are Max Olvera, Galt, Calif.; Jim Santomaso, Sterling, Colo.; Mike Tasler, Atkinson, Neb.; Bobby D. Smith, Fairview, Okla.; E.H. Fowler, Sedalia, Mo.; Jack Green, Roanoke, Ala., and Ken Hurlburt, Farm Macleod, Alberta, Canada.

Serving a one-year term as director at large is Bill Stockton, Albuquerque, N.M. Immediate past president John Willis, Lake City, Fla., becomes chairman of the board.

LMA represents the interests of independent livestock marketing businesses across North America.

June 30 Deadline Approaches For Nutrient Management Grant Program

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes announced that the application deadline for the Nutrient Management Plan Implementation Grant Program is June 30.

"Gov. Ridge and I support the efforts of present day farmers and agribusinesses to reflect the tradition of good conservation and environmental practices," said Hayes. "This grant program provides funding to agricultural operations volunteering to develop and to implement best management practices and 21st century nutrient management plans."

The Nutrient Management Plan Implementation Grant Program is a grant program at the Department of Agriculture administered by the State Conservation Commission. The program is available to a farm owner with a livestock or poultry operation that have been in existence since October 1, 1997. The applicant must also have an approved Nutrient Management Plan for the operation and meet the program's financial qualifications.

This program provides funding to qualified applicants to implement best management practices (BMPs) that are called for in the approved Nutrient Management Plan. Qualified applicants are eligible to receive up to $75,000.

Currently, $4 million is available for projects in the program. To date, 83 grants have been approved for $4.4 million dollars.

For more information on the Nutrient Management Plan Implementation Grant Program, contact the county conservation district, the Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Plant Industry at (717) 772-4187, or the State Conservation Commission at (717) 787-8821.

AGRICULTURE THE GRAIN OF OUR ECONOMY

USDA Provides Update On Hog Breeding Herd

WASHINGTON, D.C.— (USDA-NASS) — U.S. Hog Breeding Structure Report released June 8, 2001: Larger operations account for nearly three-fourths of the U.S. pig crop. The makeup of the U.S. hog breeding herd by size of operation has changed dramatically over the last 6 years.

A brief summary of the changes in the makeup of the hog breeding herd and trends in its efficiency will follow. This information is being provided based on recent inquiries by the hog industry to the National Agricultural Statistics Service.

The average number of pigs per year per breeding herd animal (includes sows, gilts, and boars) has increased from 10.3 in 1979 to 16.2 in 2000, a 58 percent increase.

Only 29 percent of the increase was due to increased litter rates while 71 percent was attributed to the increase in the number of litters per sow per year and consequently, smaller breeding herd.

Breeding Herd Size Declines

The size of the U.S. breeding herd has declined 38 percent since 1979 while the pig crop has decreased only 2 percent. Operations with more than 5,000 head accounted for 73 percent of the pig crop in 2000 compared with only 27 percent in 1994, (the first year of data for operations with more than 5,000 head).

Conversely, operations with less than 5,000 head, accounted for 73 percent of the U.S. pig crop in 1994 and only 27 percent in 2000.

Meanwhile, the number of hog operations with more than 5,000 head has grown from just under 1,000 in 1993 to nearly 2,100 in 2000. The increasing trend appears to be tapering off in 2000.

Operations With Less Than 5,000 Head

The number of operations with less than 5,000 head has declined from 217,000 to below 84,000 during the same period.

The litter rate for operations with less than 5,000 head increased from 8.00 pigs to 8.48 pigs from 1994 to 2000, a six percent increase. The litter rate of operations with more than 5,000 head was 8.96 pigs in 2000 compared with 8.74 in 1994, less than a 3 percent increase.

The relatively larger increase in litter rate for herds with less than 5,000 head is attributed to smaller, less efficient operations going out of business and a larger proportion of the pig crop coming from herds with 1,000 to 5,000 head.

The number of pigs per breeding animal per year for operations with less than 5,000 head increased from 13.43 pigs in 1997 to 15.13 in 2000, an increase of 1.7 pigs or 13 percent.

Operations with more than 5,000 head increased from 16.08 pigs to 16.62 pigs over the same period, an increase of .54 pigs or 3 percent (The first year of available data was 1997).

Again, the greater increase in pigs per breeding animal for operations with less than 5,000 head is largely attributed to the loss of smaller, less efficient operations and an increase in the proportion of operations with 1,000 to 5,000 head.

Increase In Efficiency

In conclusion, much of the increase in the efficiency of the U.S. hog breeding herd over the last 5 to 10 years can be attributed to the shift in size of operations to larger, more efficient operations and the decline in smaller, less efficient operations.

For the future, it now appears that the increase in the efficiency of the U.S. breeding herd could slow some since larger, more efficient operations, those with more than 5,000 head, now account for nearly three-fourths of the U.S. pig crop.

Also, the average annual number of pigs per breeding animal for the U.S. is now just 0.42 pigs below operations with more than 5,000 head compared with 1.26 pigs less in 1997. Likewise, the U.S. average pigs per litter is now just 0.13 pigs below operations with over 5,000 head compared with 0.55 less pigs in 1994.

GARDEN GRACES, by George Grant and Karen Grant. Cumberland House Publishing, 2001, 224 pp., $10.95. ISBN 1-58182-059-3

We've learned to take gardening for granted. It's part of what's accepted: farmers have gardens. We've grown up with gardens. Gardens have been our physical mainstays, helped us through a world war, are where we take our grandchildren to show how things grow, and why we fall in love with farming in the first place.

But exactly how much do we take gardens for granted? How much seed for thought, how much emotional power have gardens exerted on statesmen, writers, painters, and thought-leaders throughout history?

GARDEN GRACES is chockfull of quotes about the graces of gardening, the emotions of gardening — from famous writers, politicians, and world leaders — about the importance of gardening to human mental and physical health.

The authors have taken great pains to produce a gardener's classic, brimming with delights to be found in all types of gardens, from the sprawling vegetable gardens in the back acre to the little plots threaded with grace in the slim plots of row homes; the tools necessary to produce the best of your garden, large or small; and why gardening helps ensure a productive and stress-reduced life.

On page 57, according to the authors: "Your best gardening moments are invariably in your own garden — certainly, ours have been. To smell the sweet pungency of freshly mown grass, freshly turned soil, and freshly harvested vegetables, to sit down upon the garden bench after a hard afternoon of labor with a tall glass of lemonade or a frothy mug of Saint Arnold's, to retire to the kitchen with a bucket of fresh herbs for an evening of gourmet experimentation: these are incomparable moments."

The garden provides a sanctuary from the stresses of the workday; provides that variety, or spice of life, that insures the integrity of our deepest sensibilities; and, through travel, gardeners can find new ways to approach the art of gardening.

GARDEN GRACES provides all that and more.

FOR THE LOVE OF MIKE: More of the Best of Mike Royko. University of Chicago Press, 2001, 280 pp., $22.00. ISBN 0-226-73073-5

So what does a daily columnist icon have to do with farming?

Because columnists throughout the country study Mike. He's a newspaper columnist's columnist — his terse insights into city politics, his brash and sincere views of the ways towns large and small can be corrupt, his straightforward, pull-no-punches style all made him worth reading. Even if Royko didn't talk agriculture.

But Royko, columnist for the Chicago Daily News, Chicago Sun-Times, and Chicago Tribune, did know a lot about what wars do to people and countries; about the hilarity of bureaucracy; about capital punishment, gun control, and everything in between; about his devotion and on-again, off-again love affair with the Chicago Cubs baseball team (even his brief, highly charged sojourn as a White Sox fan, only briefly); and his tirade against America's ambivalence to the poor, the uneducated, the forgotten; and to our growing national insensitivity to violence.

His classic columns are all here. And if you enjoy columnists, FOR THE LOVE is sheer delight.

Association Restores Stream

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — The Hammer Creek Watershed Association (HCWA) recently completed a stream restoration project on approximately 3,500 liner feet along Hammer Creek, between Carpenter and Buch Mill roads. The project is one of 12 that are part of an eight-mile watershed restoration assessment being funded by the Pennsylvania Growing Greener Initiative and U.S. Environmental Protection Agency 319 Program. The restoration activities begin below Speedwell Forge Lake and continue downstream to Cocalico Creek.

Land O'Lakes Agrees To Purchase Purina Mills

ARDEN HILLS, Minn. — Land O'Lakes, Inc. and Purina Mills, Inc. (Nasdaq: PMIL) announced jointly Monday that they have signed a definitive merger agreement under which Land O'Lakes will acquire Purina Mills.

Under terms of the agreement, Land O'Lakes will acquire all of Purina Mills stock at a price of $23 per share in cash.

Land O'Lakes President and Chief Executive Officer Jack Gherty said the acquisition makes sense in terms of both feed industry trends and the future of Land O'Lakes feed operations. Purina Mills will become part of Land O'Lakes Farmland Feed LLC following the acquisition.

"We are bringing together well-recognized brands in different product categories, as well as complementary geography and product lines," Gherty said. "At the same time, we are building the economies of scale and critical mass necessary to compete nationally in the consolidating feed industry. This transaction clearly has positive implications for the long-term success of our farmer-owned feed system."

The Purina Mills product lines, brands, nationwide dealer network and checkerboard trademark logo will be maintained, Gherty said. The Purina Mills organization will continue to be based in St. Louis, Mo., with its own sales and marketing team.

Purina Mills Chief Executive Officer Brad Kerbs said the proposed acquisition has positive implications for Purina dealers and customers.

"Our focus has consistently been on positioning our organization and our dealers for long-term success. While pursuing that strategic intent, discussions with Land O'Lakes revealed our two organizations have a number of very valuable synergies," Kerbs said. "This transaction will create a more competitive national feed system, well-positioned to contribute to the long-term success of Purina dealers and customers."

The acquisition will deliver additional value through increased efficiency in such areas as production, distribution and purchasing, Gherty said, adding that little change is anticipated at the dealer and customer levels.

"The key to this acquisition is the fact that it brings together two organizations and two leading brands with a proven record of quality and service and a high level of customer recognition and acceptance," Gherty said. "As we work to preserve and build upon that record, we will focus on making the transition to the new organization as seamless and as smooth as possible."

The acquisition of Purina Mills by Land O'Lakes is subject to certain conditions, including approval by the shareholders of Purina Mills, Inc. and receipt by Land O'Lakes of financing for the acquisition. Land O'Lakes was advised by, and has received a commitment for financing, subject to customary conditions, from JPMorgan.

In connection with the execution of the definitive merger agreement, GSCP Recovery, Inc., which beneficially owns approximately 28 percent of the outstanding shares of Purina Mills' common stock, has entered into a voting agreement pursuant to which, among other things, such stockholder has agreed (and has granted a proxy) to vote its shares of Purina Mills' common stock in favor of the acquisition.

Land O'Lakes (http://www.landolakesinc.com) is a national, farmer-owned food and agricultural cooperative, with sales approaching $6 billion. Land O'Lakes does business in all 50 states and more than 50 countries. It is a leading marketer of a full line of dairy-based consumer, foodservice, and food ingredient products across the U.S.; serves its international customers with a variety of food and animal feed ingredients; and provides farmers and local cooperatives with an extensive line of agricultural supplies (feed, seed, crop nutrients, and crop protection products) and services.

Purina Mills (http://www.purinamills.com), based in St. Louis, Mo., has 48 plants and approximately 2,300 employees nationwide.

Holstein Field Night July 6

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — The Lebanon County Holstein Field Night will be hosted by Ken and Rhoda Reist and family, (717) 272-5527, on Friday, July 6.

The Ken-Joda farm consists of 75 registered Holsteins with a RHA of 25,500 pounds milk, 952 pounds fat, and 813 pounds protein. Recently, they have installed a slatted mat over their slatted floor in the freestall barn and have built a separate building to monitor their dry and post-fresh cows closely.

There will be a buffet-style meal from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. The club will be judging three classes of animals from 6:30 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Marlin Hoff of Coldsprings Farms from New Windsor, Md. will be the judge and featured speaker for the evening.

From Lebanon — Rt. 422 east, turn right onto Prescott Road, follow until Fox Road, turn right and travel 1.5 miles. Reist farm will be on your left.

Dairy Leaders Welcome Cow Sense Program

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Adults learn by doing and that's exactly what they do in the Dairy Alliance's Cow Sense Program.

Dairy Alliance held its last scheduled Cow Sense workshops on April 10 at Burk-Lea Farms near Chambersburg and on Feb. 6 at the Kulp Family Dairy near Martinsburg.

"Both workshops were filled to capacity and the participants were enthusiastic about the hand-on activities," said Tammy Perkins, Dairy Alliance program manager in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

Cow Sense focuses on improving the systematic, early detection of problem cows. Instructors use transition cows for training purposes because transition cows are the most likely to develop problems. Participants learn about the metabolic and health challenges faced by transition cows and how those challenges relate to potential health problems. Participants also receive training materials and techniques that they can take home to teach their co-workers.

When participants were asked about the most helpful part of the training, Perkins says, responses included:

•"The hands-on experience with the vets. They were very informative and answered all of our questions."

•"Giving ideas on how to train people the proper way."

•"The amount of information was perfect. It's a crucial part of dairying and having hands-on exposure helped impress it on our minds and show how concepts are related to each other."

Local extension staff, farm management agent Mike Harteis, and dairy agent Phil Wagner assisted the Dairy Alliance staff with the workshops. Local veterinarians Shawn Orcazek, Joe Itle and Bob Welch taught at Martinsburg, while veterinarians Stanley Stratton and Alan Oliver taught at Chambersburg. Penn State instructors included Gabriella Varga, professor of animal science; Dave Griswold, research associate in veterinary science; Bob Van Saun, associate professor of veterinary science; Richard Stup, senior extension associate in dairy and animal science; and capitol region extension agents Arlen Mills and Tim Beck.

The Dairy Alliance collaborates with diverse stakeholders in the dairy industry to deliver educational programs that help producers take advantage of opportunities for future viability.

For information on future Dairy Alliance programs, contact Tammy Perkins at (888) 373-PADA or tap10@psu.edu.

Business Is Blooming In New Danville

MICHELLE RANCK
Lancaster Farming Staff

NEW DANVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Starting your own business does not have to be a dramatic change. For Shelley Rhoads, going full-time into her own flower business was a transition of many steps over several years.

Her enterprise, "Flowers of New Danville" includes seven growing greenhouses, a garden center to display the plants, and a full-service floral shop.

Rhoads, who has a degree in graphic design, has been in the business most of her life, as her family has operated a floral business in New Jersey for 30 years.

When she married and moved into the Lancaster area, she worked as a graphic designer for three years, operating her own flower business on the side and educating herself reading extensively and attending Penn State and Longwood Gardens classes.

Encouraged by her husband, in 1988 Rhoads put up a greenhouse and finally went into the flower business full-time in 1991.

Owner Shelley Rhoads spends much of her day in the greenhouse area.

Facets Of The Business

The garden center features outdoor displays of plants pulled from the growing greenhouses. A few of the displays, complemented by informational brochures, are more customer-friendly and set out plants ideal for hot sun or shady areas or flowers that attract hummingbirds or butterflies.

"If our consumers are educated, our plants will do well for them," she said.

Next year she hopes to conduct educational programs for both children and adults.

In addition to a full-time florist, four part-time employees work at the business. May, understandably, is the busiest time of year for the employees as customers ready their flower beds and gardens for the summer.

The business is open with a full schedule seven days a week from May through July.

The flower shop added this year, however, will be open year-round.

"We plan to carry dried arrangements, wreaths, some garden products, and green gardens year round in the shop," she said.

The blooms draw customers from "a fairly large distance," she said. "Most are from a 15-20 mile radius, but we have some customers from Maryland and New York who come on weekend visits and plan to fill their cars here on the way home."

She is the only grower-seller in the southern end of the county, which enables her to keep a tight rein on the quality control of her products.

"If I am not satisfied with a plant I can pull it back into a greenhouse and don't have to sell it," she said.

Annuals, perennials, hanging baskets, geraniums, container gardens and unique potted plants are offered at the stand. Besides the planters showcasing the newer varieties, the stand's hanging baskets are unique, with a mix of annuals, "so it's colorful all summer," she said.

Rhoads' broker's yearly visit always brings new varieties to the stand. Sometimes the new plants on the scene take a little longer than the traditional plants to "catch on" with customers.

"The plants that are new for the season we promote in planters so people can see the potential of the plants," said Rhoads. "The first year they may not take off really well, but we try to get people to try them. They usually come back the next year when they see how great they are. We're not afraid to try something new here."

Geraniums are the top seller at the stand, perhaps because they are so user-friendly. "They're drought tolerant. People just throw them in and they take off," said Rhoads.

Customers also cart home many flats of Impatiens and New Guinea Impatiens in the planting season.

Help Your Garden Look Its Best

Classes, conferences, reading, and fielding many customers' questions have given Rhoads an idea of some of the common gardening mistakes. One common oversight, she said, was the lack of fertilizer put on the plants. "A lot of people just put the plant in the ground and are too busy to maintain the nutrient base," she said.

The best time to fertilize is every two weeks, especially just after a rain, when the fertilizer will go to straight to the roots.

"Never fertilize when it's dry or during a dry season. The fertilizer runs off and never gets down to the plant base." She recommends fertilizer mixed with water to make a liquid as the best format for fertilization.

"It gets to the roots better rather than through the foliage, as with the sprays. If there is not enough fertilization, or in an overwatering situation, the leaves will turn yellow. Over-fertilization will make the plants produce more foliage and not as many flowers.

For hanging baskets and potted plants, "don't water just for the sake of watering them," she said. "Check the moisture level and let that decrease before you re-water. It gives the plants a better root basis."

Other mistakes include not having the ground properly turned over prior to planting. "A plant needs six inches all the way around of nice loose soil," she said. Besides better water absorption, loose soil helps increase root capacity.

"The looser it is the easier for the roots to grow. If it's surrounded by a tough piece of clay and there is just a small hole for the plant, that's about as far as the roots will be able to grow without a struggle."

Adding compost is a huge benefit to plants, suggests Rhoads. Especially in the new housing developments, where the topsoil has been stripped and carted away, adequate soil is important.

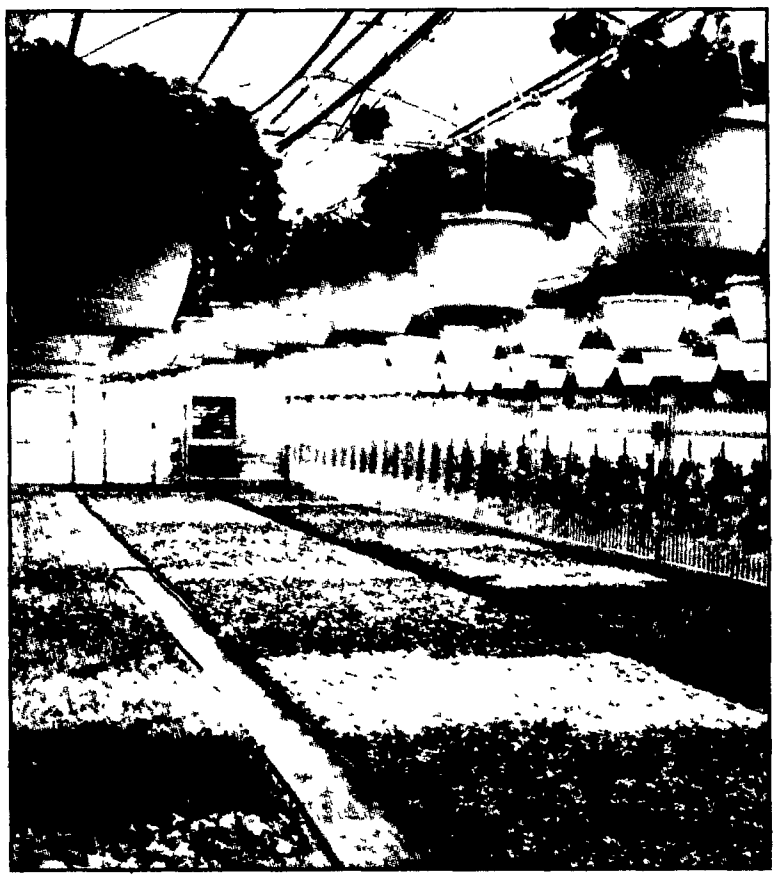
Employee DeLane Parmer, Conestoga, helps take care of the necessary planting, feeding, and watering of flowers. She combines a long-time affinity for plants and an art background to help her create the potted displays. These plants, "Seashell Impatiens," are a variety which has been out for only three years, estimates Parmer. The plants, which range from yellow to orange, are the first yellow Impatiens variety.

Antique troughs, trunks, or washing bins are host to the flowers around Rhoads' home.

Educational displays aid customer choices. "If our consumers are educated, our plants will do well for them," said Rhoads.



These shots show one of the greenhouses filled with flowers in the production phase before the stand opened in May.

A Few Helpful Tips

Picking Your Flowers

- When picking flowers from your garden, do so in the early morning or late afternoon and make sure you put them directly in a bucket of clean, cool water.

Let your flowers soak for at least one hour before arranging them.

Clean Vases

- Always use a clean vase when arranging your flowers. If there is any bacteria in your vase, it will block the water uptake in your flower stems.

If you are unable to get the stains from your vase, add a couple drops of household bleach with water and let soak for a couple of hours, then rinse and refill with clean water.

Clean Water And Preservatives

- Change your water daily or use a floral preservative to help keep your flowers fresh.

Arranging Your Flowers

- Prior to arranging, always cut your flower stems (under water if possible) with a clean sharp shears and remove any foliage that will be under water.

Making Your Arrangement Last

- If possible, try to keep your arrangements away from strong sun, drafts, fruit bowls, or overheated rooms.

Remove flowers as they die so that the bacteria will not destroy the other flowers.

Joyce Bupp

"Let's go on a treasure hunt!"

"Maybe we can find gold!"

Site of this spontaneous adventure was the state forest area immediately surrounding the mountain hunting camp to which the family belongs. A van load of the latest three generations of family to adore this hideaway had come to spend a quick — barely 24 hours stolen out of busy schedules to just be together and relax on a warm June day.

Finding gold hadn't originally been on the agenda. But, hey, when you're six, anything's possible.

So, off we set, 6, 4, and 2-year-olds eagerly leading parents, grandparents and baby sister snoozing in a snugly chest sling. First destination was the most logical place to look for gold: a creek.

Running just behind the cabin, the creek is a several-yard-wide, classic meandering mountain one, rushing over mossy-green rocks, tumbling through mini-cataracts, pausing in quiet, deep, icy pools. Its history as part of our particular mountain scene has never — to my knowledge — included any gold strikes. An occasional flash of silvery fins tell-tales the native trout which can be spied if one is quiet and sharp-eyed.

Quite was not on the agenda, either, because, as every kids knows, getting close to any body of water means pitching stones into it. Throwing rocks in a creek is one of those childhood pastimes enjoyed, not for any adult sense of accomplishment or purpose, but simply to see the splash. Safety, of course, mandates that stones be limited to pebble-size and aims monitored closely, to avoid unwanted adventurous side trips to hospital emergency rooms.

And, though miscellaneous worms, interesting stones and a new few terrified, fleeing fish were spotted, any traces of gold eluded us. Never mind. Other treasures abounded.

Like the jeweled wings of dozens and dozens of butterflies, mostly (based on our nature guide handbook) Red Spotted Purples, a few Banded Purples and an occasional Tiger Swallowtail. The Purples were amazingly tame and inquisitive, flitting among us and investigating dropped crumbs from our outside picnics, perhaps in search for traces of salt. They seemed to have a special affinity for potato chip residue.

Most special, especially to 6-year-old, butterfly loving Josh, was when they sat on our hands and shoulders, delicate, dainty gems of nature, seemingly as fascinated with us as we were with them. (More mundanely, probably in search of salty perspiration; it was a warm day.)

Glancing up a bit later at one of the long fluorescent lights hanging over the big kitchen table, I spotted an equally fascinating winged gem. Clinging to one light was a pale-green luna moth, its giant wings delicately sweeping to elegant long tails. We admired it, then gently captured and released it outside.

Taking our treasure quest on a hike, we found more jeweled colors: neon yellows, bright whites, delicate amethysts, glow oranges. Wildflowers, of various sizes, shapes and species, sprinkled their own gemlike qualities against the green shades of the forest and roadsides. Mountain laurel splotched bright color among the forest shading, its dainty, cup-shaped blooms ranging from white to shadings and strippings of pink.

A few treasures turned up underfoot, like a small snail spotted among the dry roadside gravel. After inspection and relocation to a more moist environment, we set the round-shelled "find" back to continue its life journey among the moist forest leaf litter.

One of the largest and most impressive "treasures" turned up quite by surprise. Our daughter had just rounded the cabin's corner with a bucket in hand, en route to the water spigot, when I heard a shriek — and knew instinctively what it meant.

"Snake! Hanging on the side of the tree back there," she pointed, having dashed back to the front of the building.

And hanging it was, indeed. All two-feet-plus of a snoozing black snake was draped among the nooks and crevices of the bark on the side of a thick, old hemlock tree. It appeared to have been draped and glued there, about three feet off the ground. Amazing! How do they do that?

Our son-in-law gently touched the snake's tail; it dropped to the foot of the tree and curled up. Later, they spotted it slithering off toward the wire-enclosed woodshed, where we figure it thrives on the mice which hide there.

We can only hope our "treasure" introduces itself to the next wood thieves who try heisting from our supply.

Gardening For Good Health

Though some beautiful flowers may last only a few weeks, the benefits of gardening can last a lifetime.

Dr. James Rippe, associate professor at Tufts University School of Medicine and founder of the Rippe Lifestyle Institute, said "Many everyday activities, especially gardening, can serve as an excellent form of joint-healthy exercise. Gardening provides an adequate and challenging workout, but is not as stressful to the body as other options such as jogging or aerobics."

However, despite its many benefits, assorted aches and pains can make gardening a daunting task for the 20 million or more Americans who suffer from joint pain.

The leading health problem that prevents people 50 and over from exercising is joint stiffness.

Joint-related issues account for nearly half of all disabilities in adults over the age of 65.

Common complaints among seniors include: difficulty bending, lifting, kneeling and getting up, making what was once a fun and pleasant form of recreation an unpleasant chore.

Experts agree that with just a few basic changes in approach and simple modifications to tools, tending your lawn or garden can remain a part of a healthy lifestyle.

The following tips can help senior gardeners avoid joint pain and injury during gardening season:

- Approaching gardening like you are performing any other form of exercise — do stretches to loosen muscles before starting.
- Make sure to change gardening stances — this enables you to use different muscles and helps to achieve a more total body workout.
- Take your time — Utilize frequent and regular rest periods but make sure the total daily time of garden activities adds up to 30 minutes.
- Organize your area — Avoid painful reaching and arm strains by keeping tools close to your work area.
- Something as simple as gelatine can help the body maintain healthy joints during these types of activities. If taken daily, Knox NutraJoint, a gelatine-based supplement, can help improve joint strength and function in people with symptoms of mild osteoarthritis.
- Elevate your garden — Avoid excessive bending by raising flowerbeds and containers and bypass high-maintenance flowers for shrubs, herbs and easy-care perennials.
- Transform your tools — to ease pain in your hands and improve your grip, wear padded gloves or add foam rubber padding to tool handles.
- Water wisely — Cut down on heavy lifting by using a child's wagon to move your watering can around the garden.

Do You Suffer From Fibromyalgia?

When I was introduced to New Image I was 50 pounds over weight and suffered from fibromyalgia I was so depressed and in pain the majority of the time I was taking steroids and four other medications, one of which made me so 'groggy' I could hardly get out of bed and another gave me ulcers I began taking New Image secretly because I thought my family would make fun of me After a month, I discovered I had lost eight pounds and seven inches Wow! Then it dawned on me, I was feeling better, the depression and pain were gone In two months I was off all medications "I feel SUPERIFIC!" Now, two years later I have lost 43 pounds and 30 inches. Thank you New Image for giving me a new life again Judy Swift - Mt Washington, KY

Packing A Picnic Basket

Summertime is picnic time-from backyard grilling to picnics at the neighborhood park, while hiking in the mountains, or while on camping or boating trips. Whether your picnic is an elaborate gourmet affair for 20 or a simple packed lunch for two, a little planning can make the event much more enjoyable.

The Picnic Cooler: When choosing a cooler, consider "cold retention power," cleanability, durability, weight, and cost. Foam chests are lightweight, low cost, and actually have good cold retention power, but they are fragile and may not last through numerous outings. Plastic, fiberglass, and steel coolers are more durable and have excellent cold retention power. However, once filled, larger models may weigh 30 to 40 pounds. Because of their durability, some end up being used well past their prime. If the inside of the cleaned cooler has a nasty odor, it's time to discard the cooler.

When packing your cooler, layer with ice and food, and top with a tablecloth wrapped in a plastic bag. Putting the tablecloth on top helps to insulate the cooler, plus, when you arrive at the picnic site, it will be the first thing you unpack.

Suggested Picnic Foods: Fresh, whole fruit generally packs well. Oranges, bananas, apples, and grapes are great to take along on picnics. Be sure apples and grapes are well washed ahead of time.

Ice water is a priceless luxury, especially when picnicking at a remote location on a hot day. For a convenient source of ice and water, fill a clean plastic container three-fourths full with water, cap tightly, and freeze. The container makes a great ice pack and provides cold drinking water as the ice melts.

If your picnic cooler will not keep foods at refrigerator temperatures (40 degrees F or below) until you're ready to eat, choose less perishable ingredients, such as peanut butter, jelly, salami, pressed luncheon meats, and hard cheeses, for sandwich fixings. Take mayonnaise and mustard in individual packets to spread on hard rolls, tortillas, or bread. Complete your picnic with fresh or dried fruit, raw vegetables, chips, and cookies for dessert.

Once you're through eating, return leftovers immediately to the cooler. Make sure there's enough ice left in the cooler to keep leftovers that need refrigeration cold and safe until you can get them home and into the refrigerator again. If not, it is wiser not to save perishable items.

A new dessert idea for me is to make cupcakes and store them, unfrosted, in a sturdy plastic container. Buy frosting already made, or make your own and store it in a plastic container. You can frost the cupcakes at the picnic site, or let each person spread the frosting on his or her cupcake before eating.

Why Does Swiss Cheese Have Holes?

Why does Swiss cheese have holes?

That's easy. The culprit is Propionibacter shermani.

All cheese is made with the help of bacteria, or more specifically, a bacteria-based culture. These "starter organisms" are added to milk and are one of the major factors that help determine the type of cheese that you end up with.

For Swiss cheese, S. thermophilus and Lactobacillus start the process, producing acid and using lactose from milk as an energy source. Then the mixture is placed in a warm room, which favors the growth of P. shermanii. That uses the lactic acid to produce carbon dioxide and propionic acid. Carbon dioxide makes the holes by expanding into bubbles of gas, and propionic acid helps produce Swiss cheese's characteristic flavor.

The size of the holes can be controlled by varying several factors: acidity, temperature and curing time. Because of this, food scientists say cheese-making is a combination of art and science. It takes a certain expertise to get conditions "just right."

Knowing how to control hole-size is important: Until recently, the holes in Grade-A Swiss cheese had to be between eleven-sixteenths and thirteen-sixteenths of an inch in diameter (that's almost precisely three-quarters of an inch, about the size of a nickel). However, standards are changing: Modern processing equipment, designed to slice cheese at a rate of 1,000 slices a minute, often tears up large-hole Swiss cheese. That prompted regulators to re-think the strict standard. Now Swiss-cheese holes can be as small as six-sixteenths (that's three-eighths) of an inch and still be classified as Grade-A.

All processors have to do is refrigerate the cheese sooner, stopping the bubbles from getting too large before they burst.

Baby Swiss cheese is made from the same type of bacterial culture, but cheese-makers adjust the curing process (acidity, temperature and time) to end up with a milder cheese with smaller holes.

Ohio is the nation's top producer of Swiss cheese, making about 64 million pounds annually. An ounce of Swiss cheese contains about 8 grams of fat, a little over 100 calories, and about 275 milligrams of calcium. And, if you want to sound like you know a thing or two, the holes in Swiss cheese are properly called "eyes."

Pictures are a wonderful reminder of the past whether it be 100 years ago or simply last year.

In the early 1900s, my mother took quite a few pictures of places in her small community of Oregon. The mill, the store, the school, and even of people skating on the Lititz Creek are included in her collection.

Today these pictures are hunted by people publishing books of local interest. As I have some of her photos, I've loaned them for publication in three books and two calendars.

Memories can fail us, but pictures are there to remind us of actual facts. Was the house wood or stone? Was the bridge narrow or wide? Even people's features can become a blur over a period of years, but photos are there to forever remind us of reality.

My Shreiner family has held our own reunion picnic for more than 50 years. Last week, we gathered again at a local park to renew acquaintances. There were no small children there as those families all lived too far away or else had other plans.

Our oldest daughter, who lives in New Jersey, stopped at our house on her way home. We had some boxes of clothes that her brother's family had sent from Georgia. Our children often pass on clothes, that one grandchild has outgrown, to another sibling. Shoes become too small before they are worn out.

I picked two kinds of sugar peas for her while she picked strawberries for her family. She gave me pictures of her son who is on the ultimate frisbee team at Duke University and I gave her some of our trip to Georgia.

Many of my pictures are in albums, but many are also loose. However, I do believe that all of them are marked as to who is in the picture.

Bed And Breakfast Legislation Gains House Approval

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Maintaining the charm and beauty of historical bed and breakfast establishments while still adhering to a high level of safety for guests is the focus of legislation unanimously approved by the House recently.

"The unique and historical atmosphere of B&Bs is what attracts both owners and guests to these establishments; however, in order to maintain certain safety standards, the integrity of the home is sometimes sacrificed," said Rep. Thomas E. Armstrong, author of the measure.

Currently, the regulations pertaining to the licensing and occupancy permits for B&Bs falls under the Fire and Panic Act, which outlines numerous requirements that are not always practical or cost effective for property owners.

The Bed and Breakfast Establishment Safety Act will establish uniform safety regulations for bed and breakfast establishments while safeguarding the beauty and character of the buildings.

The bill requires safety regulations such as sufficient number of exits, interconnected smoke detectors, emergency lighting and fire extinguishers, as well as structural requirements that must be satisfied before a private residence can be converted into a B&B establishment.

Establishments that have obtained certification from the Department of Labor and Industry of local municipality prior to this legislation would not be required to comply with the requirements of the act. In addition, those establishments that accommodate fewer than seven or more than 16 guests, and those that are listed, or eligible for listing, in the National Register of Historic Places, will fall under other certification and licensing requirements.

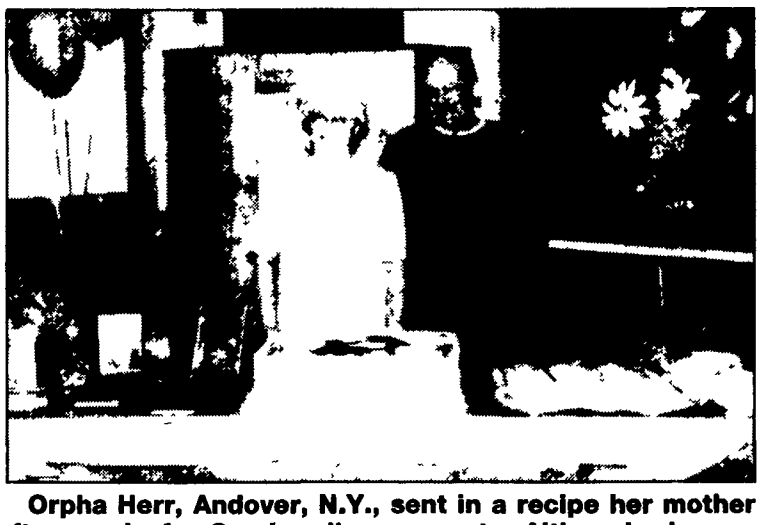
Udderly Wonderful 'Yumminess' Continues With Dairy Recipe Entries

More dairy "yumminess" continues this week, the fourth issue to contain recipe entries sent in by our readers. The wide variety of dishes are a salute to the dairy industry, which make these possible by providing milk—the basis for all these recipes.

Watch for next week's edition, which will include the final entries plus a list of the winners of Lancaster Farming's annual Dairy Recipe Drawing.

Abdul, a three-day-old camel gets dinner from Jo Doig, Princeton Junction, N.J., who is "babysitting" for a friend.

Roy and Lillian Shull milk 220 Holstein cows on a family dairy farm in Bucks County.



Orpha Herr, Andover, N.Y., sent in a recipe her mother often made for Sunday dinner guests. Although she enjoys her mother's recipes, she is always looking for new ones to serve her married children and grandchildren.

MIKE'S CAPPUCCINO FROSTIE

1 cup double strength coffee
2 cups vanilla frozen yogurt
1 individual packet cocoa mix (no marshmallows)
whipped cream

Combine the first three ingredients in blender until chunks of frozen yogurt have disappeared. The mixture will have a slightly grainy look, but is smooth.

Pour into clear coffee mugs and top with whipped cream.

On some occasions, Mike has drizzled some caramel or chocolate sauce over the whipped cream. Add a straw and you'll be to the bottom of the glass within minutes. Be careful of "brain freeze." Makes two 12-ounce servings.

My friend Mike Troup is awesome in the kitchen. He is a dad with two teenagers who like a lot of basic foods, so when he gets in the mood to experiment, he calls me to come and be the kitchen assistant. My reward is always a terrific dinner.

One day I was talking about how much I love the convenience store frozen cappuccino/coffee drinks. They are smooth and creamy, but probably full of sugar and fat. I was complaining about how much money I had spent on them last summer and that I must find a recipe.

Soon, Mike was in the kitchen — experimenting. After two attempts that were good but somehow lacked the taste I am fond of, Mike invented his version of a frozen chocolate/coffee drink that is refreshing and delicious.

I hope you like this recipe as much as I do. Mike is guaranteed to get a household chore of his choice completed as long a I get a serving of this yummy drink.

FRUIT AMBROSIA

16-ounce can of chunky pineapple
8-ounce can of crushed pineapple
1 cup shredded coconut (optional)
1 cup chopped walnuts or pecans (optional)
1 cup miniature marshmallows
1 package pistachio pudding mix
16 ounces heavy cream

Mix the cans of pineapple with the juice in a large bowl. Sprinkle the pudding mix on top and let it sit for three minutes. Blend in the nuts and coconut. Slowly add the marshmallows and whipped cream. This should be made ahead at least two hours and can stay for days in the refrigerator.

This is a recipe that I originally got from Heloise. It is excellent and easy. We live on a small farm (11 acres) in Princeton Junction, N.J., surrounded by development homes. We have 15 ducks, 11 goats, 7 turkeys, 2 miniature donkeys and about 100 fancy chickens. They are all pets.

We have friends who have exotics and I have enclosed a picture of me babysitting my friends' three-day-old camel named Abdul. I practice law and my husband installs and repairs garage doors. We each have two children and one 7-year-old grandson named Sajun.

TATER TOT CASSEROLE

2 pounds ground beef
2 (10¾) cans condensed cream of mushroom soup or chicken soup, mixed with one soup can milk
1 cup shredded cheddar cheese
32-ounce bag frozen tater tots

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Brown beef over medium high heat, then drain fat. Spread meat in 9x13-inch baking dish. Pour soup mixture over meat and spread to cover. Sprinkle evenly with cheese; top with tater tots,

Bake one hour or until bubbly and potatoes are lightly browned. Serves eight.

Entering this contest is becoming a tradition. I submit a recipe and wait for my husband to find it once it is printed. It's a year later and we are all a little older and maybe wiser.

I am completing my third year as a supervisor for a public school in New Jersey. Don, my husband, continues to keep busy in retirement buying and selling antique tractors. Our son, Kristopher, is a fourth grade honor roll student. He is a Webelos scout and plays outfield on a local Little League team.

SNOW PUDDING

1 pint milk
½ cup granulated sugar
1 teaspoon butter
2½ tablespoons cornstarch
2 eggs (separated)
1 teaspoon vanilla

Beat egg whites until stiff and set aside. Bring milk and sugar and butter to scald on medium heat, stirring occasionally. Stir cornstarch with ¼ cup water until cornstarch is dissolved. Add this to milk mixture and bring to a boil, stirring constantly with a whisk to keep from scorching.

Boil about one minute. Remove from heat and add vanilla. Stir in beaten egg whites and pour into serving dish. Cool and refrigerate.

Topping

1 cup milk
½ cup granulated sugar
1 teaspoon butter
1 scant tablespoon cornstarch

Beat egg yolks, milk, sugar, and butter. Bring to a boil on medium heat, stirring constantly with a wire whisk. Boil about one minute. Pour into a separate bowl. Cool and refrigerate.

This can be made the night before. Just before serving pour and spread topping over pudding mixture.

This recipe was my mother's and I remember her often making it for Sunday dinner guests. We're married over 50 years, so this recipe is old.

We're retired and even though there's only two of us, I still enjoy cooking and am always looking for new recipes. When our six married children and grandkids all come home, food seems to disappear. I enjoy your B section. Thanks for an interesting paper.

CREAM CHEESE BARS

2 cans refrigerated crescent rolls
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup sugar
16 ounces cream cheese
½ cup melted butter
¾ cup sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Use a 9x13-inch greased pan. Cream together vanilla, one cup sugar, and cream cheese. Spread out one package of rolls in pan. Spread creamed mixture evenly over the entire dough layer. Unroll second package of rolls over this mixture.

Mix together ¼ cup sugar and cinnamon; sprinkle evenly over dough. Melt butter and drizzle over top. Bake 30 to 35 minutes. When cool, cut into bars.

We live in Cherryville, which is about 20 minutes north of the Lehigh Valley area. We have one son, Seth, who will be two in August. My husband and I own about two acres of land that we use to grow garden vegetables and sweet corn, which we sell to local customers and friends. It is enough to keep both of us busy because we also both work full-time jobs.

My father helps out a little with the planting and harvesting of the vegetables. This is the first year that we have planted a large amount of the land in sweet corn, so we will see how we do. Hopefully it will be a good summer.

PESTO

2 cups of fresh, clean and patted dry basil leaves
2-4 good-sized garlic cloves, peeled and chopped (amount of garlic depends on your preference. I use two cloves.)
1 cup shelled walnuts
1 cup quality olive oil
1 cup freshly-grated Parmesan cheese
¼ cup freshly-grated Romano cheese
salt and fresh ground pepper to taste

Combine the basil, garlic and walnuts in a food processor or halve the recipe and use a blender and chop. Leave the motor running and add the olive oil in a slow steady stream.

Shut the motor off, add the cheese, a big pinch of salt and a liberal grinding of pepper. Process briefly to mix, the scrape into a bowl and cover until ready.

This is one of my favorite summertime recipes when I have a bounty of fresh basil. It makes two cups which is enough for a sauce of two pounds of pasta. I put one cup measure in a freezer bag and freeze. I give these out to friends with a pound of linguine and directions.

I also make enough so my husband and I have fresh pesto yearround. It freezes well. Sometimes I just put the sauce on toasted French bread for appetizers. Enjoy!

My husband, Charlie Miller, and myself are married 17 years. We live in Stony Creek, Reading for 17 years. I run my small business, Chris Ziegler Studio, here.

I do custom framing and photo retouching. I love what I do and am blessed to have a husband who encourages me and my talent which is a gift from the Lord.

My husband works as a consultant for Dairymaster, a company that manufactures dairy milking equipment. He also loves his work so we are doubly blessed!

We live with our three beagles, Lukey, Barney and Penny. Being healthy is very important to me so I try to find recipes that keep us that way. I hope everyone enjoys this recipe as much as I.

ITALIAN CHEESE BREAD

2½ cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
1 tablespoon quick-rise yeast
1 cup warm water (120-130 degrees)
1 tablespoon vegetable oil

Topping

¼-⅓ cup prepared Italian salad dressing
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
¼ teaspoon dried oregano
¼ teaspoon dried thyme
dash pepper
1 tablespoon grated Parmesan cheese
1 cup shredded mozzarella cheese

In a bowl combine the first four ingredients. Combine water and oil; add to flour mixture. Add additional flour if needed to form a soft dough. Turn onto a floured surface; knead for one to two minutes or until smooth and elastic.

Place in a greased bowl, turning once to grease top. Cover and let rise in a warm place for 20 minutes. Punch the dough down; place on a greased 12-inch pizza pan and pat into a 12-inch circle.

Brush with salad dressing. Combine the seasonings; sprinkle over top. Sprinkle with cheese. Bake at 450 degrees for 15 minutes or until golden brown. Serve warm. Yield: one loaf.

Our names are Robin, John, Jimmy, (15) Mike, (12) and Jackie (4) Thompson. We live in Pulaski, which is in western Pennsylvania. We own a 200-acre dairy and hog operation. We are milking 32 registered Holsteins and raise 37 replacement heifers and have a 100-plus sow operation. We finish out 50 percent and sell 50 percent as feeder pigs.

Our children are a lot of help on the farm. The boys are active in the 4-H pig club, school band, baseball, and church.

Jimmy is our "up and coming" chef. He plans to attend a chef school upon high school graduation. This recipe is one of his favorites. He won the senior division of the 4-H cookoff in Lawrence County with this Italian cheese bread. When friends come to visit, they request "Jimmy's Bread."

EASY 4 BOWL CHEESE CAKE

3 egg whites beaten, not too stiff
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 cup thin cream
3 egg yolks
¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 tablespoon lemon juice
¼ cup butter
2 cups small curd cottage cheese

Mix egg yolks, sugar, vanilla, lemon juice, butter, and cottage cheese together. Cream butter and cottage cheese in another bowl. Mix both bowls together. Mix cornstarch with cream, then add to the already-mixed ingredients. Gently fold in egg whites. Bake at 400 degrees for 10 minutes then 350 degrees for one hour in a large 9-inch pie shell.

This recipe was given to me by my husband's mother, Minnie, over 50 years ago. She was a wonderful person and a great cook. She taught me very much.

We have a family dairy farm in Bucks County and milk 220 Holstein cows. The farm is run by my husband Roy and two of our sons, Arthur and Tim. We have two other sons, Alan and Mark. We were blessed a fifth time by the Lord with a girl, Eileen, who was the 1979-1980 Pennsylvania Dairy Princess. We have six granddaughters and six grandsons plus four wonderful daughters-in-"love" and one wonderful son-in-"love."

JAM BARS

2 sticks softened butter
1 cup sugar
2 egg yolks
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup apricot or peach preserves

Cream together everything except the preserves. Pat ⅔ of the dough in a greased 9x13-inch pan.

Carefully cover dough with preserves. Dot with remaining bits of dough.

Bake at 350 degrees for about 40 minutes or until dough is set. Cool and cut into 24 squares.

This recipes comes from a friend who brought it to a 20-year college reunion of my husband's ag engineering class. We were thrilled that every member of the class came to the reunion at our farm, and in 2001 we hope to have the 30-year celebration!

My husband John is a crop farmer and I am a quilter who specializes in hand-finishing tops, both antique and new, for other quilters. We live in the beautiful Finger Lakes region of New York. We have two daughters, Linnell, 14, and Serita, 11, who keep us on our toes.

The cookie jar in our shop empties fast in summer, so this is a quick and tasty shortbread-type bar I make when time is short. I read Lancaster Farming for the B section while my husband reads the auction and machinery ads. Some of the column writers seem like old friends.

PUMPKIN CHEESECAKE

2½ pounds cream cheese
1 cup granulated sugar
4 large eggs, lightly beaten
3 egg yolks, lightly beaten
3 tablespoons flour
2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon ground cloves
1 teaspoon ground ginger
1 cup heavy cream
1 tablespoon vanilla extract
1-pound can mashed pumpkin

Preheat oven to 425 degrees. In a large bowl, beat together cream cheese, sugar, eggs, and yolks. Add flour, cinnamon, cloves, and ginger. Beat in the cream and the vanilla, then add the mashed pumpkin and beat at medium speed on an electric mixer until just mixed thoroughly.

Pour the mixture into the prepared crust and bake for 15 minutes. Reduce the oven temperature and bake for 15 minutes. Reduce the oven temperature to 275 degrees and bake for an additional hour.

Turn off the heat but leave the cake in the oven overnight to cool. Serve warm or chilled with whipped cream.

My husband, William, and I have three daughters. Daughters Crystal and Alethea were both in 4-H showing sheep and goats in Bucks county. I enjoy your paper very much since I have collected so many recipes, and still do, that are luscious.

BLUEBERRY DELIGHT

2 cups flour
2 sticks butter
8 ounces cream cheese
1 cup powdered sugar
1 can blueberry pie filling

Mix flour and butter until crumbly and press into a 13x9-inch pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes or just until it starts to turn brown. Cool.

Soften cream cheese and mix together with the powdered sugar. Spread on cooled crust.

Spread pie filling over cream cheese layer. Top with whipped cream and refrigerate.

This recipe is one of the first my daughter Royell made by herself. Her daddy tells everyone that "it's not good, don't eat it — so there will be more for me." He winks and laughs while he says it, then hugs Royell and says "please make some more."

We live in Lebanon County and work on dairy farms. Bob and I have three children, Royell, 8; Ry, 2¾; and Millena, 8 months.

RHUBARB CUSTARD BARS

Crust:

2 cups all-purpose flour
¼ cup sugar
2 sticks butter

Topping:

6 ounces softened cream cheese
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla extract
1 cup whipping cream, whipped

Combine the flour and sugar; cut in butter until mixture resembles course crumbs. Press into a greased 13x9-inch pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 10 minutes. Meanwhile, for filling, combine sugar and flour in bowl. Whisk in cream and eggs. Stir in the rhubarb.

Pour over crust. Bake at 350

ANSWER — Betsy Rust, Hamburg, N.J., requested a recipe for poppy seed salad dressing. Thanks to Cindy Simpson, Fairfield, for sending two versions, a regular and a healthier recipe. Pick your choice.

Poppy Seed Dressing

⅓ cup sugar
2 tablespoons vinegar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon dry mustard
½ cup vegetable or canola oil
1 tablespoon poppy seeds

Mix sugar, vinegar, lemon juice, salt, and mustard in one-quart bowl. Gradually add oil, beating with electric mixer or hand beater until thick and smooth; stir in poppy seeds. Cover and refrigerate at least two hours. Makes ¾ cup dressing.

Poppy Seed Dressing
Healthier Version

½ cup clean, raw cashews
¼ cup water
3 tablespoons lemon juice
3 tablespoons orange juice
1 tablespoon honey, or to taste
1 tablespoon chopped onion, or to taste
½ teaspoon celery salt
½ teaspoon paprika
1 tablespoon poppy seeds

Process all ingredients in blender, except poppy seeds, until very smooth. Stir in poppy seeds. Keep refrigerated in an airtight container. Makes five two tablespoon servings.

ANSWER — E. Brubaker had requested a recipe that tastes like Heintz Ketchup. Here is a different version than that printed in last week's issue. According to Shirley Swendsen, Lakewood, this recipe was supplied by the Heintz Company during World War II because the company was unable to meet the demands of suppliers. The company may have slightly modified this recipe over the years by decreasing the amount of sugar and cinnamon.

Heinz's Tomato Ketchup

1 cup distilled white vinegar
1½ teaspoons whole cloves
3-inch stick cinnamon
½ teaspoon whole allspice
1 teaspoon celery seed
8 pounds tomatoes
1 cup onions, peeled, sliced
¼ teaspoon cayenne pepper
½ cup granulated sugar
4 teaspoons salt

Combine vinegar, cloves, cinnamon stick, allspice, and celery seed. Bring to a boil; remove from heat. Cover and set aside so that vinegar will absorb spices.

Wash and cut tomatoes into quarters; combine with sliced onions and cayenne pepper. Boil uncovered, 20 minutes, stirring occasionally to prevent sticking. Press vegetable mixture through sieve. Combine with sugar in a large kettle. Boil, uncovered, stirring frequently until volume is halved, about one hour and 15 minutes.

Meanwhile, strain vinegar solution; discard spices. Add spiced vinegar and salt to boiling tomato mixture. Continue boiling, uncovered, 30 minutes longer or until thickened, stir frequently. Quickly pour into hot, sterilized jars. Fill to within ½ inch from top. Cap each jar at once. Process 5 minutes in boiling water bath. Makes 2 pints.

Note: If this recipe is doubled, a longer cooking time will probably be required and a slightly darker product may result.

ANSWER — For the reader who requested recipes using raw sugar, here are several from Sugar In The Raw, Turbinado Sugar from Natural Cane. For a free copy of a the recipe brochure, A Tropical Taste of the Islands, send a self-addressed, stamped, business-size envelope (55 cents postage) to Tropical Taste: Brooklyn Premium Corp., 60 Flushing Ave., Brooklyn, NY 11205. Allow 4-6 weeks for processing.

Pineapple Upside-Down Cake

Golden Fruit Topping:
14 pineapple slices, fresh or canned
½ cup Sugar In The Raw
¼ cup unsalted butter, softened
2 kiwi-fruits, peeled, sliced
14 fresh strawberries, halved, pitted

Golden Cake:
3 large egg yolks
½ cup whole milk plain yogurt
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1½ cups sifted cake flour
¾ cup Sugar In The Raw
¾ teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup plus 1 tablespoon unsalted butter, softened

To make fruit topping, drain pineapple slices, reserving 1 tablespoon juice on paper towels to absorb moisture. Cut six pineapple slices in half; reserve.

In skillet, stir together 1 tablespoon pineapple juice, sugar, and butter until dissolved. Simmer on medium/low heat 3 minutes, stirring constantly, until deep amber and caramelized. If using a cast iron skillet, simmer two minutes as mixture will continue cooking. Remove from heat immediately.

Without touching hot sugar, carefully place one whole pineapple slice in center of skillet and seven whole slices surrounding it. Place half slices side by side against sides of pan, the two cut edges down, touching the sugar.

To make the batter, in medium bowl, lightly combine egg yolks, ¼ of the yogurt and vanilla; set aside. In larger mixer bowl, combine cake flour, sugar, baking powder, baking soda, and salt; mix on low 30 seconds. Add butter and remaining yogurt. Mix on low until dry ingredients are moistened. Increase to medium speed and beat 1½ minutes. Scrape down sides. Gradually add egg mixture to batter, ⅓ at a time, beating 20 seconds after each addition. Pour batter into fruit-lined skillet smoothing evenly with spatula. Bake 40-50 minutes or until golden brown. (A toothpick inserted in center of cake will come out clean).

Remove pan to cooling rack to cool for 2 minutes; invert onto serving plate. Lift off skillet. Allow cake to cool completely. Just before serving, place kiwi slices in center of each pineapple slice. Place cherry halves, cut side down, on top of kiwi slices. Place remaining cherry halves around top edge of cake to fill any gaps between pineapple slices, if desired.

ANSWER — Thanks to Margaret Martin, Lititz, for sending this recipe.

Oatmeal Whoopie Pie

2 cups brown sugar
¾ cup butter
2 eggs
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups flour
2 cups oatmeal, uncooked
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon baking powder
2 teaspoons baking soda, dissolved in
3 tablespoons boiling water

Cream together sugar, butter, and eggs. Add salt, flour, oatmeal, cinnamon, and baking powder. Add baking soda water last. Beat. Drop by tablespoonful on pans. Bake at 350 degrees about 10 minutes.

Frosting:
2 egg whites
4 tablespoons flour
2 teaspoons vanilla
4 tablespoons milk
4 cups powdered sugar
1 cup Crisco

Beat egg whites until stiff. Add remaining ingredients and mix. Spread between two cookies.

ANSWER — For the reader who wanted recipes for a chocolate substitute, here is one of Linda Fisher's favorite recipes.

Carob Shoofly Pie

Top part:
1½ cups raw sugar
1 cup oil
2 eggs
4 tablespoons carob powder
1¼ cup honey mixed with ¾ cup unsulfered baking molasses
4 cups flour
2 cups hot water
1 tablespoon baking soda
2 tablespoons vanilla
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon salt

Mix together sugar, oil, eggs, and cocoa. Add baking soda to molasses-sugar mixture and hot water. Add this to sugar mixture and add flour, cinnamon, salt, and vanilla.

Bottom part:
1¼ cups sugar
3 tablespoons carob powder
5 tablespoons Clear Jel
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix and add 1 quart water and cook. Add vanilla. Divide the mixture into the bottoms of 6-8-inch unbaked pie shells. Divide top part between pie shells.

Bake at 350 degrees for 45-50 minutes. When cooled, top with frosting. Cook together:
½ cup sugar
⅔ cup milk
3 tablespoons butter

Cook for one minute and add ¾ cup carob bits and stir until melted. Wait until mixture thickens (5-10 minutes) and spread on top of each pie.

Delicious with ice cream.

Baker Accepts Tioga County Dairy Princess Crown

Kimberly Baker, seated, accepted the title of Tioga County Dairy Princess from outgoing Dairy Princess Genie Bruce.

CAROLYN N. MOYER
Tioga Co. Correspondent

WHITNEYVILLE (Tioga Co.) — It was a bittersweet moment for the Baker family, Covington, as 16-year-old Kimberly Baker was crowned the Tioga County dairy princess at a pageant last week.

"I want to thank everyone for the opportunity to promote dairy products. I'm sure it will be an exciting year and I'll meet lots of new people," she said.

Baker, who will be a junior at Mansfield High School in the fall, resides on the 500-acre Baker family farm which raises both Holsteins and Jerseys. Baker's slate of activities include musical and sports events, 4-H, National Honor Society, and the Mainesburg Methodist Church's youth group. She also has served as a dairy maid in Tioga County.

William Baker escorted his daughter to the stage where she accepted her crown and a bouquet of red roses. Red roses also adorned the tables in memory of Kimberly's mother, who was tragically killed in an automobile accident in December.

The late Rebecca "Becky" Baker contributed many hours of service to dairy promotion and served as the coordinator of the Tioga County Dairy Princess Program for several years.

'The dairy princess program was very near and dear to Becky Baker long before her daughters were old enough to be involved," said Sheri Butters in a tribute to her memory.

"I'd like to openly say thank you, Becky, for your dedication to the program and the countless hours you contributed. We'll miss you much, but your influences and dreams will last forever in the lives of the people you have touched."

With those words, Butters called outgoing dairy princess Genie Bruce to the stage and presented a monetary award to her from the Baker family. Bruce thanked the Baker family as well as all of the people who helped her throughout her reign as the 2000 princess, and wished the new dairy court luck.

"I had a great time," she said.

Helping promote Tioga County's dairy industry are five junior representatives. Named dairy ambassadors are Sarah Butler, daughter of Robert and Karen Butler; Sara Derstine, daughter of Jon and Betsy Derstine; and Renee Norman, daughter of David and Aggie Norman. Kaitlyn Johnson, daughter of Charles and Sandra Johnson, and Crystal Miles, daughter of Kenny Miles and Elizabeth and Andrew Costly, were named dairy maids.

Kaitlyn Johnson, Sarah Butler, Renee Norman, Crystal Miles, and Sara Derstine were named junior representatives. They will wear dairy maid and dairy ambassador banners as they help promote dairy products in Tioga County this year.

Justin Kaufman Befriends Cows

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

SOMERSET (Somerset Co.) — Justin Kaufman likes cows...period! He makes friends with cows. At Grazing Valley Farm where he lives, Justin remembers the name of every cow without looking at the eartag.

"I think a lot of it is they have to trust you. I am usually always talking to them," he says but it's anybody's guess what secrets he tells them.

That is probably why his cow didn't mind Justin running the clipper over her ear when she was in the barn lying down at the county fair. Someone said they never saw that happen before.

Five years ago, when he was 10, Justin watched an adult clip a cow once or twice. After that he just taught himself how you clip a cow. Justin's gift with cows is like an artist with a paint brush.

There is very little he can't do with cows but he also likes to go fishing and hunting. He shot a deer once.

In the stream that goes by his house, Justin caught a native brown trout. It was 16½-inches long. That was too big to make a tasty meal so he put it back in the water.

It will soon be show time for Justin and his 10-year old sister, Janna. They like to show dairy animals at the Somerset County Fair. They are thinking about getting their animals ready for the show ring. Janna depends on her brother to help her know when the calf is standing right and if she is holding the halter right.

She will show a young Holstein and Justin will show one Guernsey and one Holstein His favorite breed is Guernsey. They act a little nicer than Holsteins is his opinion.

When he was asked how you get cows ready to show he said, "I pretty well walk the cows every day and keep them as clean as I can."

Keeping the cow clean means Justin has to put new bedding down after he takes the old bedding out. He has to take out the manure every day, too.

Then he trains the cow to be on a halter by walking her. She will have to be washed if she gets dirty. A couple of days before the show he will clip the cow.

He says kids should know things about their cow so they can answer questions the judge asks. Especially the animal's date of birth, its full name and sire.

Last year Justin had a funny experience. The cow he was showing fell asleep on her feet in the show ring.

It was a long day and the cow was very tired. Justin said he was tired, too, but then he won the Grand Champion Showman in the dairy show.

"Sometimes at a show you get questions from people," he said. "The day I am the busiest is when I end up talking to people."

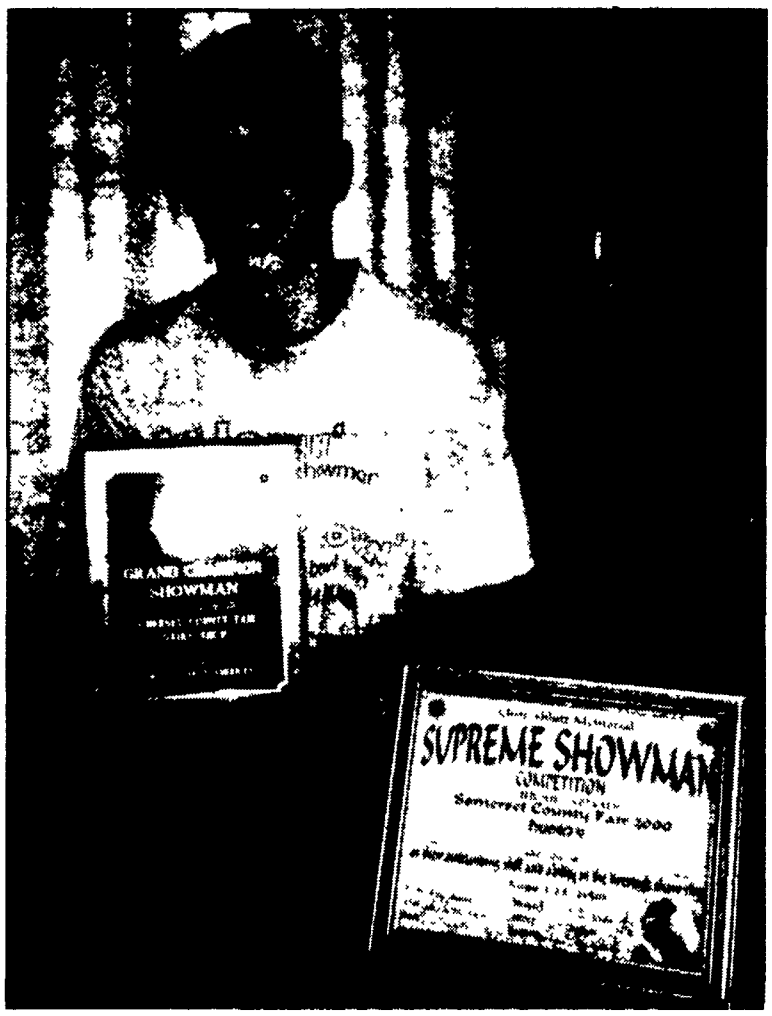
Last year a new show was held to give the showman champions more experience. They competed for the Chris Shultz Memorial Supreme Showman Award by showing other animal species — horses, goats, dairy, swine, sheep and beef — at the Somerset County Fair.

Justin said horses were the worst part of the competition for him. 'I just didn't feel right leading a horse," he said. Other than that getting acquainted with 4-Her's from other clubs was a terrific experience. He learned a lot, and so did they.

The kids have an older brother. His name is Jeff and he attends college. Their parents are Allen and Gloria Kaufman.

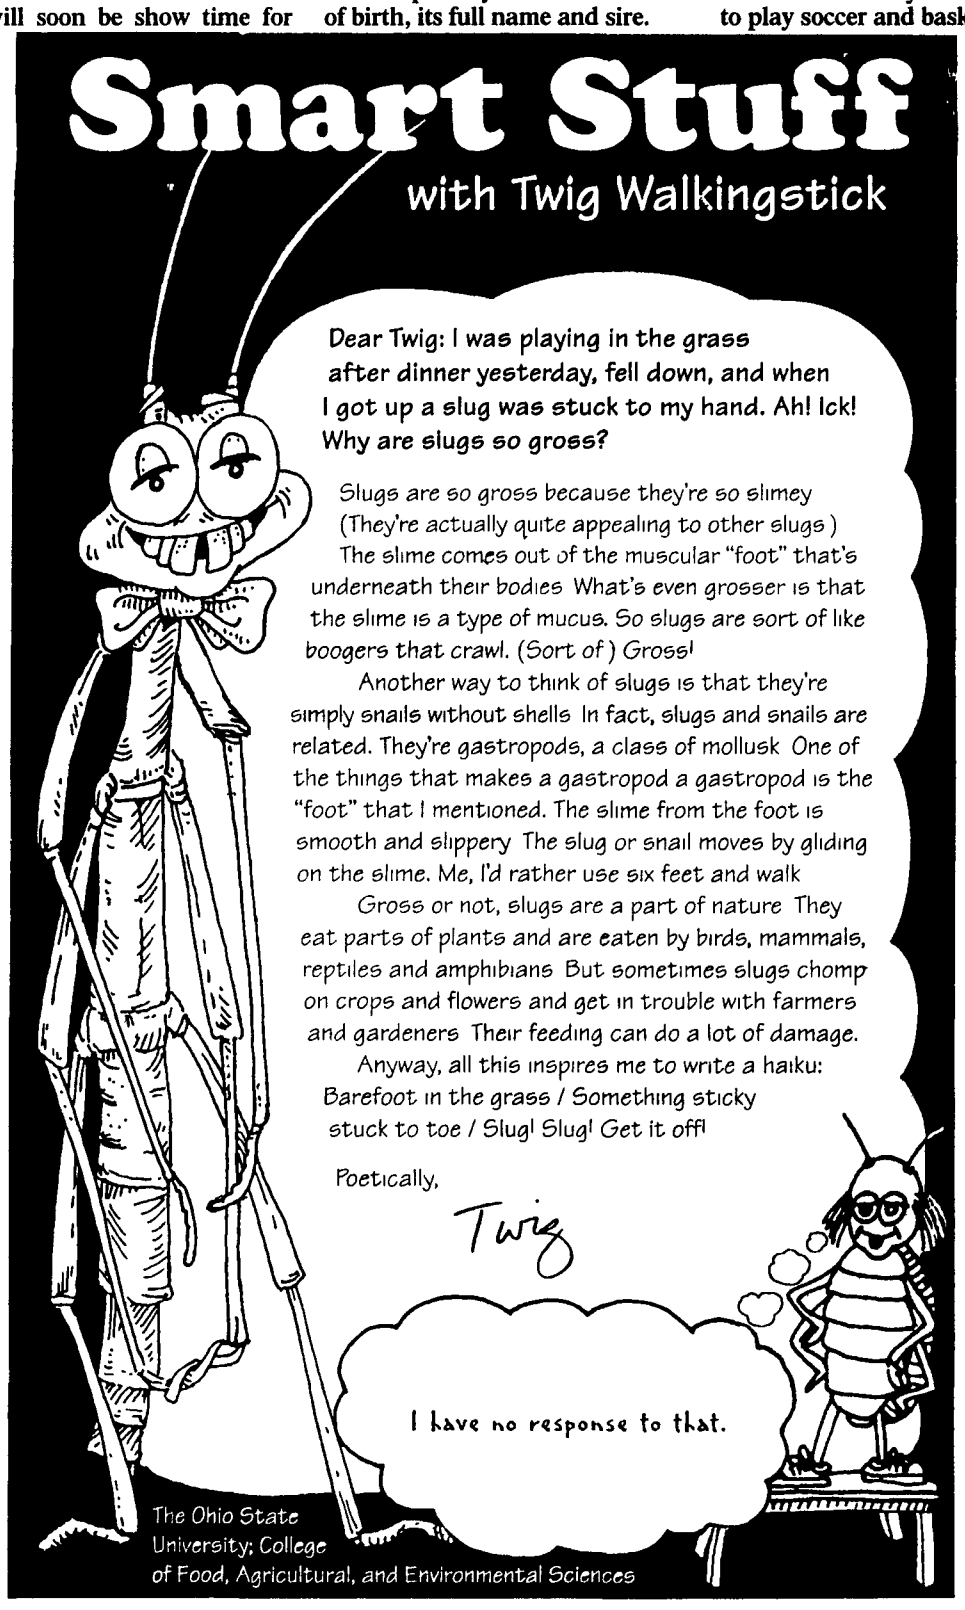
"I like having older brothers," Janna said. 'They teach me how to play soccer and basketball."

Justin Kaufman brings "Elly" out of the barn for exercise. He will show the Guernsey this summer in the fall yearling class.



Justin Kaufman, 15, loves cows and shows dairy animals at the fair. He has a plaque for being the dairy grand champion showman at the Somerset County Fair. He also competed for the supreme showman award.

Justin Kaufman pretends to pull his 10-year-old sister's, Janna's, hair while she holds her violin. She is giggling, because she knows that he really is a great brother who helps her improve her skills in showing animals at the fair.



Smart Stuff
with Twig Walkingstick
Dear Twig: I was playing in the grass after dinner yesterday, fell down, and when I got up a slug was stuck to my hand. Ah! Ick! Why are slugs so gross?
Slugs are so gross because they're so slimey (They're actually quite appealing to other slugs) The slime comes out of the muscular "foot" that's underneath their bodies What's even grosser is that the slime is a type of mucus. So slugs are sort of like boogers that crawl. (Sort of) Gross!
Another way to think of slugs is that they're simply snails without shells In fact, slugs and snails are related. They're gastropods, a class of mollusk One of the things that makes a gastropod a gastropod is the "foot" that I mentioned. The slime from the foot is smooth and slippery The slug or snail moves by gliding on the slime. Me, I'd rather use six feet and walk
Gross or not, slugs are a part of nature They eat parts of plants and are eaten by birds, mammals, reptiles and amphibians But sometimes slugs chomp on crops and flowers and get in trouble with farmers and gardeners Their feeding can do a lot of damage.
Anyway, all this inspires me to write a haiku:
Barefoot in the grass / Something sticky stuck to toe / Slug! Slug! Get it off!
Poetically,
Twig
I have no response to that.

Butler County Dairy Princess Nicole Boyle and Alternate Jamie Love are eager to promote milk.

Butler County Selects Dairy Princess

CLEARVIEW (Butler Co.) — Nicole Boyle, Evans City, was crowned the dairy princess for Butler County. Jamie Love, Renfrew, is the alternate dairy princess.

Nicole, the 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Boyle, is entering her senior year at Seneca Valley School. She is active in 4-H activities in the county including the president of the Butler County Dairy Club, a member of the county judging team, and a camp counselor. Nicole and her brother Nathan enjoys showing Guernsey dairy animals at the fairs and farm shows.

Jamie Love, Saxonburg, the daughter of Jim and Nancy Love. She will be a junior at Knoch High School and is involved in FFA and Butler County Dairy Club secretary. She is a member of the Junior Holstein Club. She and her brother Michael show Holsteins.

DENVER, Colo. — A new public relations and Internet campaign to reach the consumers of tomorrow — and today — is now underway through the beef checkoff. The venture, featuring figure skating sensation Sasha Cohen, tells girls to stay fit and eat smart with foods like beef.

Cohen was the silver medallist at the 2000 U.S. Figure Skating Nationals, placing right behind Michele Kwan. This 16-year-old knows that eating nutritious foods is important for her athletic performance. "I want to thank beef producers for letting me be a part of this important campaign to help girls eat better," says Cohen. "I love beef and have learned a great deal about how important its nutrients are."

Cohen is a native of California and began skating when she was seven. Her entire family enjoys beef.

Cohen was the star attraction at an "Ice Sides" event to launch the youth public relations program in March with four top editors in New York City. She gave personal interviews and figure skating demonstrations to the editors of Seventeen (2.3 million circulation), TeenPeople, (1.5 million), Teen Beat (155,000) and Elle Girl (to be launched this fall).

In April, a media kit, themed "Building a Champion," was sent to 90 magazines, online media and syndicated youth columnists. This resulted in additional interviews with Teen Celebrity (250,000 circulation), Tiger Beat (300,000), All About You (430,000), and Blast (400,000). Stories are expected to begin appearing this fall.

The industry's checkoff-funded youth web site, BurgerTown (www.burgertown.com), is adding "Sasha's Corner" in a few weeks. It will first feature tips on eating smart and staying fit, and fun food ideas using beef. Later this year, it will add a motivational diary from Sasha and even a special chat session with her.

What Are Fat Substitutes?

Fat-reduction ingredients may be classified into three categories: carbohydrate-based, protein-based, or fat-based.

Polydextrose, modified food starch, maltodextrins, xanthan gum, and cellulose gel are examples of carbohydrate-based fat replacers, which provide 0 to 4 calories per gram. They contribute bulk, creaminess, thickening, and stabilization to reduced-fat and fat-free foods such as frozen desserts, baked goods, salad dressing, and dairy products.

Protein-based fat replacers, such as those from whey or egg white, are produced by simultaneously heating and blending them to make protein emulsions that mimic the creamy mouth feel of fat. Soy and corn are also sources of protein for the production of these ingredients. Protein-based fat-reduction ingredients provide 1 to 4 calories per gram, and are used in such foods as mayonnaise, salad dressings, baked goods, and a variety of dairy products.

The fat-based substitutes simulate real fat in taste, texture, and mouth feel. Some of these products can be used just like regular oils, such as for frying, while others are more suitable as food ingredients. Depending on the degree to which fat-based fat-reduction ingredients are absorbed by the body, they can provide between 0 and 5 calories per gram. Olestra, salatrim, and mono- and diglycerides are examples of fat-based fat-reduction ingredients.

degrees. For topping, beat cream cheese, sugar, and vanilla until smooth. Fold in whipped cream, then spread over top. Cover and chill. Store in refrigerator. Yield: three dozen bars.

This is our favorite rhubarb recipe. Always a special treat in the spring. We live on a dairy farm, so we use lots of milk!

We have four children, Tim, 9; Michael, 8; Diane, 6; and Crystal, 3. The boys are a big help in the barn, feeding calves and helping Dad with the milking. The girls like to help too, especially with taking care of the cats.

My husband Dan and I thank the Lord for our healthy children. I always look forward to June Dairy Month!

BLACK WALNUT CAKE

1 stick butter
½ cup shortening
2 cups sugar
5 eggs (separated)
1 cup buttermilk
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon cream of tartar
1 teaspoon baking soda
1½ cups crushed black walnuts

ream butter and shortening; gradually add sugar and beat until light and fluffy and sugar is dissolved. Add egg yolks and beat well. Combine buttermilk and soda (will fizz until soda is dissolved.

Add flour alternately with buttermilk — begin and end with flour. Add vanilla and crushed walnuts. Stir.

Beat egg whites and cream of tartar until stiff peaks form, fold into batter. Pour into prepared 9x12-inch pan. Bake at 350 for approximately 35-40 minutes until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Cool and frost. I use the canned cream cheese vanilla and sprinkle top with additional black walnuts.

This does take some extra time but it is worth it. It is one of Ken's favorites. I do the cooking and bookkeeping for Rexroth Farms, owned by Ken Rexroth and his son Jim. They milk Holsteins, raise beef cattle, and grow corn, soybeans, alfalfa, wheat and barley. It sure is busy around here now. Hoping prices get better. I sure enjoy reading all the recipes and saving the ones I think will be liked on this farm. I also like reading all the personal info that the cooks share with you, that's why I like the June issues best.

CHOCOLATE REVEL BARS

2 sticks butter, softened
2 cups brown sugar
2 eggs
2 teaspoons vanilla
2½ cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking soda
3 cups quick cooking oats
6 ounces chocolate chips
14 ounce can sweetened condensed milk
2 tablespoons butter
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons vanilla
1 cup nuts, chopped (optional)

Cream together softened butter and brown sugar in a large mixing bowl. Add eggs, vanilla, flour, salt, and baking soda. Stir in oats, mix well.

Spread ⅔ of the mixture onto a 15x10x1-inch lightly-greased jelly roll pan. Melt together chocolate chips, milk, butter, and salt, stirring constantly over low heat. Blend in vanilla. Add nuts.

Spread over mixture in pan. Dot with remaining dough. bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes.

BAKED POTATOES WITH CREAM

7 medium potatoes, about seven cups
2 cups heavy cream
salt and pepper to taste
4 tablespoons freshly-grated Parmesan cheese

Preheat oven to 450 degrees or 425 degrees if you are using a glass baking dish. Peel and cut potatoes into slices less than ½-inch thick.

Place half of the potatoes in a greased 13x9-inch baking dish. Pour half of the cream over top. Sprinkle with salt, pepper, and half the Parmesan cheese. Layer with remaining potatoes and repeat with remaining cream, salt, pepper, and Parmesan cheese.

Bake for about 45 minutes or until golden and potatoes are tender. Watch closely the last 15 minutes — if the top if getting too brown, cover with foil. Baking time can vary somewhat according to how thick you slice the potatoes. Cooking time will take longer if you use a smaller but deeper baking dish.

I am 18 years old and work on a 70-cow dairy farm. In the summer we have a fresh fruit and vegetable stand. This dish is our favorite for those busy summer days.

BUTTERMILK COOKIES

6¼ cups brown sugar
4 sticks butter
2 teaspoons vanilla
2 tablespoons baking soda
1 quart buttermilk
10 cups flour
1 tablespoon cream of tartar
1 teaspoon cinnamon or cloves
1 teaspoon salt

Cream together sugar, butter, and vanilla. Add dry ingredients alternately with buttermilk Blend well. Drop by teaspoon on cookie sheet and bake at 350 degrees for approximately 15 minutes.

When cool dust with powdered sugar or frost with vanilla icing.

This is a big recipe and gives a lot of cookies. But with a growing family of three girls and two boys they sure don't last too long. They also freeze well.

We don't live on a farm but I always enjoy looking over the recipes and trying new ones. Also interesting to read about other families in the June dairy month issues.

DAIRY CASSEROLE

2 quarts raw grated potatoes
2 cups uncooked macaroni
1 pint uncooked peas
2 cups meat of your choice (ham, ground beef, hot dogs)
3 teaspoons salt
½ cup onion
1 pound grated cheese
2 quarts milk

Mix ingredients and bake at 250-300 degrees for 2½ hours. Serves 15 people.

This is good to put in the oven for Sunday dinner. I enjoy the June dairy recipes.

ORANGE DREAM SHAKE

1 cup vanilla ice cream
6 ounce can frozen orange (thawed)
3 cups cold milk

Place ice cream and frozen orange in bowl and cover. Beat until smooth and frothy. Pour into tall chilled glasses. Top with scoops of ice cream and serve immediately.

A delicious beverage!

BLUE CHEESE DIP

8-ounce package cream cheese
4 ounces blue cheese, crumbled
¼ cup evaporated milk
3 tablespoons chopped pimento
⅓ cup chopped green pepper
¼ teaspoon garlic salt

Soften cream cheese; add blue cheese and beat until creamy. Stir in remaining ingredients. Chill the dip until ½ hour before serving. Serve with melon balls. Makes two cups.

CORN CHOWDER

5 slices bacon
1-pound can whole kernel corn
1 medium onion, thinly sliced
1 cup diced raw pared potatoes salt to taste
1 can condensed cream of celery soups
1½ cups milk

In large saucepan, cook bacon until crisp. Remove bacon, reserve drippings. Drain corn, reserving liquid. Add reserved liquid to bacon drippings in saucepan, along with onion, potatoes, and salt. Cover and simmer 15 minutes or until vegetables are tender. Add soup, milk, and corn. Heat through. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Crumble bacon over top. Serves 5-6 people.

Charles and I are still making indoor and outdoor furniture. This is my favorite dairy recipe and we love it. I enjoy recipes from Lancaster Farming and try new dishes. Cooking always makes me feel happy when I can give people my baked goods, like my homemade candy, cakes, and cookies. I like to send recipes in, also.

We are going to be married 32 years in August. We have no children, but we have one cat in the workshop and two outside.

M & M DREAM BARS

2 cups oatmeal
1 cup brown sugar
1½ cup flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup coconut (optional)
1 cup melted butter
⅓ cup peanut butter
1 cup sweetened condensed milk
1 cup M & Ms or milk chocolate chips

Mix first seven ingredients until crumbly. Reserve 1½ cup crumbs. Press remaining crumbs in a 9x13-inch pan.

Bake 12 minutes at 350 degrees. Mix peanut butter and milk and pour over baked crust. If this mixture seems too thick to pour nicely, I just microwave it a little to make it easier to pour. Sprinkle M & Ms or milk chocolate chips on top and the reserved crumbs. Press down lightly. Bake

20 minutes at 350 degrees. Cool before cutting.

I received this recipe from a friend and have since given it to others. It doesn't take long to make and of course those recipes are what I like.

My husband Nelson and I and our three children, Travis, 7; Janita, 4; and Brian, almost 3, live on a dairy farm near Mount Joy. It's very rewarding especially to Nelson, who didn't grow up on a farm, to see our children living the farm life. Of course, like any occupation it has its ups and downs.

CHEDDAR HERB BREAD

1 cup finely shredded cheddar cheese
½ cup softened butter
¼ cup minced fresh or dried parsley
1 minced garlic clove
½ teaspoon garlic powder
½ teaspoon paprika
1-pound loaf French bread, sliced

In a mixing bowl combine the first six ingredients; beat until smooth. Spread on both sides of each slice of bread; reassemble loaf. Wrap in a large piece of heavy duty foil; seal tightly.

Grilling instructions: Covered over medium heat for 14-20 minutes or until heated through.

Baking instructions: Bake at 375 degrees for 15-20 minutes.

This crunchy, delicious bread is a hit with my family and whoever we serve it to! Since we make our own whole wheat bread, we often shape our bread dough into French bread to use with this recipe.

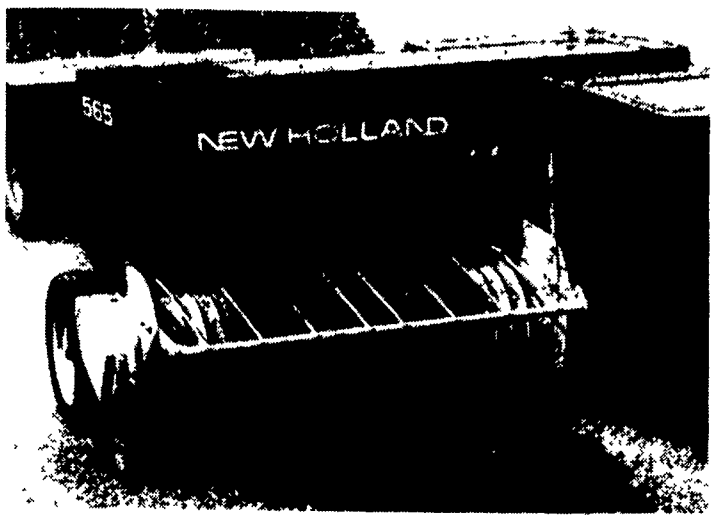
NEW HOLLAND

SQUARE, ROUND, WRAP

Designed and Built to Meet Your Needs & Quality



High capacity–High quality

The 565 New Holland square baler is designed and built to meet your capacity and quality requirements season after season.

- Wide Super-Sweep™ pickup gets all the hay
- Big feed opening... swallows big windrows
- Strong feeding system... Flow Action® feeder for long life
- Strong materials... in bale case and plunger
- Gear-driven twine system

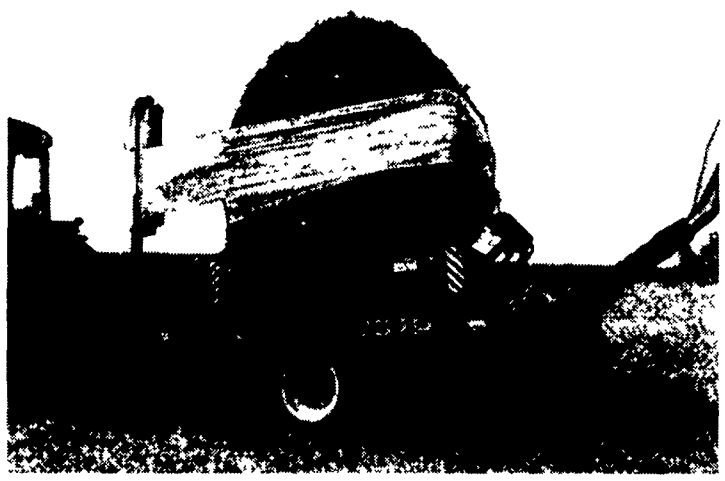
The New Holland 565 consistently gives you tight, 14 x 8-inch bales. But don't take our word for it. Stop in today for a demonstration.

Small baler. Big features.

Our Model 638 Roll-Belt™ round baler is the smallest in the line, but it has the same features and functions as New Holland's larger balers. You can count on dense, uniform 4-ft.-by-4-ft. bales every time.

- Roll-Belt design makes uniform bales weighing up to 750 lbs.
- Requires a minimum 40-PTO-hp tractor

See the Model 638 today!



Put quality silage under wraps

New Holland round bale wrappers are the low-cost alternative to traditional silage storage—they seal your silage bales in "mini silos." You can harvest silage during peak feed quality, store it with greater flexibility, and feed it more efficiently with less waste.

Two models offer a side-mounted lifting arm, three-belt turntable, two large side-support rollers, and cable controls. The B37P is available with computer controls.

Stop by for a demonstration today!

Somerset Maple Producers Elect Directors, Present Awards

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

SALISBURY (Somerset Co.) — MEYERSDALE (Somerset Co.) — Three directors of the Somerset County Maple Producers Association whose terms of office were expiring this year, were recently re-elected to 3- year terms, at the annual awards banquet and dinner meeting.

They are Eric Arnold, Arnolds Camp, Rockwood; Ron Brenneman, Brennemans' Camp, Salisbury; and Everett Sechler, Sechlers Sugar Shack, Confluence.

Jeremy Walters, Berlin received the Champion Syrup Award from the PNC Bank, as well as the Maple King Award from the Somerset Rotary Club. While a member of the Berlin-Brothersvalley FFA and just out of high school a few years ago, young Walters set up his own sugar camp.

Natalie Foxwell, the 54th Pennsylvania Maple Queen who reigned over the Pennsylvania Maple Festival in Meyersdale, was shown appreciation for her efforts promoting the local maple industry. Matthew Emerick made the presentation of maple syrup to Foxwell in behalf of the maple producers.

"I am proud of our festival," Foxwell said and continued to recap the activities her title has required her to do.

Another representative of the Pennsylvania Maple Festival committee expressed heartfelt gratitude to the maple industry and assured them the festival, which gives the local businesses a boost every spring, could not go on without the maple producers themselves.

Because maple production does play a significant role in the state economy, Rep. Bob Bastian from Somerset, succeeded in having the state legislature declare April 1-8, as Maple Producers Week in Pennsylvania.

Richard Sturtz and Eric Greisinger presented unique entertainment comparing what the Civil War and World War II soldier dressed like.

The presenters discussed each item's purpose and revealed there had been many similarities but also dramatic differences in headgear, body gear, footwear, rations, tents, and artillery.

The fearsome bayonets they had with them definitely captured attention. The one used in the Civil War had a very long blade. It later was considered inhumane and was re-designed with a much shorter blade.

Roger Wahl of radio station WQZS gave the welcome and introductions. As president of the Somerset County Maple Producers Association, Ed Emerick conducted the meeting.

Delmarva Chicken Festival Concludes

POCOMOKE CITY, Md. — Despite intermittent showers from the remnants of tropical storm Allison, the enthusiasm of participants at the 53rd Delmarva Chicken Festival in Pocomoke City, Maryland was not dampened.

On June 15 and 16, Pocomoke City, hosted its first Delmarva Chicken Festival since 1966, put together a full schedule of activities to pay tribute to the broiler chicken, the most important bird on the Delmarva Peninsula. More than 20,000 people from throughout the nation visited Cypress Park in downtown Pocomoke City to learn more about the chicken industry, to eat chicken prepared in a variety of ways, to be entertained, and to enjoy a fun filled weekend of family activity.

Highlights included Delmarva's well-known giant fry pan, a home and trade show, arts and crafts show, a "chicken splash," a tug of war, and an antique and classic car show. The Chicken Capers games coordinated by DPI's Allied Industry Committee, and the educational exhibit prepared by poultry personnel at the University of Maryland, the University of Delaware, and Delaware State University drew young and old alike. In fact, one of the biggest attractions was the baby chick display, a perennial highlight of the festival.

Several tons of chicken were consumed during the two-day festival, much of which was prepared in the giant fry pan manned by the Pocomoke City Chamber of Commerce or barbecued by the Unionville Lodge 45 of the Prince Hall Masons. Other concessions offered chicken tenders, Thai-flavored chicken, chicken sandwiches, chicken salad, chicken livers, and chicken hot dogs.

The 54th Delmarva Chicken Festival is slated for June, 2002 in Seaford, Delaware, where organizers are beginning plans for the event's first visit to their community in 28 years.

Grassland FFA Planning Alumni Get Together

The officers and members of the Grassland FFA Chapter at Garden Spot High School are planning an FFA Reunion Picnic for Alumni of the Grassland FFA Chapter. The date is July 8 and will be held at Brubaker Park. A pork roast prepared by FFA Alumnus Floyd Huber will be served for a supper meal at 5 p.m.

Alumni and their families are encouraged to come early and enjoy a time of reminiscing with classmates and renew acquaintances. There will be volleyball, basketball and softball available. Bring your glove if you want to play or just enjoy a relaxing evening.

Alumni are asked to contact Sheila Charles at 445-6989 by June 27 so that the committee can have a count for the pig roast.

ICE CREAM DESERT

60 Ritz crackers, finely crushed
1 stick melted butter
2 packages instant vanilla pudding
1½ cups milk
2 quarts softened vanilla ice cream

Combine crackers and butter. Line serving dish with cracker crumbs. Add pudding to milk Let set, then beat in softened vanilla ice cream. Add ice cream mixture to lined dish. Sprinkle a few crumbs on top.

We live on a farm in Lebanon County. We farm about 195 acres with the help of our son. We also have dairy and two broiler houses. It keeps us busy, but it's fun most of the time!

CRUMB TOP BARS

2 cups brown sugar
2 cups flour
1 stick butter.

Mix into crumbs. Save one cup for topping. Add the following ingredients to the rest of the crumbs:

Topping:

1 egg, beaten
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup milk

Mix together and put in a 9x13 inch pan. Sprinkle with:

½ cup chocolate chips
¾ cup marshmallows

Cover with the cup of crumbs. Bake at 350 degrees for 20-25 minutes.

This is one of our favorite bar recipes. It is very simple to make and stays moist. I'm looking forward to all the god recipes which are printing in June.

We have lived on a dairy farm for six years. We have three children, Clair David, 4; Jay Evan, 3; and Lorelle, 1.

GOLDEN CREAM SOUP

3 cups chopped potatoes
1 cup water
½ cup celery slices
½ cup carrot slices
¼ cup chopped onion
1 teaspoon parsley flakes
1 chicken bouillon cube
½ teaspoon salt
dash of pepper
1½ cups milk
2 tablespoons flour
½ pound cubed Velveeta cheese

In a large saucepan combine potatoes, water, celery, carrots, parsley flakes, bouillon cube and seasonings. Mix well.

Cover and simmer 15 minutes or until vegetables are tender. Gradually add milk to flour, mixing until well blended. Add to vegetables. Cook until thickened. Add cheese. Stir until melted. Serves 6-8.

In August it will be three years that we live on a dairy farm, and we just love it. One nice thing about it, you never get bored. There's always plenty of fresh creamy milk on hand.

CHEESEBURGER CASSEROLE

1 pound hamburger
1 small chopped onion
1 teaspoon salt
dash pepper
½ cup bread crumbs
1 egg
tomato juice
½ pound sliced American cheese
2 cups mashed potatoes

Mix first six ingredients together with enough tomato juice to moisten well. Place ⅓ of the mixture in a greased two quart casserole dish. Cover with layer of cheese. Spread mashed potatoes over cheese. Cover with another layer of cheese. Put remaining meat mixture on top. Bake 350 degrees for one hour.

The famed Chocolate Mustache Mobile is rolling into Harrisburg, Hershey, York, and Trexlertown next week. The purpose is to educate kids and parents on the nutritious and delicious benefits of calcium-rich chocolate milk. Visit the site nearest you to chill out with free samples of smoothies made with white, chocolate or strawberry milk. Compete in a milk mustache photo contest and other fun events.

Survey Of America'sPediatricians Finds Doctors Choose Chocolate Milk

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Ninety-three percent of pediatricians are "concerned" children are not getting enough calcium in their diets, according to a new survey of America's pediatricians. That's why the famed Chocolate Milk Mustache Mobile is rolling into Harrisburg, to educate kids and parents about the nutritious and delicious benefits of calcium-rich chocolate milk.

"Children's nutrition is one of our most pressing health concerns," said Duane Alexander, M.D., and National Institute of Child Health and Human Development director. "By getting enough milk and calcium now, children and teens can help build strong and healthy bones for later in life. In fact, lowfat and fat free milk, including chocolate milk, offer more than nine essential nutrients important for good health."

Pediatricians agree, with nearly 60 percent citing lowfat or fat free chocolate milk as the "best beverage source of calcium," beating out calcium-fortified orange juice (30 percent) and soy beverage (8.6 percent).

Taste Sensation Tour Touts Doctors' Orders

The Chocolate Milk Mustache Mobile "Taste Sensation Tour" has taken to America's streets to help people bone up on calcium. This year, three Chocolate Milk Mustache Mobiles will visit more than 100 cities, touting tasty solutions to those calcium-deficient diets.

In Harrisburg, visitors can enter the famous milk mustache photo contest and don a chocolate, strawberry or white milk mustache for a chance to be Harrisburg's local milk mustache celebrity. Local winners will be selected to compete for their own national milk mustache ad, which will be featured in the official NBA magazine, Inside Stuff.

In addition, kids can test their calcium quotient at computer kiosks, while adults can complete an osteoporosis risk assessment. Those adults at high risk will be offered a free bone density test. New to this year's tour is the Milk Sensation Polling Station, where local residents can chill out with free samples of smoothies made with delicious milk flavors and cast their vote for their "favorite flavor." We will announce the hometown favorite at the end of the Harrisburg tour.

Tip Back This Tooth-Safe Treat

Parents can now feel positive about giving their kids chocolate milk. In fact, regular soft drinks (8-ounce serving) and most juice drinks and fruit punches contain about twice as much added sugar as an 8-ounce serving of chocolate milk. Plus, the amount of caffeine in a cup of chocolate milk (2 to 7mg) is similar to the amount found in decaffeinated drinks. Sodas contain up to 10 times more caffeine than chocolate milk.

One hundred percent of the pediatricians surveyed agree that calcium, found in milk, is important for children's growth and development. Unfortunately, 70 percent of girls ages 6-11 and 60 percent of boys ages 6-11 fail to meet their calcium recommendations set by the National Academy of Sciences.

Children and teens ages 9-18 need, 1,300 milligrams of calcium each day, the equivalent of about four 8-ounce glasses of milk, while kids ages 4-8 require 800 milligrams, the equivalent of about three 8-ounce glasses of milk.

New "got chocolate milk?" Brochure

Kids and parents can get this CliffsNotes™ on chocolate milk in the new "got chocolate milk?" brochure. The full-color brochure dispels myths about chocolate milk and features photos of milk mustache celebrities, cool-tasting milk smoothie recipes with scratch n' sniff stickers, a fun word scramble and nutritional facts about chocolate milk.

You ask ou answer

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know who to ask for answers.

"You Ask—You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and Answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask—You Answer, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Attention: Lou Ann Good.

Or, you may e-mail questions and answers to lgood.eph@lnpnews.com

Please clarify what question you are answering when responding.

Do not send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a reply. If we receive the answer, we will publish it as soon as possible. Please include your phone number because we sometimes need to contact the person to clarify details. We will not publish your phone number unless you request it.

QUESTION — Frank Rice, Blain, would like the words to "Wildwood Flower" and to "Bury Me Out On the Lone Praire."

QUESTION — Jackie Hall, Saxe, Va., wants instructions to make the colored moss on rock. She thinks it includes yogurt. Editor's Note: I am not familiar with the instructions using yogurt; however, I remember instructions requiring bluing and Mercurochrome combined to put on several pieces of coal. If someone has the instructions, please send.

QUESTION — Kathryn Robson, 1775 Mill Rd., Lebanon, PA 17042, wants to know where to purchase egg boxes for jumbo eggs. She needs about 100 boxes immediately and more in the future.

QUESTION — Gary Hearn, 10411 Windingridge Circle, Richmond, VA 23233, recently acquired a 1963 Studebaker E-38 1½ ton truck with 16,000 original miles. He wants to restore the truck, but the sheet metal is rusty. Hearn wants a source for rust-free fenders, doors, and hood. He will buy individual parts or purchase a whole truck for parts. Parts from ½ to 2-ton trucks manufactured between 1949-1964 will interchange.

QUESTION — Terry Raschel, 3797 Sells Mill Rd., Taneytown, Md., 21787, needs a used livestock scale. His sons are raising pigs for a 4-H project and need to keep track of the weight. The scale will be used about two months during each of the next 15 years. The scale need not be precise but should be fairly accurate.

QUESTION — Harold Stoudt, Hamburg had a beautiful pink double rosebud azalea of the evergreen variety. It was container grown and died this spring from root strangulation. She wants to know where she could buy a replacement in her area. She wants a field grown variety only because she lost numerous container-grown plants from too dense of root mass. It must be a double pink rosebud azalea.

QUESTION — Patty wants to purchase a purple and gold banner with a dowel and gold cord for hanging like those awarded to cattle champions. Evidently she wants a used one because she writes no preference in breed, year, class or win. E-mail Patty at sagewood@ticon.net

QUESTION — Tim Bowlgeois is an intern at the New Jersey Museum of Agriculture and is conducting research on the use of steam power for agriculture in New Jersey during the 1800s and early 1900s. His research is focused on the how, when, where, to what extent, and possibly who used steam tractors or engines in agriculture and other related fields such as lumber harvesting. Does anyone know of steam engine and tractor manufacturers or dealers that were based in New Jersey during that era. Any assistance would be greatly appreciation. Contact Tim at Rutgers, State University of New Jersey, 18384 CPO Way, New Brunswick, NJ 08901-8633 or phone (856) 447-5259.

QUESTION — Louise Oberholtzer, Shippensburg, wants the music to the songs, "Home On the Range" and "Country Roads."

QUESTION — The Yoder family is restoring an old spring wagon, with the name W&H Rowland — Philadelphia stamped on the springs. Does anyone know when this company was in business?

QUESTION — Mrs. Luke Hoover, Mifflinburg, wants to know where to buy flower bulb baskets, used to grow and store bulbs, at a low price.

QUESTION — Stephanie Luckenbaugh, Abbottstown, is looking for a recipe or instructions on making dandelion shampoo.

QUESTION — Diana Hansen, Turnersville, N.J., would like instructions for making with braided rugs from rags or the craft for painted floor mats.

QUESTION — Earl Brinton, Severn, Md., has a problem with crows nesting in his area. This resulted in no baby robins last year. What can be done to discourage crows from settling in residential neighborhoods?

ANSWER — Dave Kiser has an old stucco house in Highland County, Virginia. The house was built about 1890 and appears to be made from river rocks and some sort of cement or clay that was available at that time. The walls are approximately 12-inches thick. It has some pretty bad cracks, both inside and outside the house. Kiser used cement to repair the cracks, but it doesn't stick properly. He wanted to know the best materials to use to make these repairs? Thanks to Richard Knouse, Liverpool, for writing that most cement work before the turn of the century was lime based with clay, sand, loam, ash or hair. The ingredients depended on what was available locally when the job was being done. Most modern cements are portland mixes with gypsum added. Masonry cement is portland with lime added to help make it stick and keep it from drying as fast. You can usually get masonry cement (available at most brick and block plants by the bag) to stick to the lime-based cement by adding extra lime to the mix. Ask for hydrated mason's lime, available at the same plants. One bag of masonry cement is approximately nine ground spades by volume. Add 18 spades or less of good clean mason's sand (not concrete sand as most places use coarser sand for concrete) and add up to three spades of lime per bag of cement. Don't excede the three spades of lime as the strength of the cement begins to degrade after that.

You can cut down on the amount of sand if the mix still isn't sticking. Mix this dry until the color is uniform, then add water until it forms a paste. You'll have to experiment a little to find what works best, as sand varies a lot, as does the stone and cement your're trying to repair. Wet the area you want to repair before forcing the mortar into the cracks with a trowel pushing the mortar tight against the sides. If you can't keep enough to fill the crack flush the first time, let it set, and add more after the first sets hardens. Rewet the area around your repair if your going to add to it as the water helps to soften the old lime cement and helps the bond.

ANSWER — A Somerset County reader requested the words to the song, "Casey Jones," which is about a train engineer who died trying to stop a train. Thanks to Frank Rice, Blain, for sending the words writen by Wallace Saunders, an Illinois Central roundhouse worker who had known Jones.

Casey Jones

Kutztown Pennsylvania German Festival Is A Folklife Celebration Filled With Fun

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — For 52 consecutive years, the annual folklife festival in Kutztown has been a tradition. This year the festival runs from June 30 to July 8 at the Kutztown Fairgrounds. Hours are 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily. Admission is $9 adults, $8 seniors, children 12 and under free. Parking is free.

This community celebration in "Pennsylvania Dutch Country" is filled with pageantry, folk art, crafts, quilts, living history, antiques and collectibles, entertainment, kids' activities and, of course, lots of mouth-watering Pennsylvania Dutch food.

Every day during the Festival, there are demonstrations of traditional crafts by 200 of America's most respected folk artists and craftsmen. Again this year, three pieces of four original, signed, dated and numbered, limited edition folk art treasures will be auctioned off on the first day of the event. They include a framed, hand-painted theorem on velvet by Linda Brubaker, a handcrafted pewter hurricane lamp by Stuart Helble, a hand-woven coverlet by William Leinbach, and a hand-fashioned redware plate by Gerald Yoder.

With great attention to detail, world-renowned redware artists Ned Foltz, Lester Breininger, and Gerald Yoder share with visitors the techniques and mastery of their Pennsylvania German redware. Ivan Hoyt, Johnny and Eric Claypoole, and Bill Schuster — America's last remaining hex sign painters demonstrate the art form that is seen on countless barns in the Kutztown area. Johnny Claypoole was featured in Charles Kuralt's famous "On The Road" book and television series.

Folk art and crafts demonstrations range from pottery making, metal, and wood carving to fine furniture, dower chests and Bible boxes. The myriad of Pennsylvania Dutch and Early American crafts includes clothing, weavings, brooms, scherenschnitte (cut paper art), fraktur, folk instruments, hex signs, sundials, beeswax candles and figures and much more.

A Thousand Beautiful Quilts

Visitors return again and again to the Festival quilt barn to take in the visual excitement of more than 1,000 beautiful, locally handmade quilts and wall hangings, all of which are for sale. Each of these colorful creations represents the very best in traditional Pennsylvania Dutch quilting craft, and many hours of devoted work of people in the region. The opening day auction of 24 quilts judged best of the show attracts legions of bidders from the Mid-Atlantic region and beyond. Prize-winning quilts remain on display all week.

The daily Country Auction offers visitors the opportunity to bid on antiques and collectibles. Lucky bidders tote away boxes and armloads of bottles, crocks, tinware and almost every other imaginable item for 50 cents and up.

"Country Fun" For Everyone

Five stages of entertainment run continuously, a strolling Pennsylvania Dutch band entertains throughout the fairgrounds, and Lester Miller and The Country Folks fill the air with fiddling, foot-stomping music and jigging and hoe-down dancing. Miller also leads a "square dancing free-for-all" Wednesday and Friday evenings, inviting visitors to join in. The sweeter sounds of an acappella choir, modeled from the Ephrata Cloister, performs centuries-old music of Mennonite community.

Kids love the story times and puppet animals in the Children's Farmyard Theatre. For a real feel of country life, there are pony rides, "mule-powered"flying swings from the 1800s (the only ride of its kind left in America), a hay maze, magic acts, and cake walks. Noah's Ark farm family zoo gives everyone a chance to pet piglets, calves, lambs, bunnies and other friendly critters. Since children ages 12 and under are admitted free with an adult, a family can share a full day of entertainment for less than the cost of a family outing at a movie.

Story telling and living history events help to make this a true folklife festival. Traditional meal preparation, clothing, folk medicine, quilting history, and Mennonite meeting house services are presented daily. Cow milking, sheep shearing, wool carding, spinning, weaving and dyeing, soap making, candle making, blacksmithing, and furniture making are featured. An old-fashion four-square kitchen and medicinal herb garden, and exhibits of antique farming equipment bring the region's fascinating farm heritage to life. Informal seminars depict the traditional "Mountain Mary" who shares stories about folk medicines and healing. The clang of a school bell calls children and adults to "classes" in the 19th century-style one-room schoolhouse.

Plenty of Pennsylvania Dutch Food

A true Pennsylvania Dutch celebration festival boasts bountiful food. Festival-goers feast on all-you-can eat, home-style meals prepared and served by local churches, savor traditional ox roast or chicken dinners, and enjoy delicacies such as homemade corn pie and the unique Kutztown Dutch fries. Funnel cakes, strawberry shortcake, shoofly pie, hot waffles, and ice cream sundaes round out what can be an almost-nonstop eating event. Again in 2001, the preparation of a complete Pennsylvania Dutch meal by local cooks will be demonstrated daily. The meal is served country style to a Pennsylvania Dutch "family" of Festival participants attired in period costume.

Goodies to go are available in the Farmers' Market, with jellies, preserves, relishes, homemade breads and desserts, smoked meats and cheeses and farm fresh produce in abundance and ready to take home.

A distinctive Neighborhood House is the setting for a collection of authentic late 19th-early 20th century farm and town spoke-wheel wagons. Nearby, volunteers from local Pennsylvania German heritage groups provide information and answer questions on "Dutch" customs and traditions. Interested persons are invited to carry on a conversation in the Pennsylvania Dutch dialect.

Produced by the Kutztown University Foundation, Inc. and the Kutztown Fair Association, Inc., in cooperation with two dozen community organizations and more than 500 volunteers, the Festival is fun for the whole family. The well-manicured Kutztown Fairgrounds has paved walkways, indoor and outdoor exhibit areas, and plenty of free parking for personal and recreational vehicles and motor coaches. Kutztown is easily accessible from PA Route 222, midway between Reading and Allentown.

Lebanon Area Fair Queen Contest

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Entries are now being accepted for the Lebanon Area Fair Queen Contest.

The contest is open to residents of Lebanon County who are at least 16 years of age and not 20 years of age by June 1. Contestants must be single, never married, have no children, and must not marry during the reign. Former winners may not compete again, and all contestants must have a parent or guardian's consent to compete.

The competition consists of 300-word written essay on "What My Fair Means To Me," as well as a three to five minute speech titled, "Why You Should Come To My Fair." Entrants will be judged on poise, essay, speech, and interview.

The winner must be available to represent the Fair whenever needed during the entire week of the Fair and in parades, promotions, etcetera, throughout the year.

The 2001 Lebanon Area Fair runs from July 28 to Aug. 4 at the Lebanon Area Fairgrounds and Expo Center.

Gifts will be given to all who enter and the winner receives an assortment of prizes provided by local businesses. The Lebanon Area Fair Queen will be eligible to enter the Pennsylvania State Fair Queen Contest where the winner receives a $1,000 scholarship.

Entry deadline is July 14. For more information, contact the Fair Office at (717) 273-3795 or Linda Boyer at (717) 273-1106.

4-H Club Uses 'Self-Determined Projects' To Learn, Do More

Emily Fair
Spurs N Burrs
4-H Horse And Pony Club
Coopersburg

I pledge my head to clearer thinking, my heart to greater loyalty, my hands to larger service, and my health to better living, for my club, my community, my country, and my world.

That is the pledge used to start every meeting of the Spurs N Burrs 4-H Horse and Pony Club of Bucks County. Club interests can range from nutrition and physical fitness, dairy cattle and small engine projects to Seeing Eye puppy clubs, sewing, and rabbit clubs.

The focus of this article will be about Spurs N Burrs Horse and Pony Club members, working harder to achieve their goals, and learning more about their interests.

A 4-H member will complete a "Project Book" according to their interest. For Spurs N Burrs, members complete feed and purchase records and other information about their horse or project animals, as well as a few pages of general horsemanship information.

Members are surrounded by knowledgeable leaders, county extension agents, current and graduate members who help them "Learn by Doing" — "Make the Best Better" per the 4-H slogan/motto. This gathering of information is not limited to just project books — other self-determined projects are available to all 4-H members. This is a project, in which the member chooses something they wish to learn more about, which could be anything from babysitting to designing a Website, then plan, set goals, and accomplish their project.

Spurs N Burrs took advantage of this great opportunity, and with the help of project leaders Terri Geake and Jen Keller, created the self-determined project "Foal to One Year." This project program consists of care of the mare, prior to foaling, at the time of foaling, after foaling, and the early training of the foal from birth to his first year. At Penn State, hands-on training, videos, tests, and literature provided by experts was presented to our group. This information included gestation, genetics and breeding management.

When asked, "Why did you join this project?" Spurs N Burrs member Jami Talianek, age 15, replied, "I joined 4-H so I could get to know other horse people and learn as much as possible.

"I joined this project so I could experience the time and dedication it takes for a foal to grow an entire year."

In response to the same question, Phillip Beck, age 13, replied, "I thought it would be interesting to see how to train a foal and see it be born."

So far, the members have been teaching, not only to the foal, but also to each other. One aspect of the project is that each member learns how to train the foal to do something — for example, to walk on a lead. That member can then teach other members how to teach the foal to lead. This builds everyone's teamwork and communication abilities.

When Laura Beck, age 11, was asked, "What are you hoping to learn from this project?" she said, "(I hope to learn) how to train a foal, (and) I hope to use some of what I learn to train my (own) pony."

This project colt, named "Scout" by our group because of the fleur-de-lis, white marking on his forehead, resembling a Boy Scout symbol, was born Jan. 8. Each week, each member works with the foal, and every month, we get together for the "Foal Project Meeting." Here we brainstorm on further ideas to share experiences and the wealth of knowledge we have gained from this project. Actually, this article you are reading is one of the Foal Project club's ideas.

Members are asked to go out on "special assignments" to report back to the group. Some require building graphs and charts on how much Scout has grown over a period of time, or questions requiring research, such as, "How much does the average foal grow a day?" Three pounds for the first three months, if you are wondering.

Other ideas the project club has come up with is demonstrations at pet fairs, getting on a local news program on television, and giving presentations at clinics and horse expos. All ideas are generated by the members, ages 8 to 18, and they are avidly taking on the tasks associated with leadership and organization, for making these ideas turn into reality.

When asked, "How do you think this project has helped you?" member Danielle Nilsen, age 13, replied, "I think that working with Scout has given me a great deal to think about. He has taught me patience and confidence. I am now much surer that I am doing the right thing with my own horse."

Emily Fair, age 18, replied to this question, stating, "Patience. Teaching is difficult itself, let alone teaching another species who talks in body language. But through patience, consistency and an ability to plan and access goals, to stride forward and ultimately complete them successfully with great satisfaction, is the best part."

This project is just one of many that can be achieved through 4-H. With 4-H's helpful leaders, cooperative extension agents, and members, you can truly achieve what you never thought possible, and gain an education that will last a lifetime.

Spurs N Burrs 4-H Horse and Pony Club Leader Nancy Hottle, best summed it up with her answer to these questions, "How do you think this project has helped you, and what do you think others could gain from 4-H through these kinds of projects?" Her answer, "As a leader, it helped me gain more respect for people and their individual abilities. Each member brought different talents to the project, and the excitement that was generated was contagious. I learned that members can, and will, cooperate with adults and their peers, if given a fair chance, and that they are willing to share what they know with others. There was no selfishness, but rather a spirit of 'how can I help the other members.' There was also a large amount of responsibility, caring, and the most important aspect having fun while learning something new."

Project Leader Jen Keller, a proponent of using nonaggressive (humane) techniques in the training and socialization of horses, suggests the following: "Kids are eager to learn. In 'Foal to One Year,' they train and work with horses using methods that promote caring, safety, and skill in the management of their own or someone else's horse. They learn patience while having fun. This project is what 4-H is to me."

According to Terri Geake, another project leader, "This group of young people is so exciting. Watching kids learn and grow through life experiences brings out the best in them. They're pleasant, helpful, and show their appreciation for all that is done for them. I've come to count on their commitment to learn and to help others learn in the process. Spending time with these kids on the 'Foal to One Year' project is more rewarding that I can say."

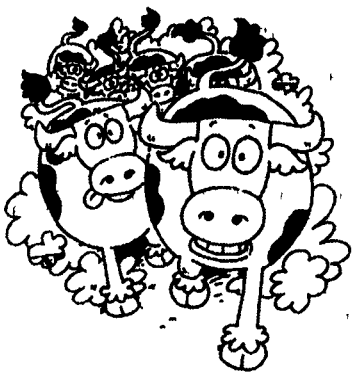
Cumberland County
4-H Dairy Club

The Cumberland County Wide 4-H Dairy Club met on May 14 at the Zinn family's house. The Pledge of Allegiance was led by Greg Hammond, and Aaron Cornman led the 4-H Pledge. The club welcomed Holly Leming as a new member. Melissa Detman read the minutes and Aaron Cornman gave the Treasurer's Report. Both were approved.

Under old business, Zach Travis gave the County Council Report, and discussed the Cookie Kickoff Night. Our club was second in cookie sales. Mrs. Kathy Walton announced the club T-shirts are available.

Under new business, John Ocker told about the Shippensburg Fair, and Mrs. Kathy Walton told about Speak Out Night which will be June 18 at 7 p.m. The July meeting will be at the Walton's Farm.

Holly Killinger followed with a demonstration about Girl Scouts. Steve Cornman presented the meeting's program — speaking about foot and mouth disease and "Mad Cow" disease. The next meeting, June 11, will be a pool party at the Kulick's Farm.



Business Is Blooming

Potting soil, peat moss, or compost will help loosen and enrich the soil. Also "mulch definitely benefits with moisture retention in July and August. The better your beds are the better your plants will grow."

"Deadheading" is another key to a healthy garden. "For probably 75 percent of the varieties of plants out there, the more deadheading is done, the more beautiful the plants will be," she said.

Besides attending conferences, seminars, and meetings during the off-season, Rhoads and her husband, Randy, who owns a manufacturing business, travel often to a Mifflin County mountain cabin.

Her Own Gardens

The Rhoads home, which is located on the five-acre premises, is also ablaze with flowers. Rhoads, who does a lot of entertaining, stops work in her own gardens only when darkness forces her inside.

As for designing her own gardens, Rhoads enjoys blending varieties of plants together. Her own favorite flowers fall in the perennial line. "I love perennial gardens because every year they just come up all of a sudden," she said.

"Everything comes up together so I have purples with yellow. If the plants intermingle, it makes a great effect. I like to put an odd one in to come up in amongst the group. You can't make a mistake in a garden. Color is color, no matter how you do it."

Taller border plants, for instances, are no longer relegated to the back of the bed.

"Nowadays you can still put them up to the edge, it still makes a nice border even if they hang over," she said. Planting a bed strictly with high plants in the back and lower plants in front makes the arrangement lose its interesting effect, said Rhoads. "It's OK to put the tall plants in front as well."

Leaving the perennials uncut until spring gives the birds a source of forage over the winter, she said.

Beef Checkoff-Funded Nutrition Advertising Underway

DENVER, Colo. — Information on beef's nutrition is again blanketing the media as a checkoff-funded television and print advertising campaign began running in June. The one-month flight of ads and commercials is reaching the industry's target audience, women 25-54, through 22 insertions in key monthly magazines as well as placements on some of the nation's most popular network and cable programs.

The advertising is coordinated by the National Cattlemen's Beef Association (NCBA) on behalf of the Cattlemen's Beef Board and state beef councils. It's part of a series of convenience and nutrition advertising running at strategic times during the year.

Overall, the nutrition television and print advertising will reach 53 million women more than 10 times in fiscal 2001 (ended Sept. 30). The three nutrition print ads are currently running in magazines such as Parents, Redbook, Health, Martha Stewart Living and Gourmet. The television commercials are on programs such as Frasier and 3rd Rock from the Sun and General Hospital, and on popular cable channels such as Food, Lifetime and A&E.

Nutrition advertising also ran during January.

Recent research shows that awareness of beef's nutrition is up significantly since Oct. 1999. In a Gallup survey, 54 percent of consumers said that nutrients give you a lot to go on, compared to 46 percent in the baseline survey. And 51 percent said that beef is an important part of a balanced diet, compared to 44 percent in 1999.

InfoAg 2001 Conference Offers Extensive Program

NORCROSS, Ga. — With more than 70 hours of presentations and workshops over a three-day schedule, the 2001 edition of the Information Agriculture Conference (InfoAg 2001) offers a comprehensive program for keeping up-to-date with the fast changing field of site-specific crop and soil management and modern communication technology for agriculture. The conference will take place Aug. 7-9 at the Adam's Mark Hotel-Airport, at Indianapolis, Ind.

InfoAg 2001 is organized by the Potash & Phosphate Institute (PPI), Potash & Phosphate Institute of Canada (PPIC), and the Foundation for Agronomic Research (FAR). Program partners include CyberDealer and CropLife magazines (Meister Publishing) handling the CyberDealer session at the conference, and Indiana Prairie Farmer/Prairie Farmer magazines (Farm Progress Companies) conducting a session for farmers.

InfoAg 2001 is supported in part through a grant from the USDA-CSREES Initiative for Future Agriculture and Food Systems (IFAFS) program. Also cooperating as sponsors are ESRI, Ag Retailer/Crop Decisions magazines, Ag Education & Consulting (AEC), and John Deere Ag Management Solutions. SoilTeq and Monsanto are supporters of InfoAg 2001.

Previous Information Agriculture conferences in 1995, 1996, 1997, and 1999 were well attended and successful in bringing together leaders and early adopters of site-specific management practices and other technologies in precision agriculture. As in past conferences, attendees will represent a cross section of people in agriculture and related work, including farmers, fertilizer dealers, consultants, Certified Crop Advisers (CCAs), farm managers, seed trade representatives, government agency personnel, university researchers, teachers, Extension specialists, and international participants.

Presentations will include a broad range of topics, including updates from machinery manufacturers, new techniques in data analysis, current research in variable-rate technology for nutrient application, and economic analysis of precision agriculture practices.

- Registration fee for InfoAg 2001 is $350 per person if received by July 15, but it increases to $450 thereafter.
- Exhibitor fees are $500 per booth, with a maximum of two spaces per company or organization.

For current information and updates about the conference, access the Website at www.ppi-far/infoag, call (605) 692-6280, or fax (605) 697-7149.

Dolls Grow Priceless With Age

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

BERNVILLE (Berks Co.) — Dolls grow more valuable with age, both in price and to the owner.

One is never too young or too old to love dolls, according to Doris Hetrich, Bernville.

"I've always loved dolls. I played with them until I was 14 years old," she said.

Those same lifelike dolls that thrill a little girl's heart are often the same dolls sought after by collectors in years to come.

Most people start their doll collection with favorites saved from their childhoods. These dolls may or may not be in demand in the collector's market. But, as in any collection, if you like it, keep it or buy it.

For those who want to collect dolls that increase in value, keep in mind that a doll's value is determined by supply and demand. The more rare the edition, the more likely its value will increase.

But don't waste your money filling your house with dolls just because they are old or valuable. Buy the ones you like.

Some dolls seem to emit a spark of personality. You can envision the doll as a real person dressed in Victorian finery with a busy social life. Or perhaps it's the newborn baby doll complete with baptismal gown that catches your imagination.

Dolls that have original tags, boxes, clothes, and accessories will become more valuable because of their identification.

Dolls saved from Doris' childhood are priceless, but even recently purchased ones claim a special spot in Doris' heart.

"It's more and more difficult to find old dolls in good condition," Doris said. Although dolls can be repaired and restrung quite well by experienced doll doctors, Doris said, "I always examine a doll before buying it, and if it is partly cracked or broken, I don't buy it."

Doris Hetrich holds a French boy doll. On the windowsill at right are Jumeau porcelain dolls. Jumeau reproductions sell for about $900 each compared to the original dolls which sell for about $6,000, Doris said. She dresses the dolls in the 1800s style and adds accessories such as antique purses and gloves. Behind her is a standing Kessner doll dressed in a wool coat and scarf. Schoenhut dolls sit on early 1900s rockers.

> "It lays there like a person looking up at me as if it's saying, 'Help me.'"

> Doll Collector

But rejecting a doll because it isn't perfect breaks Doris' heart. She said, "It lays there like a person looking up at me as if it's saying, 'Help me.' It's so pitiful to see it," Doris said.

Clothing on old dolls are often tattered from use. Doris enjoys searching at auctions for period clothes in good condition, but most often she resorts to sewing them by designing patterns copying the styles worn by children photographed during the era the doll depicts.

Doll accessesories can sometimes be found at antique shows and auctions. Items such as silk fans, original human hair wigs, beaded organza gowns with taffeta underskirts, velvet coats with matching hats, pantaloons, lace socks, leather boots, and black molded shoes enhance the doll's appearance.

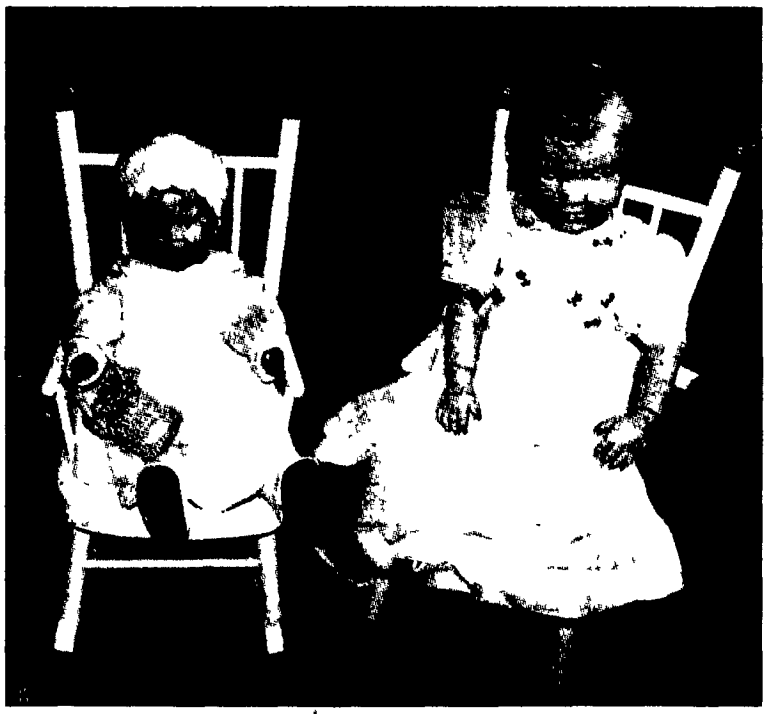
Even if dolls are less than perfect, they often command a venerable price if they are rare, such as bisque dolls or those with papier-mache bodies.

Auctions such as the Spring Doll and Toy Cataloged Auction at the Alderfer Center, Hatfield, in March reveal the prices collectors are willing to pay.

A 20-inch Simon Halbig lady doll holding an ivory and silk fan and standing on a velvet base sold for $3,520, even though the clockwork mechanism inside needed repair.

Capitalizing on the doll interest, many companies are releasing limited edition dolls. Before you buy, educate yourself on how to tell the difference between real antique dolls and good and bad reproductions.

Displaying collections can be almost as much fun as little girls have playing with dolls. Some people display them in glass cases, and some intersperse them among furnishings. Doris buys antique strollers, carriages, bassinets, and doll furniture in which to place her dolls and set them around her house — which just goes to show that one is never too old to play with dolls. They grow more priceless with age.



Schoenhut dolls are the first dolls to be made in America by a German craftsman. The dolls are in great demand by collectors and are best known for their jointed wrists and elbows.

At right is a Victorian stroller from the late 1800s with a Grace Putman By Lo baby from the early 1900s. The original badge still attached to the doll increases the value to an estimated $1,500.

Bassinet from 1910 shelters a rosy-cheeked Dream baby made in Germany.

Vintage Automobile Extravaganza July 21

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — The Antique Automobile Club of America, headquartered in Hershey has announced that its sixth annual Auto Exposition will be held Saturday, July 21, rain or shine, at the Palmyra Fire Company Grounds, East Spruce and North Grant Streets in Palmyra.

An antique car show will be held on Saturday while flea market vendors will be displaying vintage automotive parts, and arts and crafts.

A car for sale area, antique tractor, and pedal car display round out the activities. No admission charge and free parking all day. Trophies by decade, decided by popular vote, will be awarded at 3 p.m.

All proceeds benefit the AACA Museum, Inc., which has purchased 20 acres of land along Route 39 near Pumpkin World. When the museum structure is built, it will house an array of automotive history, including the largest Tucker automotive collection in existence.

For more information, contact AACA Headquarters at (717) 534-1910.

Some Tips For Collecting Decorative Tiles

Individual decorative tiles are coming to auction more often. A decade ago interesting examples were only found in boxes at mall antique shows and salvage yards. Prices were from $5 to $100 for an unusual design or an identifiable maker.

Not so these days.

Travel to most any country in the world, and you'll discover each has a rich history of decorative tiles. Among the most colorful are the Islamic examples where palaces and walls as early as the 16th century were adorned with tiles. Surprisingly many are sold these days as individual pieces to collectors. Prices vary depending on eye appeal and rarity.

Figural tiles painted in the style of 16th century Persian miniature painters can sell for as much as $10,000 a tile. 17th century less decorative Islamic tiles can sell at auction for as little as $2,000 each.

Decorative tile making in the 17th century traveled to Spain and Italy where they were made of Majolica. They were also made in Holland in huge quantities at that time and exported all over Europe. Blue and orange were the dominant colors and popular patterns were grapes, tulips, and pomegranates. By 1630 tiles were being made in Delft in blue and white, with figures of soldiers, ladies, and horsemen. Later marine monsters, ships, and small landscapes were used for decoration. These sell at auction beginning at around $400 each.

By the 18th century polychrome tiles were made in Liverpool.

By the 19th century, tile pictures were being made in Europe. Often a group of six or eight small scenic tiles with every subject from cats and dogs to windmills were placed in kitchens as art.

By the late 19th century in England it became very fashionable to decorate fireplaces and furniture with tiles. Wedgwood and Minton were among the makers of decorative tiles.

CLUES: An artist attribution can up the value of 19th century tiles.

When a pair of Wedgwood glazed earthenware tile pictures, c.1880 with allegorical male and female figures attributed to Charles Toft came to auction last year, the estimated value was $400-600. A Wedgwood tile picture, c.1883 attributed to artist Thomas Allen, in brown enamel earthenware at the same auction it was estimated at $300-500.

Less expensive are transfer printed tiles, even with Wedgwood marks.

Americans imported decorative tiles from England until after the 1876 Centennial in Philadelphia. At the exhibit the many displays of European-made tiles, alerted American clay workers to a potential new market. By the last quarter of the 19th century there were at least 25 American companies making tiles. Among the earliest and most important are American Encaustic Tiling Company, Zanesville, Ohio, founded in 1875; the United States Encaustic Tiling Company, Indianapolis, Indiana, founded in 1877.

Early examples were made by immigrant workmen skilled in European techniques.

Popular subjects included floral and fauna. They also continued the English tradition of finely modeled, low-relief portrait heads and figures in period dress.

Collectors should look for any tiles that represent a particular style...such as Arts and Crafts, Art Nouveau or the Modern Movement. Still affordable are California pottery tiles made in the 1940s. Two companies who made them are Malibu Potteries and the Taylor Tilery in Los Angeles.

A clue to whether a tile is really 17th or 18th century is thickness.

Before you pay too much check the thickness. Early tiles were very thin, compared to 19th and 20th century.

STOCKBAUER ESTATE SALE

Real estate consisting of a one-story frame and vinyl aluminum siding rancher with one-car garage at 109 W. Washington St., Strasburg, was sold on June 11 to John Konosky Jr., Carbondale, for $111,000.

Miller & Siegrist Auctioneers conducted the auction for the estate of Samuel Stockbauer.

BURKHOLDER SALE

Last week, auctioneer Jay Witman was saying he hadn't the "foggiest" idea what prices sandstone monumental architectural items would bring at the sale for Ray D. Burkholder, 758 W. Newport Road, Lititz.

Saturday, after the sale, Witman exclaimed, "It was spectacular; there were tons of people there out of interest. This was an event you don't see every day of the week.

"There never was an auction of this kind in this area. You might have an auction with one stone water trough, not with 24. It was the same with stone grist mills."

He went on to say Burkholder collected these items years ago when no one wanted them. "He might have paid $5 for something. I think (this) was so big because it's a different era, a different time.

The sale was advertised nationally and brought about 1,000 people, with 242 registered bidders from 10 states, as far away as Michigan and Connecticut.

Items of special interest were: a rare pair of sandstone pillars with wrought iron gates, $45,100; and a red sandstone 12-foot trough with round ends that brought $24,200.

Other items included: a pair of red sandstone pillars with circular figure, $12,650; a collection of 32 sandstone troughs that ranged in price from $7,700 to $16,500, with a dated 1860 trough going for $6050; a HEMP grinding stone, $8,800; a cone stone, $3520; sandstone steps, $2,200, $1,870, $1,485; millstones, from $2,640 to 5,100; a red sandstone birdbath, $1,210; a Victorian cupola from the Lancaster County Home, $6,160; a red sandstone porch post rests, $1,980; dripstones, $550-$1,100; a pair of red sandstone pillars, $4,290; a pair of garden urns with stands, $2,310; wrought iron gates, $990, $770, $852; land marker stones, $770 and $495; red sandstone benches, $385 each.

The auction was held my Jay M. Witman and Luke R. Witman of Witman Auctioneers Inc., Manheim.

DELONG SALE

A real estate and personal property sale was held Saturday for Reuben DeLong, 30 Glenwood Drive, Ephrata. The three-bedroom, two-car garage, brick and stone rancher sold for $141,000 to Mark G. Sensenig, Ephrata.

A 1989 4-by-4 Chevy Blazer brought $2,200.

Household items sold included a signed quilt, $200; a bucket bench, $390; Adams cups and saucers, $340; a china toiletry set, $475; a redware bowl, $150; a hand-painted miniature chest, $375; a cookie jar, $120; Lancaster postcards, $80; a flow blue cup and saucer, $160; and a pin cushion, $100.

There were 300 registered bidders. The auction was conducted by Jeffrey L. Bollinger, Ephrata, in association with Miller and Siegrist Auctioneers, Lancaster.

Located between Troxelville and Penns Creek on the Troxelville Road, Center Twp. Snyder County. Follow signs day of auction off Route 104 at Penns Creek and off Route 522 at Beaver Springs, PA.

Snyder County Dairy & Veal Farm

Tract1: a 43-acre surveyed working dairy and veal farm divided by hardtop road with 25 acres level productive tillable farm ground, 7 acres woodland, small stream and 8 acres hi-tensil fenced pasture land, erected thereon a large 2-story frame, 5-bedroom remodeled farmhouse with large modern eat-in kitchen, full bath, large living room, sunroom and laundry. Also erected a 40x80 38-stall bank barn with attached loafing shed, feed room and milk house. Barn offers comfort stalls, ventilation, gutter cleaner, feed room with stationary TMR, a 14'x60' concrete stave silo with unloader, exterior feed bins. Milking equipment includes like-new 800 gal DeLaval bulk tank and a Universal 5 unit stainless steel pipeline milking system. Other buildings include a 200-stall center-feed veal barn with attached implement shed, a 2-story chicken house and wooden corn shed with workshop. This property also has drilled well, on-site sewage, 2 Waste Management-approved manure pits and additional 100 acres rented farm ground available and many other updated farming extras. Owners are moving, crops are planted for this year and available to the new owner. Plan now to attend.

Tract2: A 1 acre surveyed, level building lot bordering state road. An excellent building site with beautiful view.

HERD DISPERSAL
WED., JUNE 27, 2001
AT 1:30 PM

Mifflin County Herd

We will be selling on consignment a Young herd of 34 head of Dairy Cows consisting of 13 first calf heifers, 5 second calf heifers with 3 fresh in June, 4 fresh in May and the balance in all stages of lactation. Also selling will be 7 yearling heifers and 7 started calves. Herd has a 50 lb per day average at the tank with a consistent 3.8 to 4.2% butterfat. This is a mostly young herd of cows that have been kept in a free stall barn, but tied in every milking. Cows have only ever had good silage and chop, no high protein feed.

NEW HOLLAND

NEW HOLLAND CREDIT

A new standard from the 3-cylinder leaders

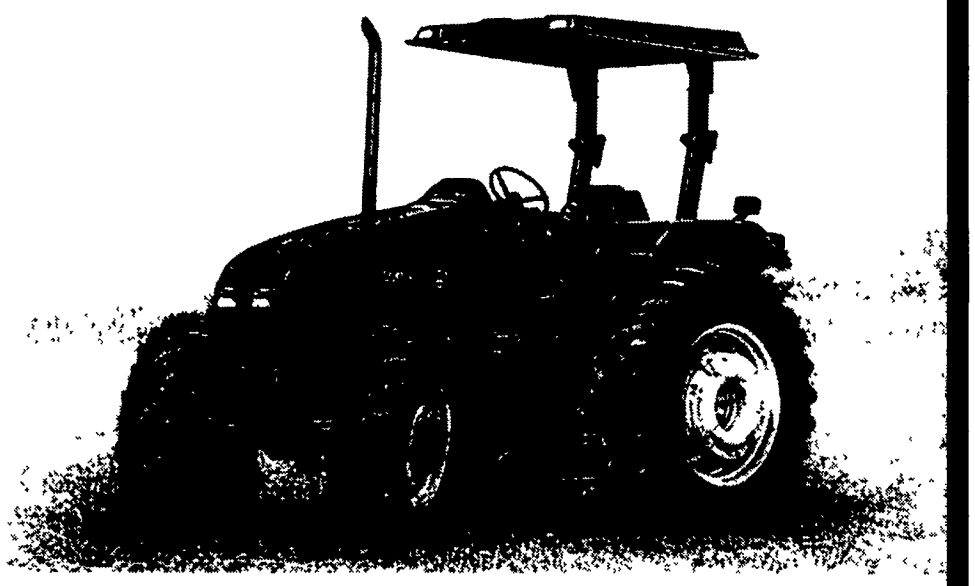
New Holland has raised the standards for 42 to 62 PTO hp tractors with the introduction of TND and TNS models.

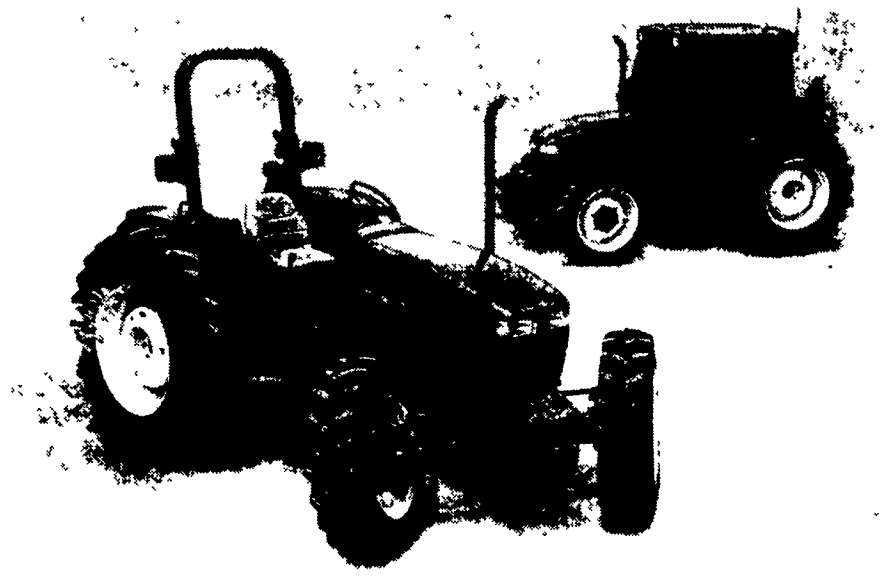
The higher standards include:

- Proven engines: up to 36% torque rise
- Exclusive SuperSteer™; 76 degree turning
- Exclusive Traction Management System
- Iso-mounted, fully enclosed cab with standard A/C, heater, tilt/telescope steering, front/rear washers/wipers, best electronic dash, best visibility, and more
- Clutchless power shuttle fingertip control

State-of-the-art 16x16 Synchro Command™ transmission with 4 speeds under 1 mph

NEW HOLLAND





Building on a good thing

You might recognize the engines, drivelines and axles on the new New Holland TS tractors. They have excellent reputations based on past performance. Thousands of customers have put these components to hard use and benefited from their performance and durability.

So, New Holland wasn't about to change a good thing. They made other improvements to these 70- to 90-PTO-hp tractors instead – like increasing the horsepower, improving the comfort of the cab, relocating the fuel tank for added convenience, adding a top road speed of 25 mph, upgrading the electrical system and adding outlets and modernizing the styling.

Better see these exciting 70- to 90-PTO-hp TS tractors for yourself. And find out how good design can become even better.

NEW HOLLAND

BOOMER™

THE ULTIMATE POWER TOOL

With an innovative sloped-hood design and sleek styling, Boomer compact tractors set new standards for efficiency, maneuverability, and versatility.

Mount Joy Man Named Ag Sciences Outstanding Alumnus

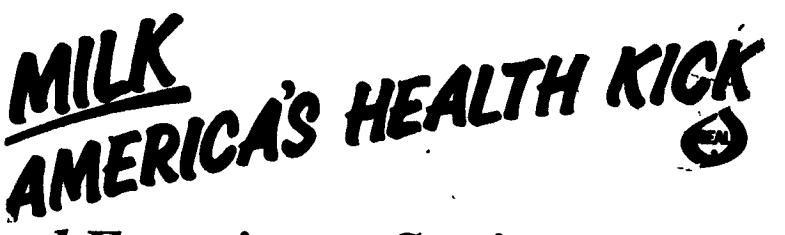
Adams is executive vice president and chief operating officer of Wenger's Feed Mills Inc. of Rheems. He previously served the company as operations manager, transportation manager, mill manager, manager of poultry service technicians and research and development manager.

Adams was a driving force behind the Pennsylvania Egg Quality Assurance Program for reduction of Salmonella enteriditis. He is past-president of the Maryland Feed Council and chairman of the PennAg Poultry Council. He also serves on the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Research Advisory Committee and Poultry Health Advisory.

Adams is a member of the Poultry Science Association, the American Society of Animal Science, the World's Poultry Science Association (USA branch), the Council for Agricultural Science and Technology, the Mid-Atlantic Poultry Health Council and the American Society for Quality Control.

Adams received a bachelor's degree in poultry technology and management from Penn State in 1990, and a master's degree in business administration from the university in 1997.



Agricultural Experiment Station Receives Business Of Year Award

GENEVA, N.Y. — The New York State Agricultural Experiment Station located here was named business of the year by the Geneva Area Chamber of Commerce at its annual dinner April 6.

At the same time, the Chamber awarded the Citizen of the Year to Stephen DeRaddo, executive vice president of the National Bank of Geneva.

Chamber Chairman Vincent Scalise made the awards. He cited the experiment station's mission, and the fact that it had an annual budget of more than $21 million, employing 303 people, who "contribute to Geneva's schools, civic organizations, local businesses, and community events," as reasons for the award.

He said the Chamber also recognized the "innovative community partnership" the station was involved in with the City of Geneva and Ontario County to develop the Cornell Agricultural and Food Technology Park on 70 acres of land immediately adjacent to the station.

Accepting the award on behalf of the station, Director Jim Hunter thanked the Chamber and the selection committee, admitting he was more accustomed to thinking of the station as an educational institution than a business. "I am very proud of our people," said Hunter, "and believe that is what has brought this recognition to the station."

He cited the many ways that station faculty, staff, graduate students, spouses and children contribute to the community. He acknowledged the importance of the Ag and Food Tech Park, and hopes to succeed in bringing new jobs and economic opportunities to Geneva.

Geneva native David Rickey, president and chief executive officer of the San Diego-based Applied Micro Circuits Corporation (AMCC), was the keynote speaker. Rickey grew up in Geneva and is a 1974 graduate of DeSales High School. Speaking of the station's plan to build a high tech research park, he called it "very smart" for Geneva "to leverage what it already has" which is a critical mass of experts in agriculture and food technology.

Dave's father, George F. Rickey, retired as a senior research support specialist in the Experiment Station's Food Science and Technology Department in 1983, where he had worked since 1947, managing the Feed and Fertilizer Laboratory.

NASA Scientist Receives Penn State Outstanding Alumnus Award

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Donald Henninger of Houston, Texas, is one of five recipients of 2001 Outstanding Alumni Awards from Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

The award highlights distinguished graduates of the college and creates opportunities for interaction between alumni, students and faculty.

Henninger is chief scientist and project manager for the Advanced Life Support Program at NASA's Johnson Space Center in Houston, where he has worked since 1977. He supervises 50 staff members and administers a budget of more than $14 million.

"Dr. Henninger's career exemplifies the interdisciplinary approach of today's scientific endeavors," says John Sager, bioregenerative life support research manager at NASA. "His education at Penn State in engineering technology and agronomy has provided the basic technical and management skill upon which he has built his career. He's also exhibited the ability to enhance his understanding of science and organizing principles and apply them to a multidisciplinary team."

Henninger has authored or coauthored 12 publications since 1995, including "Life Inside the Can: the Lunar/Mars Life Support Test Project."

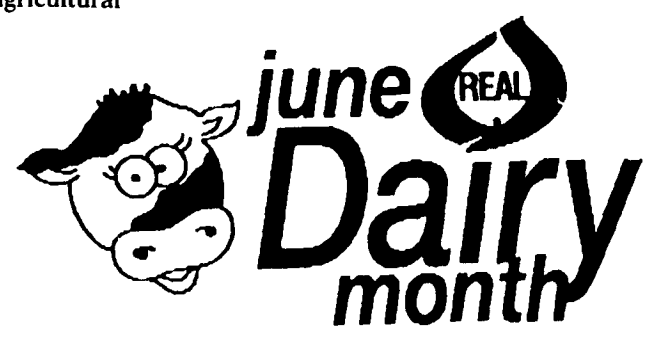
He received the 1995 NASA Exceptional Service Medal and a patent in 1995 for his invention of "active synthetic soil." He is a research adviser for the National Research Council and serves on the editorial board of the International Journal of Life Support and Biospherics. He also is a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the American Society for Gravitational and Space Biology, the American Society of Agronomy and the Soil Science Society of America.

Born in Allentown and raised on a potato farm in Germansville, Henninger received a bachelor's degree in agricultural mechanization (1970), a master's degree in agronomy (1972) and a doctorate in agronomy (1976), all from Penn State.

Former Ag Sec. Glickman To Address Ag Economics Associations

AMES, Iowa — Former Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman will address members of the American and Canadian agricultural economics associations in Chicago on Monday, August 6, at noon in the Grand Ballroom of the Hilton Chicago Hotel, 720 S. Michigan Avenue.

Glickman's address serves as the keynote speech for the joint meeting of the American Agricultural Economics Association (AAEA) and the Canadian Agricultural Economics Society (CAES). This gathering of North American agricultural economists provides a forum for the former secretary to address issues such as the impact of NAFTA on agricultural trade, the upcoming debate on farm legislation, and the current international issues faced by agricultural producers in the wake of the foot-and-mouth disease outbreak in Europe.



Veneman Honors USDA Employees In Annual Awards Ceremony

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Agriculture Secretary Ann M. Veneman recently honored USDA employees from across the nation for exemplary service and achievements in the 55th annual USDA Honor Awards Ceremony.

"These awards give recognition to the thousands of employees who work tirelessly behind the scenes to accomplish our missions," said Veneman. " But more importantly, the Honor Awards show how powerful our department is when we function as a team - working together, learning more about our different agencies and our diversity - both in mission and people."

The Honor Awards, presented each year, are the most prestigious awards given by USDA. This year's 93 award winners represent outstanding service in many fields, including stewardship of natural resources, scientific research, disease control, environmental innovations, educational outreach, emergency response to disasters, food safety, farm and food program delivery, trade and export development, and rural economic development. USDA also honored employees who had performed individual acts of heroism and courage.

The highest USDA Honor Awards are the Plow Awards.

Plow Awards

• Value-Added Wheat Program Team, Cooperative State Research, Education, and Extension Service and the Oklahoma Cooperative Extension Service, Stillwater/Alva, Okla. For developing an innovative program which contributed significantly to a struggling rural Oklahoma community, which serves as a model for similar ventures elsewhere.

• Living With Wildlife Team, Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, Lakewood Colo. - For improving the education of America's youth about wildlife and the need for improved management of certain species to protect agricultural and natural resources.

• Rosemary Hall, Farm Service Agency, Kansas City, Mo. - For outstanding management and delivery of automated processes for emergency assistance programs.

• Mark G. Winne, Cooperative State Research, Education, and Extension Service and the Hartford Food System, Hartford, Conn. - For leading a nationwide initiative resulting in a seven-year, $16 million food security initiative to increase food access and a statewide food security liaison network.

• National Organic Final Rule Team, Washington, D.C., Agricultural Marketing Service - For outstanding effort in establishing the first national standards for production, handling and labeling of agricultural products represented as "organic."

• Melvin Massey, National Association of State Departments of Agriculture, Reed Springs, Mo. - For quick, decisive actions in performing cardiac pulmonary resuscitation which revived a two-year old child and saved the child from drowning.

In thanking the honorees for their dedication and service, Veneman said that she firmly believ[illegible] serving the public is best achieved through good public policy and solid teamwork.

USDA also recognized its 14 Presidential Rank Award recipients, USDA recipients of major awards sponsored by external organizations, and more than 507 employees across the country who have more than 40 years of service each. All Honor Award recipients are listed on the USDA homepage, http://www.usda.gov.

Farm Bureau Claims Victory On Death Tax

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — Farm Bureau members across the country have achieved a hard fought legislative victory with the enactment of tax cut legislation which provides substantial relief from the federal estate tax. President Bush signed the legislation into law on June 7.

The Economic Growth and Tax Relief Act of 2001 provides farmers with immediate relief from the federal estate tax. It reduces the top tax rate and increases the exemption from $675,000 to $1 million next year. The estate tax is completely repealed in 2010.

"This legislative victory was the result of a lot of hard work by Farm Bureau members over many years," said Guy Donaldson, president of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau. "Thousands of letters, phone calls and personal visits by Farm Bureau members with their congressmen over the years drove home the need to remove this roadblock to the continuation of the family farm."

Policy technicalities prevent the so-called "death tax" from permanently being repealed after 2010. Additional legislation will be needed for that to happen. Farm Bureau has already started working with the many members of Congress who voted to end the estate tax to overcome those technicalities. "America's farm families simply cannot afford to see these benefits sunset," said American Farm Bureau President Bob Stallman. "Relief from the death tax must be permanent."

"Reducing the federal estate tax burden will help preserve the family-oriented structure of U.S. agriculture," added Donaldson. "It will lessen the necessity for forced farm sales in order to pay the federal tax bill. Now it's up to legislators in Pennsylvania to do their part. They enacted legislation to reduce state inheritance tax rates last year, but more rate cuts need to be made — or better yet, the tax needs to be totally eliminated."

$17.5 Million To Protect Farmland

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The USDA recently announced that $17.5 million is available to help communities in 28 states protect precious farmland.

These funds, available through USDA's Natural Resources Conservation Service, will protect an estimated 28,000 acres in California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Idaho, Illinois, Iowa, Kentucky, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Montana, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Texas, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, Washington, and Wisconsin.

Through the Farmland Protection Program, USDA enters into agreements with states, tribes, local governments, and nonprofit organizations — such as land trusts, open space associations, and land resource conservation councils — to protect productive farmland through the purchase of conservation easements.

To qualify, the farmland must be:

• Included in a pending offer from a nongovernmental organization, state, tribe, or local farmland protection program.

• Privately owned.

• Covered by a conservation plan.

• Large enough to sustain agricultural production.

• Accessible to markets for what the land produces.

• Surrounded by parcels of land that can support long-term agricultural production.

Your Source For Quality Grain Handling Equipment

A premium quality galvanized auger designed for low maintenance operation.

Mayrath introduces the all new "InLine Drive" series of portable grain augers. Mayrath has combined operational efficiency with long term dependability providing you with a high quality, GALVANIZED auger at a very affordable price The revolutionary "InLine Drive" system minimizes the number of moving parts .greatly reducing costly downtime and maintenance in the future.

Mayrath InLine Drive

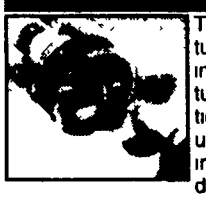
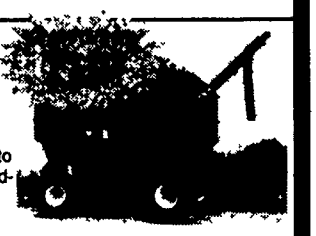
DIAMETER	CAPACITY	LENGTHS
8"	3200 BPH	32', 42', 52', 62', 72'
10"	4500 BPH	32', 42', 52', 62', 72'

The InLine Drive
Unique in design, high in efficiency.



The unique "InLine Drive" design features an internally mounted gearbox inside of an expanded, bell shaped tube housing. Auger flighting is positioned to allow a high volume of unrestricted grain flow around the internal gearbox A new intake design utilizes double flighting and a cupped intake guard to offer a high capacity, complete cleanout operation. A specially engineered hopper bolts directly to top of the intake guard, further enhancing the augers capacity.

MORE THAN JUST A GRAVITY BOX:



Gravity Box Innovative Design:
- Capacities range from 400 to 190 bushels to match individual needs
- Unloading is fast and complete with steep-sloped sides and graphite-coated interior
- A low center of gravity and balanced weight distribution provide stable towing
- Rounded box corners protect optional tarp against punctures or tears
- A front ladder is standard for easy viewing of box contents, a rear-mounted, five-rung ladder is optional

Gravity Box Quality Manufacturing:
- Rugged MIG continuous-bead welding and a one-piece door-side panel enhance sidewall strength and durability
- A full primer undercoat and durable high-quality equipment enamel topcoat help prevent corrosion
- The rack-and-pinion mechanism permits easy unloading-door opening, even with a full load of high-moisture grain

Gravity Box Options:
A tarp kit,complete with bows and straps, allows the gravity box to be used for temporary storage
- 16-, 14- and 12-foot unloading augers with a choice of steel or heavy-duty plastic outer tube and brush-tip, steel or plastic flighting
- An amber and red flashing tail light package will enhance transport safety
- A five-rung ladder for viewing of box interior can be mounted to the rear of the wagon

NOW IS THE TIME...
TO SERVICE YOUR PLANTER!

As the 2001 corn and bean planting season comes to a close, we encourage you to reflect momentarily on your spring planting experience. Does anything come to mind that may require attention before next planting season? Now is the time to deal with any potential problems or worn items before placing your planter in storage.

Contact the planter shop at Binkley & Hurst today to schedule your

Mr Planter Owner

Thank you for taking a minute to consider our services

Binkley & Hurst Bros Inc is offering a preseason inspection and evaluation of your planter for the purpose of identifying worn, broken, or malfunctioning parts Many times, seemingly insignificant wear will affect the accuracy of your planter more than you realize If nothing else, it may be time to have your finger pickup meters checked on our test stand Also, new innovations, attachments and options are constantly being introduced which may be of interest to you for installation on your planter

Binkley & Hurst parts and service personnel are specifically trained and informed planter specialists, ready to examine your planter with you! If you determine that the planting proficiency of your planter could be improved with our service, we would be happy to provide that service for you, and a technician would return at a later date to assist you in doing the work We encourage you to be part of the actual servicing so that any pointers or insight, which the technician may have for you with regard to planter operation, could be conveyed at that time

If you set up an appointment for a planter evaluation, you will be charged a flat fee

At time of inspection we will recommend to you any item needing attention, also at that time we will remove your seed meters to take in for testing if you so desire

If you have any questions, please contact the planter service department at 717-626-4705 or 800-414-4705

Thank you

ity with a Used Combine From Hoober

Buying a used combine has never been easier thanks to Hoober's special Waiver + Warranty + Guarantee program. This special limited-time program applies to the Hoober used combines priced below.

THE HOOBER
Waiver + Warranty + Guarantee Program

- Waiver – *Waiver of interest until September 1, 2002 on contracts approved through Case Credit.
- Warranty – 100% driveline parts Warranty for 200 hours or through December 31, 2001... whichever comes first.
- Guarantee – A used combine purchased through this program can be traded back to Hoober by 12-31-01, and we Guarantee a trade allowance of at least 80% of the original purchase price towards a purchase of another later model combine*.

 Machine must be in similar operating condition.*

Verti-Maxx™ Mixers

Introducing Models 5042 and 5060
420 and 600 cubic feet

The new Knight Verti-Maxx is the most innovative vertical mixer ever built. Its exclusive design features a simpler drive system, a lower loading height, and delivers a more consistent, thorough mix with faster processing time, all at a competitive price. The Verti-Maxx twin augers and bull gear drive provide the best performance, dependability and value in the industry, day in and day out. Check out these features and benefits:

- The Verti-Maxx vertical mixer mixes the widest variety of feedstuffs, including large round bales, large square bales, and baleage.
- Twin augers provide faster material movement and a thorough mixing action.
- Twin auger design also provides a lower loading height for easier loading.

GEHL

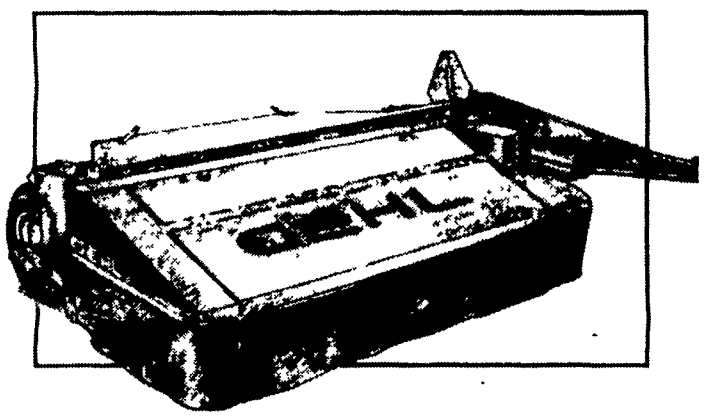
2345/2365 DISC CONDITIONERS



Gehl has two all-new disc mower conditioners to cut your crop down to size, fast and easy, the DC2345 has 7 discs and a 9'2" cutting width; the DC2365 has 8 discs and a 10'3" cutting width. A Gehl disc mower conditioner delivers exceptional cutting and conditioning, even in your most difficult crops and conditions.

- Designed with the operator in mind
- Easy access all around
- An equal angle PTO
- Three-point flotation support

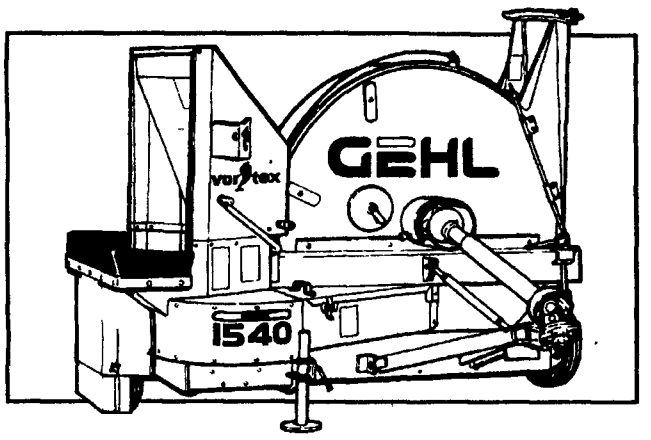
"Vortex™" Blowers



If you need a high-capacity forage blower to fill your tallest silos, Gehl Vortex blowers will help get your silo-filling done in short order.

- Three models - Your choice of 540 or 1,000 rpm operation.
- Twin spinners - Rifle material into the blower fan at nearly 35 mph.
- Twin-sided fan disc - Paddles on both sides shoot the crop up the pipe in nearly continuous flow.
- Split rim sheets - Feature a replaceable inner liner for longer life and lower maintenance costs.
- Many convenience features - Swing-away blower outlet, air vents, adjustable left tire, right tire guard, wide hopper, removable tunnel covers and duals water inlets.

Built for you

For a tractor that matches your needs perfectly, choose a TN tractor from New Holland. It's packed with big tractor features that save you time and make you money.

- New 3-cylinder engines deliver lugging power that will send you looking for bigger jobs to tackle
- Clutchless power shuttle option lets you shift from forward to reverse with only the touch of a finger
- Faster cycle times thanks to the highest pump flow in the business.

Stop by and pick out a tractor that's built for you A New Holland TN tractor

YOU CHOOSE THE WIDTH THAT'S RIGHT FOR YOU!

Gehl's family of five disc mower conditioners will give you the cutting edge when it comes to simplicity and performance Choose from two conventional machines or three big swing frame models offering cutting widths that range from just over 9 feet, all the way to the new 18 foot giant- the biggest in the industry!

All Gehl disc mower conditioners deliver fast, smooth cutting performance. Hay is thoroughly conditioned for fast drying, thanks to wide, machined conditioning rolls And Gehl's simple drive system uses fewer components - that means greater reliability.

Maryland DHIA Report For May

The May Dairy Herd Improvement information for dairy herds from the DHI processing center in Provo, Utah. The list includes herds from Maryland, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia. The information is listed by herd name, county association, number of cows in the herd and the average production per cow in the herd based on Energy Corrected Milk (ECM). ECM combines milk production and components.

The ECM formula is: (7.2 x lbs. protein) + (12.95 x lbs. fat) + (.327 x lbs. milk). To be included, the herd must have 10 cows averaging 65 pounds or more of ECM per cow, per day. All herds reported are on official DHI or DHIR test. Also listed are the top 10 herds in Maryland for the Brown Swiss, Guernseys, and Jerseys, and the top seven herds for Ayrshires.

BUSINESS ❖ NEWS

Craftsmen Demonstrate During July Celebration

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Pennsylvania Guild of Craftsmen will be celebrating its 55th annual State Craft Fair at the Franklin & Marshall Sports and Fitness Center July 27-29.

The Guild members' work is featured in elite museum catalogs across the country. Their crafts have appeared in Hollywood films such as "The Patriot," featuring Mel Gibson, and Oprah's movie "Beloved." They've been showcased on "Lynette Jennings Design" on the Discovery Channel. They have even decorated the White House Christmas Tree.

Some of the Guild's finest craftsmen will demonstrate their art live for all to see. Featured artists include basket weaver Vivian Aron, whose traditional weaving style stems back to the days of the Gettysburg War; James Barnett, who will demonstrate the art of tinsmithing; Art Stilson, will bring Saint Nicholas to life through clay sculpting; Sandra Coldren, who was featured on "Lynette Jennings Design," will demonstrate the old art of Theorem painting; Bob Dewitt, also featured on "Lynette Jennings Designs," will hand-carve wooden spoons and bowls; Marge Erickson, who will weave "wearable art;" Ned Foltz, whose redware pottery is collected by Hollywood stars, will demonstrate Sgrifitto; Linda Horn will demonstrate the ago-old art of corn husk doll making; and Barbara Miller will demonstrate wheat weaving.

Cost of admission is $6, and new to this show is the option of purchasing a weekend pass good for both days for only $9.

Liquidation Auction June 29

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — The Franklin County Area Development Corporation (FCADC) has announced a major liquidation auction of its remaining assets at the Letterkenny Army Depot, Chambersburg.

The auction will be Friday, June 29 beginning at 8:30 a.m. at Letterkenny Building 41.

A partial listing of the inventory being sold at the auction includes construction equipment, trucks, vehicles, trailers, material handling equipment including cranes and forklifts, machine shop and specialized equipment and tools, welders, ground maintenance equipment, warehousing equipment, office furniture, specialized electronic and mechanical calibration equipment and many other related items.

Two Farmers Win $1,000 In Hytest Promotion

SHIREMANSTOWN (Cumberland Co.) — With a check for $1,000 from Hytest® Seeds in their hands, Barbara Schenning, of Bel Air, Md., and the Yautz Brothers, of Easton, are among the delighted winners of the Hytest Seeds "Hybrids Built To Feed/Hybrids Built To Yield" promotional contest.

Schenning, whose farm produces grain and silage corn and alfalfa for a 300-head dairy operation, and the Yautz Brothers, who produce Hytest alfalfa, along with corn, soybeans and wheat, were randomly selected from hundreds of entries in the Hytest Seeds direct mail promotion. The third winner in the contest was Jim Scheele, from Oglesby, Texas.

Hytest Seeds is a widely respected as a leading producer and marketer of high yielding forage and grain seed products, including corn, sorghum, alfalfa, legume and grass varieties. Research trials show that the company's "Built To Feed" forage products can significantly increase milk production from dairy herds and increase daily rate of gain for feedlot cattle.

Land Pride 25 Series Disc Harrows

SALINA, Kan. — The newest additions to Land Pride's Disc Harrow line, the DH25 Series, are the 60-inch, 72-inch and 96-inch harrows — ready to tackle your toughest conditions. From produce farms to conservation plots and even roadside work, these harrows are built to give excellent results.

Designed for tractors up to 100 HP, the Cat. 1 and 2 hitch will fit a variety of tractors, for a variety of uses. The four-inches by three-inches gang tubes and 1 1/8-inch square axles easily handle the heavy torque load the disc blades can be put through. The bearing hangers feature ½-inch plate and ⅝-inch U-bolts.

The 25 Series Disc Harrow is available with 20-inch or 22-inch notched disc blades. Available in 7½-inch spacing, the front and rear gangs can be angled up to 21 degrees for optimum aggressiveness. Angling is simplified with an adjustment handle on the front and rear gang. Optional disc scrapers are available.

Corn Fields Should Be Evaluated Now

DES MOINES, Iowa — While walking your corn fields this summer to scout for insects and weeds, take a look at the actual stand in each field. Evaluating this year's stand could be the start of a better crop in 2002.

"A field walk now is a good idea," says Gregg Carlson, professor of plant science at South Dakota State University. "While there's no chance to fix any problems, evaluating the stand as it's growing does allow producers to clearly identify problems and solve them for 2002."

Problems can include the presence of skips (missing plants) and doubles (two-plant hills) caused by poorly calibrated or out-of-condition planter meters. Poorly spaced corn can deliver lower yields, while research has shown that equidistant plant spacing can have a positive effect on yields.

In studies conducted by agronomists at Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc., plant spacing was measured and standard deviation was calculated. The lower the standard deviation, the more uniform the stand and the better the yields. Pioneer's research showed a 4-1-bushel per acre increase for each one-inch improvement in standard deviation. Similar research at Purdue University showed a 2.5-bushel per acre yield increase per one-inch of standard deviation improvement.

To determine the standard deviation of a corn stand and the estimated impact on yield, take 30 consecutive corn plants and measure the distance between each corn plant. Repeat this process four times in randomly selected areas throughout the field. These spacing figures are then used to calculate the standard deviation, which can be done using any standard spreadsheet software. Keep in mind in a perfectly planted field where all plants are 7.0 inches apart, the average spacing is 7.0 and the standard deviation 0. If 50 percent of the spacings are 6.0 and 50 percent are 8.0, the averages spacing is still 7.0, but the standard deviation is 1.0 inch.

In the Pioneer research, sites showing only a slight improvement in standard deviation (less than 1.0 inch) had an average yield increase of a modest 1.8 bushel per acre. Conversely, where the standard deviation improvement was moderate (1 to 2 inches), yields improved by 5.0 bushels per acre. In more extreme cases where standard deviation was improved by more than 2 inches, the yield improvement averaged 15.9 bushels per acre.

While many things can influence stand quality and profitability there are three key planting objectives to strive for:

- Uniform depth and spacing of seed placement,
- Correct number of seeds per acre and,
- Creating the best possible environment for seeds to germinate rapidly and emerge uniformly.

"Experienced corn growers know they benefit from uniform stand establishment," says Hall. "The most effective way to achieve this uniformity is to use sound agronomic practices along with quality seed and a well-calibrated planter."

Hall recommends growers visit with their local Pioneer sales professional or agronomist for assistance with stand evaluation this season and for help with planter calibration and maintenance before planting next year's crop. They can also visit www.pioneer.com/metermax for more information.

ASAE Tractor Design Competition Bridges Gap Between Good Student And Good Employee

ST. JOSEPH, Mich. — Experience gained by students participating in the International Student Design Quarter-Scale Tractor Competition of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers (ASAE) goes well beyond honing their technical competence. It also enhances the nontechnical skills employers look for — and don't always find — in prospective employees.

ASAE Past President Gale Holloway, CNH-Case Corp., explains, "It's an excellent way for students to prepare for and gain exposure to what they are going to be facing when they get out into the professional world — technical challenges, problem solving, a team-player environment, and the need for project management and communication skills."

To participate in the competition, teams must not only design and build a quarter-scale tractor, they must use written and oral communication skills to convince a panel of judges (playing the role of 'upper management' in a fictitious equipment manufacturer) that their design is the best. The team must also secure funds for components and for travel. For one of this year's competitors, a team traveling all the way from Malaysia, the latter will total some $35,000.

That commitment to meet numerous challenges is a sharp reflection of the caliber of the students that participate in the Quarter-Scale contest. "The competition draws the most ambitious and goal-oriented students. This project is extremely demanding and stretches the students' knowledge and capabilities to new limits," says event co-chair Kelly A. Detra, of CNH-Case Corp.

Former Kansas State team member Andrew Grollmes, now with John Deere Harvester Works, agrees. "The Design Competition gave me an understanding of very real-world situations," he says. "The process of fund raising, designing and building our 2000 tractor was excellent training for the skills that I now use daily."

The Quarter-Scale Tractor Design Competition is made possible by Briggs & Stratton, Case Corporation, Caterpillar Inc., Cub Cadet, Deere and Company, and New Holland, with additional support from Bridgestone/Firestone, Campbell Scientific Inc., Digi-Star, Grasshopper, Midwest Super Cub, Milwaukee Tool, and Snap-On.

The American Society of Agricultural Engineers is a professional and technical organization dedicated to the advancement of engineering applicable to agricultural, food, and biological systems. Founded in 1907 and headquartered in St. Joseph, Mich., ASAE comprises 9,000 members representing more than 90 countries. For further information about the Society or its Student Design competitions, contact Dolores Landeck at ASAE, (616) 428-6339, landeck@asae.org.

Callisto™ Corn Herbicide Registered

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. — Syngenta Crop Protection has received registration for Callisto™ corn herbicide, a new post-emergence product that controls nearly all the major broadleaf weeds in corn.

Developed from a naturally occurring herbicide in the Callistemon citrinus plant, Callisto brings a new mode of action to broadleaf weed control in corn. It offers post-emergence and residual control of the toughest broadleaf weeds in corn, excellent crop safety, a favorable environmental profile, a wide window of application, and a low use rate.

Wile Joins White Oak Mills Dairy Division

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — White Oak Mills Inc. has announced the addition of Larry Wile, of Lancaster, to its management and dairy teams.

Wile will serve as White Oak Mills' vice president, Dairy Eastern Division. Focusing his expertise and sales efforts in southeastern Pennsylvania, he will concentrate specifically on meeting dairy producer's nutritional and management needs. His responsibilities will also include overseeing and providing strategic direction to White Oak's eastern dairy team.

Wile graduated from Pennsylvania State University with a bachelor of science degree in management/marketing. Employed by Purina Mills for the last 19 years, he served most recently in the areas of product formulation and nutritional consulting services.

"We're excited by the opportunities, experiences and technical proficiency Larry will be bringing to our organization and by the contributions he'll make to our dairy team," says Mark Wagner, White Oak Mills president. "He'll be an asset to our company, our dairy team, and our customers."

Focus On Manure At Two Ohio Field Days

WOOSTER, Ohio — What comes out of cows — and pigs, poultry and other livestock — can be a challenge to deal with. But two August field days will feature new ways to use, store, treat, transport and compost the stuff. Manure Science Review programs will be held Aug. 27-28 in Wapakoneta, Ohio, and Aug. 30-31 in Wooster, Ohio.

The programs — similar at both locations — will update participants on nutrient management, environmental issues, social issues, and manure storage and handling. The speakers will be farmers, composters, state-agency and industry experts, and scientists from Ohio State and other universities.

The Wapakoneta program will be at the Auglaize County Fairgrounds. The Wooster event will be at the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center, 1680 Madison Ave.

Among the scheduled presentations are "Systems planning for manure storage," "Manure handling and treatment alternatives," "Design of systems to meet regulations," "Guidelines for nutrient application," "Phosphorus management," "Biological treatment of milkhouse waste and runoff," "Livestock Environmental Assurance Plan (LEAP)," "Tile line application concerns," "Emergency plans," "Biosecurity issues," and "Neighbor relations."

There will be several panel discussions and, during the Aug. 27-28 program, a tour of the Wapakoneta waste treatment facility.

Hours are 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. both days of both programs, with lunch at 12:30 p.m. and a trade show and demonstrations at 1:15 p.m.

Advance registration is $5 per day. The registration deadline is Aug. 17. Lunch and refreshments are included in the cost. Walk-in registration is $10 per day.

To register in advance, send names and registration fees to Mary Wicks, OCAMM program coordinator, OSU/OARDC, Agricultural Engineering Building, 1680 Madison Ave., Wooster, OH 44691. Make checks payable to OSU/OARDC.

The sponsors are the Natural Resources Conservation Service; Ohio's Soil and Water Conservation Districts; the Ohio Department of Natural Resources; the Ohio Livestock Coalition; the Environmental Quality Incentive Program (EQIP); and Ohio State University, including the Ohio Composting and Manure Management (OCAMM) program, Waste Resource Management Team, Ohio State University Extension, and OARDC.

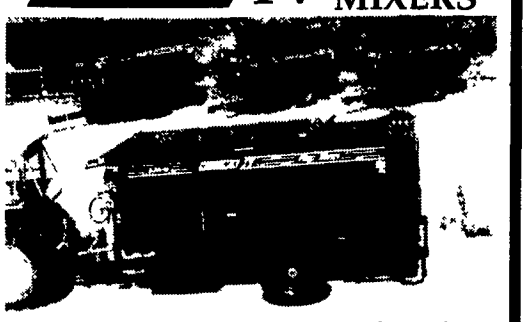
ROTO-MIX IV FEED MIXERS



With ROTO-MIX IV you reduce fines, minimize shrinkage, and eliminate dead spots. The gentle tumbling action mixes fragile flaked and high-moisture ingredients without grinding, resulting in a fluffier, more nutritional ration.

The ROTO-MIX end-to-end... side-to-side mixing system provides the most thorough TMR available, ensuring that your cattle will consume a balanced ration of nutrients in every pound of feed they eat.

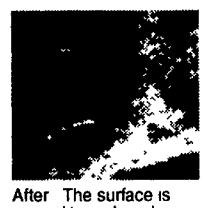
WARNING! DETERIORATING CONCRETE FROM CORN JUICE!

WARNING, ALL SILO OWNERS

Check your silo now for rotten staves. If you have been using your silo for 10 to 15 years for either corn silage or haylage, it is time to SHOTCRETE

RESURFACES INTERIORS:
- Coats the silo's interior
- Protects feed in storage
- Durable, tough, acid-resistant
- Increase useful life
- Economical

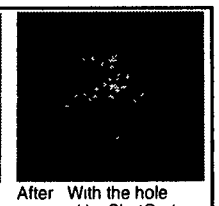
Before The silo's interior with plaster damage and stave exposed



After The surface is reconditioned, and a new, thick, tough surface will protect stored feed

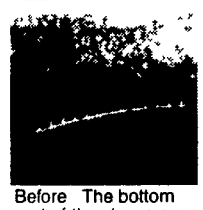
REPAIRS HOLES:
- Repairs even large holes
- Up to twice the strength of the original stave
- Rapid application
- Durable surface

Before A hole is worn completely through the silo wall



After With the hole repaired by ShotCrete and a new surface applied, the silo is ready for years of use

EXTENDS USEFUL LIFE:
- Support for old foundations
- Special repairs can be made... quickly and economically
- Little or no forming needed
- Stronger than the original



Before The bottom part of the staves are completely worn away

Metal Roofs Aren't Created Equal

EVERLAST II IS BETTER:

- it is galvanized heavier, like old times.
- it is heat formed, less paint cracks.
- is cut while hot, prevents early edge rust.
- won't scratch as easy, paint is harder.
- won't bend or buckle as easy, stronger design.
- laps are tighter, and virtually invisible.
- nail/screws seal better, ribs fit tighter to head.
- zinc phosphate, not chromate under paint.
- still priced about the same or less.

EVERLAST II
is excellent for for houses and barns.
DOUBLE DIPPED GALVANIZED is proven best for animals.
STANDING SEAM
is ideal for houses.

CAN ALSO BE PICKED UP OR DELIVERED FROM LEBANON PLANT

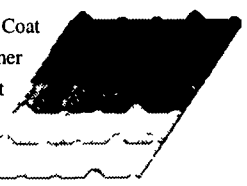
"The Best"

1. Valspar 10S Finish Coat
2. Epoxy Primer
3. Zinc Phosphate Pretreatment
4. G-100 Zinc Coating
5. Full Hard Steel (80,000 min yield)
6. Heat formed, less paint cracks
7. 36 Cover Width



Everlast II

NOTE! It is more important what is under the paint than what you see on top!

1 One of the best paints, superior acid rain, cracking resistance and color retention
2 Primer coat promotes outstanding top coat adhesion
3 Zinc phosphate pretreatment This is a very important process - if your current supplier cannot supply you with this or does not know, you should reconsider
4 G-100 Galvanized Most metal roofing has approx 40% less galvanized under the paint G-100 is more galvanized than most unpainted panels
5 Full Hard Anything less than full hard will bend easier, lower snow loads, etc
6 Heat formed. Metal is painted before ribs are formed Most paint cracks at bends, heat forming greatly reduces cracks (check metal siding that is installed for 5-10 years)
7 Stronger design, superior strength, more metal per L F
8 Add Everything Together And Price Should Be $53 37 Per Square $1 69 Per L F

OUR SPECIAL PRICE ONLY
$46.74 PER SQUARE

Waterbeds for Cows

The ALANTA Waterbed for cows is a revolutionary product, comfortable, safe and hygienic. It clearly improves your cows' well-being and therefore promotes higher milk production. It is the ultimate stall floor covering for the modern, animal-friendly dairy farm.

WELL MADE
The ALANTA Waterbed is made of two rubber layers with a water-filled compartment in between. GD-Enerka gives a 10-year guarantee.

COMFORTABLE
The waterbed molds itself to the cow's shape. It's cool in summer and pleasantly warm in winter.

SAFE
Thanks to the non-slip rubber upper surface, the cow can be gripped firmly and cannot slip off. In this way the ALANTA waterbed keeps damage to hooves to a minimum.

ALANTA® A member of the Poly group of companies Patent Pending

Here's What Some of Your Neighbors Say About Alanta Waterbeds:

Dale Hindman, Brodgway, PA
"We have seen a big savings in the amount of bedding we use and I believe the durability of the beds will be excellent over time."

Harlan Hoover, Oley, PA
"I am pleased with waterbeds. Cow comfort is excellent."

WHAT MAKES THE AGRI-PLASTICS CALF NURSERY BETTER?

- Roomiest interior of any single-calf hutch on the market (overall dimensions: 62"W x 98"L x 55" H):
  - More distance between calf and walls...helps maintain the critical "comfort zone" (50-55°F) immediately surrounding calf
  - Better protection from wind, rain and snow...rear of hutch stays warmer on cold days
- Heaviest, single-calf hutch you can buy (approx. 138 lbs.):
- Longer, 10-year Manufacturer's Limited Warranty
- More "Standard" features... including right or left hand feed doors, inside manger with built-in double pail holder, two 6.5 qt. pails, two built-in bottle holders, top vent and rear vent

BEEF TIPS

How to add Simmental genetics to your herd (Part 2)

1. Start with purebred or half-blood F1 Simmental heifers and cows. All association breeders have purebred females for you. Several breeders offer F1 breeding stock that are Simmental/Angus, Simmental/Red Angus, Simmental/Hereford, Simmental/Charolais, Simmental/Limousine. These F1 Simmental females will almost certainly work with your non-Simmental bull or your Simmental bull.

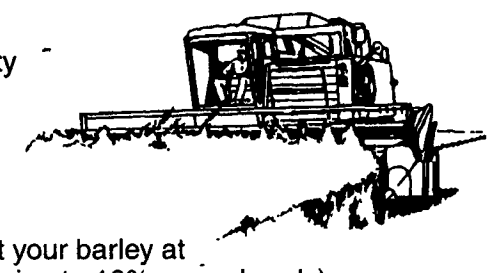
ROASTED BARLEY IS PROFITABLE



* Lower Feed Costs
* Excellent Palatability
* Better Digestability
* Removes Molds
* Maximize Your Own Grain

We can custom roast your barley at 20% moisture (approximate 10% green heads).
With our late spring and barley harvest, this process can provide a faster turn-around on double-crop acres.
